

SCHOOL MEN IN WORDY WARFARE

Presence of Ex-Principal McKay Irritates President Glauque.

FORMER SEIZED INK WELL.

The Lie Had Passed and the Board Had Declined to Re-employ Low-Moyle for Another Year.

There was an exciting and deplorable encounter at the termination of the special meeting of the board of education last night, that came very nearly resulting in a physical encounter. As it was, hostilities were confined to the passing of the lie and the seizure of inkwells, heavy enough to be formidable weapons of offense and defense, and threats that fortunately resulted in threats only. Clerk Moreton, who has long been known as a warm supporter and friend of Mr. McKay, played the role of peacemaker. No blows were struck, but it was thought that Mr. McKay was about to land one, having picked up a heavy glass inkwell at a critical juncture of the discussion, in a manner that was certainly ominous in the extreme. Then Mr. Glauque reached for one as a means of protection. It was at this time that Clerk Moreton stepped between the combatants.

The trouble arose after the meeting had adjourned and nearly all of the members had left the room. Glauque, Newman, Moyle and McKay were the only ones in the room. Mr. McKay, hearing the group, says he heard this remark from President Glauque, the remark being occasioned by the belief that McKay was eavesdropping, listening to a private conversation.

"Now, McKay, we don't want you hanging around these rooms any longer. We won't have it, in fact."

"Is that so? Is that so?" retorted the deposed principal in a tone that was not calculated to improve conditions very much. Then he added with much irony: "Such presumption, such audacity! As a citizen I shall come and go, whenever I want to."

"You have been hanging about here for weeks, and we don't want you to do it any more."

Then Mr. McKay shot back: "If you say that you say what is not true."

Before Mr. Glauque could make reply to this Mr. Moyle intervened: "No, we don't want you around here any more. More than that, he was unable to say so accompanied by being compelled to leave the building in great haste to catch a train."

Mr. Glauque was apparently willing to let the matter drop here and take his departure as well but it was very much of a talk-back affair and his temper refused to be quieted by the repeated sarcasm of Mr. McKay, who continued to say, "Such presumption; yes, I repeat, such presumption!"

The president was, for a moment, seemingly undecided what to do. But he was deeply cut by the professor's irony and retort. "You have acted the part of a dirty cur for years and now that we are through with you you should stop the business. I know what manner of man you are. You should have been kicked out of the building long ago. You have been the leader of an outfit that has done everything it possibly could to block the schools. There are certain things about you that you would not like to be published. You are a low, dirty cur."

"Ah! am I? Well, then, far you may go but no farther. I fling back the charge at you. I am no cur and will not be called one by a low down hood like you—no low bound as ever whined." Here McKay seized an inkwell and raised it in a manner that boded badly for Glauque. The latter, however, was unafraid and stood his ground, facing his antagonist, fully prepared to receive the blow should it be delivered. "So that is the way you fight, is it?" said the president, as he looked straight across the weak, thin, and unimposing face of the man who separated him from the professor.

"Not necessarily," was McKay's reply. "Come outside and I will fight you any way and at any time or place."

"Oh, no. I won't degrade myself in any such way."

There was further talk along the same line and the lie passed while Mr. Glauque reached out and laid his hand upon an inkstand under the impression that he, too, had better be armed if the clash came. But it was here that Mr. Moreton stepped between the disputants and prevented what threatened to be a hard physical collision. Then the party left the building. Mr. Glauque absolutely declined to make any statement whatever, today, beyond the fact that he would lay the matter before the board at the next meeting.

CANNOT RE-EMPLOY M'KAY.

The board at its meeting unanimously passed the following resolution submitted by the committee of the board: "In view of the fact that Prof. McKay has turned in all his reports as required since the action of the committee on teachers and school work, and has made explanation of his conduct and disavows any intention of insubordination or violation of the rules or regulations, that therefore he be reinstated to his position for the remainder of the school year."

"Fourth, it is resolved, That the petitioners in behalf of the re-employment of Prof. McKay as principal of the Lowell school be informed that it is impossible for the board to grant the petition."

M'KAY'S RESIGNATION.

The following resignation from Prof. McKay since May 19, was read to the board:

Salt Lake City, Utah, May 19, 1903. Board of Education, City, Gentlemen—

Some time since I determined to sever my connection with the Salt Lake City public schools at the termination of my contract in June, and engaged to enter upon another line of work.

Presuming upon that fairness of treatment which might be due me from the present officials of the board after 13 years of faithful service in the schools of this city, I had, for personal reasons, withheld formal notification of my intentions.

Having also overestimated the business and professional courtesy of those now entrusted with the general administration of the work in the public schools, and in view of the unkind and unjust publicity given me in this connection, I desire to, and do hereby submit to you this declaration, that I am not a candidate for any position at the hands of the board of education. With respect, where due, I am,

G. N. M'KAY.

AMUSEMENTS.

The handsome Salt Palace theater, which for interior decoration is not exceeded by anything in the state, has thrown open last night. The management certainly had all the material with which to make a big hit, and if the hit was not entirely made, it was due to the usual mischances of first night performances. The front of the house seemed to have no one in charge, and the consequence was that instead of the cheerful, breezy, cool auditorium which would have been secured if all the windows above and below had been opened, the house was suffocating until nearly 10 o'clock. Then relief came, and the show began. It would have been a very good one, had it not been for the fact that the stage manager had not done enough pruning, and took altogether too long between his acts, with the consequence that the show nearly 11 o'clock before the second curtain fell, and then a big part of the big audience went home. In spite of these mishaps, there is no denying the strength of the organization. Mr. McChesney's debut over an orchestra of a size such as the Salt Lake Theater only gets on special occasions.

one, by the way, that was very often too loud for the soloists. The individual singing was excellent, and Miss Fisher made an immediate hit by her bell like voice, and her charming dancing, to say nothing of her very pretty appearance. Miss Levy's song "In Sunny Spain," was also heartily enjoyed. Mr. Graham acted well, but unfortunately had little chance to show his sweet voice. Mr. Squire had an encore for his big solo, which was well rendered. Miss Cooper showed her excellent comedy talents in the part of the Irish mother. Mr. Kerr was the comedy feature of the night, his topical song, filled with local "kugs," bringing down the house. Josh Davis, in the opening acts, was alone worth the price of admission, especially when he tried to act. Miss Wilson and Miss Due looked very pretty as the captain's daughters.

Mr. Stevens, who had the big job of the night in handling the stage and doing the part of the private detective, attempted too much. His stage management and the work with the chorus shows that he is an adept in that line, but he was overweighed in the part of the comedian. Indeed, he was very often totally inaudible. The chorus acted with spirit, but needs balancing up, in the basses especially. The ladies did the better work. The costumes were excellent and the whole thing, when put together by two or three nights' experience, and shortened up so that the final curtain will fall by 10:30, will no doubt secure some excellent business.

So Says Auditor Reiser Regarding Council Refreshments Bill.

MAYOR'S VETO KNOCKED OUT

Council So Acts in the Stanton Damage Case—City Property in Demand.

Hereafter, according to City Auditor Reiser, the city council must dispense with liquid refreshments and cigars when it goes on a junketing trip or else pay for the same out of the private purse of the individual members. On Sunday, June 7, the council took a trip up Parley's canyon to inspect the new reservoir site, and the usual lunch was prepared for the trip by A. J. Davis, who was named as chef for that occasion. Nothing out of the usual order was prepared for the trip, nothing more than has been taken on a number of such junkets on previous occasions. However, the city auditor notified the council last night that he could not legally draw a warrant for $16.40 of the total amount of $46.40, which the refreshments cost, for the reason that the same was for liquor and cigars. He stated that he would draw a warrant in favor of Franklin, the caterer, for $30, but that the balance would have to be paid out of the pockets of the members of the council, as the legislature did not confer powers upon the city council to contract such a debt. The matter was referred to the finance and reservoir site committees to find some way in which the bill can be paid.

RELIEF FROM WATER FAMINE.

A. J. Davis introduced a resolution providing for the appropriation of $3,000 to lay new 4-inch water pipes in the northeastern part of the city instead of the old 2-inch pipes, which were laid 15 years ago. In support of his resolution he stated that the pipes did not carry sufficient water to supply the people in that locality with culinary water and that they should be given immediate relief. The resolution was passed.

VETO KNOCKED OUT.

After considerable discussion, the council by a vote of 13 to 1, adopted the report of the street committee in regard to the claim of W. A. Stanton, notwithstanding the mayor's veto thereto. Mr. Stanton put in a claim of $25 for damages to his premises at 553 east South Temple street by reason of surface water from the city. The flood-rising the same. The committee reported in favor of compromising the claim for $300, and the mayor vetoed the report because he did not think the city is liable for such damages. Eardley is the only one who voted to sustain the mayor's veto.

LICENSE NOT REVOKED.

By a unanimous vote the council refused to revoke the liquor license of John Carey, proprietor of the Court saloon, for violation of the Sunday liquor ordinance. His bartender, Charles Cushing, was arrested for selling liquor on Sunday, June 14, and entered a plea of guilty and was fined $50 by Judge Diehl. Carey was present at the council meeting and was also represented by Attorney D. N. Struven. He stated that he was at home asleep at the time the offense was committed and did not know anything about the conclusion of his bartender. Upon his promise that he would not offend against the ordinances of the city again, the action against him was dismissed upon motion of Fernstrom, and his license was not revoked.

CITY PROPERTY IN DEMAND.

A. M. Anderson made application to purchase from the city all of lot 5, block 1, plan 15, or as much thereof as is not used by the street. The matter was referred to the committee on public grounds.

The Oregon Short Line Railroad company also made application to purchase $10 rods of land in lot 2, block 101, plan A, belonging to the city. The property is needed by the company for yard and terminal facilities, and it asks that the city place an official valuation upon the same. The matter was referred to the committee on public grounds and mayor and city attorney associated.

TO LAY DOUBLE TRACKS.

The Consolidated Railway & Power company petitioned the council for a franchise to construct double streetcar tracks from Ninth West and North Temple streets north on Ninth West to Fourth North and thence west on said street to Twelfth West street. The petition was referred to the committee on municipal laws and streets.

MORE QUARANTINE INSPECTORS.

Health Commissioner Stewart asked authority to employ two additional quarantine inspectors for the week after alleged violations of quarantine regulations. He stated in his communication that the department had received a number of complaints against such violations, and that the present force is inadequate to rigidly enforce the regulations. Upon motion of Eardley the authority was granted to employ two men for a period of 60 days at a salary of $2.25 per day.

WANT FREE LICENSE.

A petition was received from the Salt Lake City Athletic & Baseball club, asking for a free license for the club to play at Walker's field during the present season. The committee on license will consider the matter.

SALT LAKE GIRL WEDS.

Marriage of Miss Cecil Lewis to Frank P. Blair at Chicago.

Chicago, June 23.—The Record-Herald today says:

Miss Cecil Lewis, daughter of State Senator A. B. Lewis, of Utah, was married to Frank P. Blair of Tiffin, Ohio, last night in her room at the Auditorium Annex. Rev. S. P. Benbrook, chaplain of Chicago hotels, summoned lustily by telephone, performed the ceremony. Miss Lewis' home is in Salt Lake, where the wedding was to have taken place several weeks ago. Circumstances, however, compelled its postponement and made necessary the hurried meeting in Chicago. The young couple were classmates at Ohio Wesleyan college, Delaware, Ohio. They left last night for Tiffin, Ohio, where the bridegroom is cashier of the Citizens' National bank.

WHITELAW REID TO LAW STUDENTS

Addreses Them on the Ethics of The Legal Profession.

TALKS OF MONROE DOCTRINE

Will be Maintained, but Its Extension Beyond Its Original Purpose May be Embarrassing.

New Haven, Conn., June 22.—The anniversary exercises of the Yale law school were held this afternoon in Hentime hall. The address was by Whitelaw Reid of New York.

Mr. Reid spoke on the ethics of the legal profession, on the Monroe doctrine and on anarchism. He quoted an oration by Wendell Phillips and said:

"In that lofty valhalla of which Mr. Phillips spoke you will look in vain for the statute of the modern 'ambulance chaser,' or any species of the modern speculative suit lawyer. Far less will you find the tradesman in litigation who has found ways to combine chicanery and maintenance with the practice of the courts. Nay, you will not even find there that sort of brilliant corporation lawyer whose practice is confined to the teaching corporate wealth how to evade the laws of the land; or that other whose practice lies in teaching trades unions how to conduct campaigns against property without imperiling their own incomes and campaigns against free labor by terrorism, by the bludgeon, by dynamite, without incurring responsibility for such deeds, while enjoying the victory they secure."

On the Monroe doctrine, Mr. Reid said:

"The things that made the Monroe doctrine have disappeared. Under such circumstances it may be easy after a while for us to look over the Monroe doctrine again in the light of the present situation of the American continent and of our present necessities. We will certainly not abandon it, but we may find, if nobody is opposing us that perhaps its extension quite so far beyond the original purpose of Mr. Monroe and Mr. Adams as the fervor of our patriots has carried it, may prove to be attended with wholly unnecessary inconvenience to ourselves."

Mr. Reid discussed the defect in our extradition treaties with foreign nations, nearly all of which treatates contain a clause which stipulates that "the provisions of the present convention shall not be applied in any manner to any crime or offense of a political character."

The speaker dwelt upon the numerous assassinations by anarchists, and concluded:

"If, in this summary of what I have termed the common places of the subject, I have not outrun your approval you will then be ready to regard it as a surprise that the United States has no extradition treaty with any other nation from their present protection under the guise of mere political offenders for the assassins of heads of state. You will be ready to think, to go farther and approach at least the views jointly expressed to us in the December following the assassination of President McKinley by the government of Germany and Russia. They thought this, with previous anarchist crimes and attempts upon the lives of China magistrates, rendered it terribly evident that a struggle against the menace of anarchy is an urgent necessity for all governments."

"They accordingly proposed concert of action in measures to check the anarchist movement, the strengthening of the police force, the strengthening of the courts, and the strengthening of the law, and particularly the expulsion of anarchists from countries of which they are not subjects."

WAR ARTIST TO LONDON "BLACK AND WHITE"

Found Pe-ru-na of Benefit in the Climatic and Nervous Strain of War and Travel.

[The accompanying picture shows Mr. Manley in the uniform he wore during the late Chinese uprising in China where he was acting as Assistant War Artist to London "Black and White" and "Collier's Weekly."]

MR. H. B. MANLEY, care "Black and White," 688 Craig St., Montreal, Canada, writes: "When a man travels in extreme hot or cold climates, he realizes how valuable a friend he has if he carries a bottle of Peruna. I know of no article in my traveling outfit which I have learned to prize higher."

"If you are suffering with the extreme heat Peruna restores you, or if you are afflicted with a cold, grippa or bronchitis, Peruna restores you in a short time. Or if you suffer with sleeplessness, or if your appetite is poor, again Peruna acts as a good, true friend and is the tonic needed."

"I have tried it for months and am only too glad to acknowledge it as a true loyal standby in times of trouble. I do not hesitate to recommend it to all."—H. B. Manley.

Travelers Should Use Peruna.
People going on a journey, either by rail or steamboat, should take with them a bottle of Peruna. It is an excellent remedy to prevent railroad sickness, sea sickness, to guard against catching cold, or acquiring contagious diseases.

The exigencies of travel, to most people, are hard to bear. Change of water, change of diet, change of climate, exposure to unventilated staterooms, crowded coaches, all this creates new environment. A large number of people are made sick in this way. A bottle of Peruna is worth ten times its weight in gold to a person under such circumstances. It prevents the ill effects of bad water. It produces refreshing sleep under adverse circumstances. It keeps the appetite vigorous and the digestion normal. A multitude of people have already made this discovery, and they never think of taking a journey, either by land or sea, without having with them a bottle of Peruna.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.
