Income tax.

WASHINGTON, 19.—General Pleasanton, commissioner of internal revenue, in an interview yesterday with the committee on ways and means, very strongly advocated the immediate repeal of the income tax; the principal argument being that the cost of collecting it is greater than the amount obtained, so that no revenue is derived from the service. Gen. Pleasanton recommended that some law be passed providing for the export of spirits.

NEW YORK.

Matters inside Paris—The French not paleed.

NEW YORK.—A dispatch to the Herald, dated Versailles, 14th, says several 74-pounders have been brought to the Seine, but cannot cross on account of floating ice. They are intended for Mount Avron, and carry 226 pound shells.

The whole seige train from Meziores, with heavy guns, has arrived and is mounted on the bitteries of Mont Moreuch, which were ready to receive them. They will open fire to-day directly on St. Denis. It is intended to destroy it as a warning to Paris.

Four hundred and fifty shells were thrown into Paris yesterday. The determination is to destroy all the principal defenses.

A dispatch to the World, dated Brevettes, 17th, says Bourbaki attacked the Germans before Belfort on the 15th and was repulsed along the line. The combat was obstinate and lasted till dark. The French renewed the fight on the 16th and were again repulsed with heavy loss in killed.

NEW YORK, 18.—Information has been received in this city, that the guns and munitions of war landed on the coast of Cuba on the 6th, from the steamer Hornet, did not fall into the hands of the Spaniards as reported from Havana, but were received by the insurgents. Before the vessel sailed from Aspinwall, President Cespedes and the commander of the expedition had fixed on the point of disembarkation, and the time within which it should be effected. Cespedes was not far distant from Punta Brova on the 6th inst., when the steamer reached there as agreed on, and the cargo was landed by the night of the 7th.

A dispatch to the Herald, dated Paris 13, says, the violent republicans insist on using the Greek fire for military purposes. Trochu opposes it as an atrocity. The ultra "Reds" declare their determination to use the invention against the Germans should the enemy enter Paris. On the other hand, some of the shopkeepers fold their hands and congratulate themselves on having articles that may tempt the German princes when they enter the city. They believe the resistance to be unequalled in the annals of war. The bombardment has enraged the population and all are eager to go out to fight. Man and women swear they will fight, even if they have to wait a generation for the accomplishment of their purpose. Peace is only looked upon as a means for recruiting the army of the country in the provinces, and invading Germany at a future day.

Two meetings were held by the government yesterday on the subject of Favre's invitation to the conference at London.

Granville's letter to Favre, of the 30th of December, was forwarded by Bismarck on the 10th of December, and unaccompanied by a pass through the Prussian lines. The French firing at the German flags of truce is forbidden for the time, and Bismarck has recalled an explanation from Favre, through Washburne, that communication by flag of truce was re-established.

Favre will leave as soon as the condition of affairs at Paris permits. The general opinion is in favor of his going, as it will be a recognition of the government.

Reports are prevalent that General Schmidtz and two of his aids were shot in the bombardment. No particulars are yet given.

The hospital of Solfiner, containing three thousand infirm women and 1500 lunatics, and the asylum with 300 wounded men; were struck on the night of the 10th by fifteen shells. The inhabitants of the bombarded districts have been changing their quarters.

FOREIGN NEWS.

FRANCE.

Several sorties.

VERSAILLES, 15.—The Times states that the ground is broken south of Paris, and the projectiles reach the Seine. Several sorties took place at night before Clamarte.

BELCUM.

No show for Joinville.

BRUSSELS, 17.—The Prince De Joinville was commissioned a major by Chauzzy, but was arrested by order of Gambetta and sent to England.

BREVITIES.

A young man in Fluviana County, Va., lately terminated his career of debauchery by driving a knife through the heart of his sorrow-stricken father.

A Lynchburg, Va., belle, now in Paris, has given her diamonds, valued at $15,000, for the benefit of the French Sanitary Commission.

A Boston dry goods firm has a lady customer whose bill for goods purchased for her personal wear, during the nine months ending July 30th last, footed up over $9,500.

A French man-of-war and a German merchantman, that had sailed in company for several days, exchanging friendly signals, entered the harbor of Sidney, September 4th, when they first learned that war existed.

The Terre Haute Journal says: Several nights ago a company of fishermen gigged a pickerel in the Wabash, which weighed nearly thirty-two pounds. It dragged the canoe some distance before it could be safely captured.

There has been much distress on the east coast of Scotland, from the virtual suspension of the herring fishery; the chief market for its produce being the North of Germany, whose seaports were closed for the greatest part of the season.

As an illustration of how a taste for wanton cruelty grows by indulgence an organ-grinder in New Jersey, to whom h is usual mode of inflicting torture had become insipid, threw a passenger train off the railway track by displacing a switch, just for amusement.

Utica is annoyed by a dead woman fished out of all sorts of canals and other desolate places, but always getting away before any one can make an item of her. They think she is a fraud, but the papers use her for a sensation when they have no more exciting subject to dilate upon.

A happy youth in Connecticu thas three grandfathers and six living grandmothers, making nine grand parents. His grandfather, grandmother, great-grandmother and great-great-grandmother are living in the family. Next door live his grandfather, grandmother and great-grandmother, and within a mile live his great-grandfather and a third great-grandmother. We'll bet that boy's "rod" has been greatly sparred.—Ex.

The following bon mot is attributed to Count Bismarck: In his interview with Thiers he pointed out the difficulty of treating with an irregular government, like that of Paris. "Perhaps, then, you will prefer treating with the Emperor?" said Thiers. "Oh, no," said the Count; "the Emperor has been skillful enough not only to destroy his own dynasty, but also to bury his uncle completely."

There was a sportive exhibition on the Rue Richelieu at the review in Paris lately. As all the soldiers could not be placed on the same line, a battalion was stationed on a cross street. As General Trochu neglected to inspect this particular detachment, its members complained that they had been neglected and betrayed, and falling upon the newly-elected Colonel, tore off his epaulets, punched his head, and finally threw him into prison, where, strange to say, he was kept in close arrest 24 hours.

While the last preparations were being made at Admiral Farragut's funeral in New York, Dr. Mary A. Walker entered the City Hall, and finding out one of the Assistant-Marshals, requested him to make provisions for her to join in the procession. She was attired in her peculiar Bloomer costume. Not recognizing the lady, the Assistant-Marshal inquired her name and who she represented. She replied by giving her name, and saying she represented a part of the military. She was finally referred to the committee, who assigned her to one of the carriages.

A THIRTY-FIVE TON GUN.

The final operation in the construction of England's greatest gun—the new 35 ton muzzle loader—was successfully performed at the Woolwich Arsenal on Tuesday, Dec. 13th, and in the course of a fortnight it will be proved at the government butts and be ready for service. The tube of the gun, which is about sixteen feet long, was brought out of the factory in which it had been rifled, and fixed muzzle downwards in a pit under the most powerful crane which the Royal Arsenal possesses. At the same time the heavy breech piece, a mass of iron weighing 15 tons, was heated nearly to redness, on an adjacent "gridiron," in order to expand the metal, and was then carefully lifted and dropped like a cap over the breech of the perpendicular tube. When cold the calibre of the breech-piece was slightly less than the diameter of the tube; but the heat expanded it so as to allow nearly half an inch free play between the two, the cooling process being afterwards assisted by jets of water, so as to fix the cap-piece firmly down on the shoulders, and thereby increase the tension on every part of the surface.

The gun, now it is complete, weighs 35 tons 7 cwt., the diameter at the breech being 46. 8 in., and at the muzzle 1 ft. 9 in. The interior of the bore is a shade less than 12 in., and is rifled on the Woolwich system. It consists of an inner tube of steel, tempered in oil, and encased in massive folds of wrought iron, in accordance with Fraser's double coil system, in addition to the casable screw and trunnion ring. With the gun so strongly built, it is calculated that it will throw a shot or bolt 700 lbs. in weight, and pierce armor plates 15 inches thick, the ordinary charge of powder being 120 lbs., and the proof charge 150 lbs.

The Krupp steel gun, the next most powerful ordnance in existence, weighs about 40 tons; but its projectile is only 600 lbs., and it is doubtful whether it has ever been proved with that, as it certainly had not been so proved when the Prussians sent it to the Paris exhibition. The moderate calibre of the new gun is designed for penetration, and the shot will probably be three times the length of its diameter. The estimate cost is 22,500, which is £1,000 less than Sir William Armstrong's, and £2,500 less than Sir Joseph Whitworth's. If the gun should be approved, fifteen more will be immediately constructed, at a still less cost. It is stated the new 35-ton guns will be used on the Hercules class of Iron-clads, which are plated with iron nine inches in thickness.

A RUSSIAN BALL.

A correspondent gives an account of the popular dance at Anadyrsk, a remote Russian settlement. At the ball the orchestra consisted of two very rude violins, two guitars as rude, and a huge comb prepared with paper after a manner well known to school boys.

One of the men, clad in spotted deerskin coat and buckskin pantaloons, sprang into the centre of the room, and bowed low to a lady who sat upon one end of a long crowded bench. The lady rose with a graceful curtsey, and they began a sort of half dance, half pantomime, about the room, advancing and retiring in perfect time to the music, crossing over, and whirling swiftly round, the man apparently making love, the lady refusing all his advances, turning away and hiding her face in her handkerchief. After a few moments of this dumb show, the lady retired, and another took her place; the music redoubled its energy and rapidity, the dancers began the execution of a tremendouous "break-down," and the shrill cries of "Heckh! Heckh! Vallai-i-i!! Neefstavall!" resounded from all parts of the room, together with the terrific tooting from the comb and the beating of half a hundred feet on the bare planks. Suddenly the man dropped down upon his stomach on the floor at the feet of his partner, and began jumping around like a huge broken legged grasshopper upon his elbows and the end of his toes. This extraordinary feat brought down the house in the wildest enthusiasm, and the uproar of shouting and singing drowned all the instruments except the comb, which still droned away like a Scotch bagpipe in its last agonies. At last, the man, after dancing successfully with all the ladies in the room as etiquette bound him, stopped apparently exhausted, and went away to refresh himself with some dried fish and frozen cranberries.

CURTIS MODELS—PRICES REDUCED TO MEET THE TIMES!—The merits of this system for Cutting all kinds of garments worn by Ladies, Gentlemen and Children are known by scores of ladies in this City and Territory, but the sure way is to prove it for one's self which may be done without charge. This system removes all anxiety regarding the FIT of garments, as all its directions are absolutely positive. There will be no alterations—no taking apart letting out, which not only injures the material but destroys the proportions and often ruins the garment. The system is very simple and can be learned in a few hours.
