WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH

FORTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

WASHINGTON, 17.—Davis, of Virginia, after the reading of the fourteenth, whether he was not now ready proceed with the consideration of Senate officers.

It was stated that whatever a majority of the Senate should decide that resolution he would bow to.

He would not be found resisting the will of the Senate itself. If the senator from West Virginia had been from an accidental occurrence on the republican side, ready to submit to the will of the majority because he believed there was a great majority on his side, he had not a word to say.

Davis said he was glad the senator from Massachusetts was willing to proceed with the pending business which he had been so anxious to go on with during the past month.

Davis regretted the senator was ambitious to expose the ground on which he stood. One would suppose when a United States Senator was in his position, so inconsistent radically with the fundamental principles of government, that the majority would be so would, would not be ambitious to uncover himself to the American people.

Davis said his remarks had been more in pleasantry than otherwise; he had no wish to force the matter.

Davis moved an executive session, declining to allow Burnside's inter-oceanic canal resolution to come up. He will call it up to-morrow and ask the Senate to dispose of it.

THE C. P. TROUBLE.

ALL SHADOWS OF OPINION.

Albany 17.—A point of interest.

WASHINGTON, 17.—The announcement of the resignation of Conkling and the subsequent action of the Senate, was fully shared throughout Washington. As the news spread like wild-fire during the afternoon, the extraordinary political event continued to be the absolutely engrossing topic of comment and speculation to-night. The receipt at the newspaper offices of the argument, a few minutes later of resignation telegraphed from Albany this evening, has, of course, largely diminished the scope for speculation in the best informed circles, but gossip is still alive as to its future consequences and the many collateral subjects of interest.

The universal belief is that Con-kling and Platt will be promptly rejected by the New York legislature, and it is generally considered certain that they had received satisfactory assurances on this point before they volunteered their resignations.

The election, under the national law governing such matters, cannot take place until the second Tuesday after vacancies are created; and before the 24th instant arrives the Senate will undoubtedly have adjusted. At all events, the action of the action taken by the republican caucus to-day, there is no probability of the senators being in the Senate chamber until the second of the nomination shall have been confirmed. The effect of their conferred action, therefore, is discussed only with reference to party interests in the more distant future next fall and winter. Friends of the administration express no apprehension on this score, but democratic senators confidently predict that today's occurrences will widen the breach in the republican party to such an extent as to make New York permanently republican.

They argue that the only way to prevent the republicans from being re-elected is to make New York permanently republican.
