FAILS TO COMMIT SUICIDE

Admits Shooting to Magistrate but Expressed No Repentance or Contrition for His Awful Deed.

Versallies, July 29 .- Maj. Henry A. Huntington, whose son Henry shot his two brothers and two sisters at his father's bedside, is dead. Maj. Huntington was one of the best known Americans in Paris and he and his family have long taken a prominent part in the social and official galety of the French capital.

He was a retired army officer and He was a retired army officer and prior to taking up his residence abroad, he lived in Chicago, where he was an associate of those prominent in army and business circles. In Paris he became well known for his after-dinner speeches at the American club, of which he was one of the organizers and recently the president. Maj. Huntington and family always took a leading part in the social functions at the American embassy. Several years ago the family took a fine old residence as Versailles, where the major was better able to pursue his studies of French art and literature.

Henry, the youngest son of Maj. Huntington, has been considered unbalanced mentally for years. He had a mania that he had solved the science of curing disease and constantly concocted curing disease and constantly concocted the most preposterous remedies. His father, having found it impossible to control him, gave him an allowance and permitted him to go his way. Henry has lived in Paris or Aisne, where he married the daughter of a doctor. There was no family estrangement. When Henry arrived yesterday in response to a message he strutted into the bedroom of his parent mumbling about his of his parent, mumbling about his father not receiving proper treatment. He did not kneel at the bedside and ask forgiveness, as has been reported, but he began interrogating Maj. Hum-tington. When his father, whose mind was wandering, replied incoherently. Henry turned abruptly to the family and said angrily: "Don't you see that you are killing him?"

Henry at once became more excited. The family tried to persuade him to go into the drawing room and talk the question over there. He refused and insisted the only way to cure his father was to administer the blood of a dog mixed with seawater, a remedy which he had invented he had invented.

Tiring of his presence, his brother Douglass finally opened the door and "I am the oldest, and I ask you to leave and not return."

BEGAN SHOOTING.

Edith Huntington also adjured her brother to depart and not create further disturbance. They pushed Henry toward the door. Suddenly he drew a revolver and fired one shot each at the brothers and sisters. In the meantime one of the guards of the Versailles park, who happened to be m the kitchen downstairs, accompanied by the household servants, rushed to the room and wrenched the revolver from the hands of the madman.

When interrogated by the examining magistrate, Henry Huntington admitted the shooting. He declared his acts were an outcome of family troubles and he manifested no repentance for them. Edith Huntington also adjured her sanity in the Huntington family. Maj. Huntington's brother died in a mad-house suffering from delusions some-what similar to those of which Henry

STORY OF THE WIFE.

Henry Huntington's wife, as well as her father and mother, were summoned from Paris today and appeared before the examining magistrate, who took down their statements. Henry's wife, in an interview, persisted in her statement that the rupture between Henry and the other members of his family was complete. This trouble, she said, dated from the last anniversary dinner of her marriage. She declares that on this occasion her sisters-in-law spoke ill of her to her husband.

When Henry returned to his hotel last night, after the tragedy, he told his wife he was crying at the bedside of his father when his brother Douglass and his sisters interrupted him and insisted that he beg for his mother's pardon. He then lost his head and fired indiscriminately. "I can never forget," Mrs. Huntington went on, "that my husband broke with his family rather than permit me to be insulted in his presence."

in his presence."

Dr. Denise declared today that Henry Huntington's sisters were very friendly with his daughter before her marriage, but that they turned against her after Henry made her his wife.

FATHER DIED IGNORANT.

Maj. Huntington died this evening

Maj. Huntington died this evening shortly after the news was given out of his son Henry's unsuccessful attempt at sulcide, but the father was spared the anguish of knowledge of both this incident and the terrible crime which shattered his household, as he was unconscious to the end.

The prostrated wife, his daughter Edith and his son Douglass, whose slight wounds permitted them to pay the last honors to the dying man, were present in the chamber when the end came. According to the police, Henry attempted suicide in his cell with a silk handkerchief, which he tide around his neck and fastened to the bars, seeking to strangle himself slowly by means of a torniquet. The jailer who had been instructed to watch the prisoner closely, detected the act in time to prevent serious results, and it was announced that Henry had not succeeded in injuring himself.

The swift sequence of tragic incidents in the Huntington family, which is one of the best known here, has cast a gloom over Versailles. Though plunged in grief at the death of the head of the household, the mother and children have had time to interpret Henry's effort at self-destruction as additional evidence of the mental irresponsibility which they say he has manifested for a long time in certain directions.

His wife, however, declares it was the natural result of remorse at the dreadful acts which he committeed in a sudden outburst of unconstrollable fury at the interference of his brothers when he hurried to the bedside of his dying father. The swift sequence of tragic incidents park, who happened to be m the kitchen downstairs, accompanied by the household servants, rushed to the room and wrenched the revolver from the hands of the madman.

When interrogated by the examining magistrate, Henry Huntington admitted the shooting. He declared his acts were an outcome of family troubles and he manifested no repentance for them.

Three doctors today hold out some faint hope for the recovery of Alonzo and Elizabeth. Edith's wound is not serious, Mrs. Huntington never wounded in the arm, and Douglass, treated in their home. Edith, who was wounded in the arm, and Douglass, whose head was grazed by a bullet, are not seriously hurt, and were able to-night to watch over the mother, who retired to bed prostrated by the horror of the events which culminated in the death of her husband.

No direct message from the prisoner has come from the jail except a letter Huntington's wife has made public an account of the things she says her husband told her before he was locked up, in which he declared he had lost his head during words with his brother and had fired wildly and recklessly. Young Mrs. Huntington asserts that there was a complete rupture between Henry and his family on account of the treatment of her by his sisters and that Henry smarted under the refusal of his family to receive her into their home.

ANOTHER DEVELOPMENT.

ANOTHER DEVELOPMENT.

Another development tonight was the statement made by the hotel manager, who claims to have conversed with Henry when the latter visited his wife. He asserts that Huntington told him that his brothers had attacked him seizing his beard and thrusting his ward the corridor, whereupon he philed out his revolver and shot them.

An examining magistrate began an inquiry today and questioned all concerned, but the official finding has not been given out.

Washington, July 29.—Recently in-formation was received by the inter-state commerce commission that cerstate commerce commission that certain western and southwestern railroads were engaged in alleged violations of the rate law by issuing passes to persons not entitled to them under the law. In the case of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railway system, the information was specific, the allegation being that officials of that system were issuing passes to so-called bondsmen.

An order, therefore, has been pro-mulgated by the commission requiring the officials of the system to answer the charges made and to state the ground on which such action is justified. On the receipt of the answer the commission will fix a time for a hearing, at which the facts may be developed.

ORDERS WERE TO SEND SHIPS AT FULL SPEED.

San Francisco, July 29 .- The responsibility of the companies, which, by ironelad schedules, compel their masters of ships to go at a speed that their own conscience tells them is unsafe, was the feature of the Columbia wreck investigation before Capt. Berming-ham today.

Second Officer Agerup's testimony established more clearly than had been done before the fact that captains are compelled to run their ships at full speed along a dangerous coast in foggy weather and in a course navigated by many vessels, coast to go full speed?" asked Capt. Bermingham.

"The captain always slowed up when he heard a steamer ahead," was the answer.

A question as to whether it was necessary to go at full speed in order to make the schedule elicited the statement that there was a certain time allowed for the round trip of coast steamships and that it was necessary to arrive at a certain hour to get in on the time and avoid delay.

"Did the ship never slow up unless there was a steamer ahead?"

"I can't recollect that we ever did. It might be once in a great while, perhaps, especially in very bad weather," said Agerup.

Atty. George A. Knight, counsel for the company, then took the witness and, after getting the statement from Agerup that he had been with Capt. Doran seven years, asked him:

"Did you ever hear the captain say that you must push the steamer ahead at any cost?"

"No, sir," said the witness.

"Did you ever hear him say that he must make a certain time?"

"No, sir," said the captain never gave the order mentioned, Knight made no effort to shake the testimony that dangerous runs were made to keep the vessel on its schedule and that the moral suasion of the company was the reazon for them,

GOV. FOLK DEMANDS ROZZELLE'S RESIGNATION.

Kansas City, Mo., July 29.—Frank F. Rozzelle, police commissioner, was summarily removed this afternoon by order of Gov. Folk. The governor had first requested the commissioner's resignation because of their disagreement over the reappointment of John Hayes as chief of police, who is opposed by the governor, but later he ousted the commissioner from office.

The request of Gov. Folk for the resignation of Commissioner Rozzelle grows out of a fight on Chief of Police John Hayes. Gov. Folk is understood to be dissatisfied with the administration of Hayes.

Mr. Rozzelle said last week he was ready to vote with Mayor Beardsley to reappoint Chief Hayes, but A. E. Gallagher, the third commissioner, asked for delay until today. Rozelle and Gallagher were appointed police commissioners by Gov. Folk two years ago. Kansas City, Mo., July 29.-Frank
