TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS and DISORDERED LIVER.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, a feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work, and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE to MALARIA.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed instantly to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1. Sold everywhere. Office, 44 Murray St., N.Y.

PRICKLY ASH

BITTERS

The majority of the ills of the human body arise from a derangement of the Liver, affecting both the stomach and bowels. In order to effect a cure, it is necessary to remove the cause. Irregular and Sluggish action of the Bowels, Headache, Sickness at the Stomach, Pain in the Back and Loins, etc., indicate that the Liver is at fault, and that nature requires assistance to enable this organ to throw off impurities.

Prickly Ash Bitters are specially compounded for this purpose. They are mild in their action and effective as a cure; are pleasant to the taste and taken easily by both children and adults. Taken according to directions, they are a safe and pleasant cure for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Habitual Costiveness, Diseased Kidneys, etc., etc. As a Blood Purifier they are superior to any other medicine; cleansing the system thoroughly, and imparting new life and energy to the invalid. It is a medicine and not an intoxicating beverage.

EVENING NEWS.

Wednesday, - Nov. 5, 1884.

THE LIGHT OF OTHER DAYS.

When we remember how our fathers were forced to get along somehow without either coal oil or gas, we can not repress a feeling of sympathy and an emotion of wonder as to how they did it, but they seemed to do pretty well with their dipped candles of the vilest, most ill-smelling tallow, because they knew nothing better. Their tallow candles, at first dipped, afterward came to be molded, then candles were made of sperm or wax. At present the use of coal-oil is so nearly universal that no one is compelled to use candles of any description.

One good coal-oil lamp will give as much light as five sperm or seven tallow candles. The oil is worth, on an average, say from 15 to 20 cents a gallon, while tallow candles 100 years ago were sold for 25 cents a pound and the sperm candles for 45 cents; now, candles are sold at 15 to 25 cents a pound and the coal oil will thus be about one-ninth cheaper than the candles. The difference in cost, however, is a trifle when compared with the difference in the cheerfulness of the surroundings produced by the better light. Before the days of cheap light the homes of the farmers were cheerless, dark, uncomfortable; there was no incentive to read when the light was so bad, and no one could afford to buy a dollar book and pay $2 for light to read it with, consequently there was little reading done. Light, cheerful rooms make a happy childhood, and thus the general welfare of the people is improved in no small degree by the character of the light employed in their rooms.

It is a curious fact that though we have the works of some hundreds of ancient authors, there are not to be found in them more than a dozen allusions to their childhood. Childhood had no charms for the youth of ancient times, because the ancients had neither coal oil nor soap, and without these two indispensables childhood is but a mockery. Coal oil and gas have thus doubled the day, while immensely increasing the opportunities for general culture among the people. With either books or light dear, only the wealthy could read. But with both at a nominal figure, and with education universal, the farmer can read and enjoy his reading, being both pleased and profited by it, and also instructed as to the best means of making a better living than he ever did before.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Using Nerve-Stimulants.

"What nerve stimulant will you take to-day?" a clerk in a Chesnut street store asked an exhausted fat man who was sitting on a chair before the soda fountain looking very miserable.

"Same old stuff," responded the fat man, and the clerk poured an effervescing liquid from a bottle into the bottom of a glass and then filled up with soda. The customer quaffed it off and then left the store apparently a little better.

"Look at that," exclaimed a prominent physician in disgust to a Press reporter. "That's the way the American nation trifles with its nerves, and no wonder it suffers from brain and similar troubles. Every day there are fresh nerve stimulants put upon the market and people take them as if they weren't any more dangerous than water. It's as bad as the opium habit. There is a use and abuse of that sort of thing, but most people abuse it. When they are feeling badly, they go and take aromatic spirits of ammonia, bicarbonate of soda, or some new-fangled phosphate. Of course all the stimulants are put forward as foods, but they are not.

"Americans run riot with their nervous systems. They would be doing much better if they took a little more sleep and longer vacations. I don't see why these nerve medicines should be used to keep the brain excited, when, as a matter of fact, the American atmosphere is more stimulating than that of any other country. A man can do more work here without feeling it than he can in Europe. But while it is a land where the brain can go like a steam engine without artificial excitement, it is also a land of strong reactions, and this, perhaps, accounts for one of the most steadily increasing branches of the drug business. My advice to people is not to try and engineer their own nerves, or they will come to grief.—Philadelphia Press.

Charmed by a Boa.

I remember a little bout I had in Africa once with a boa; I shan't forget it in a hurry, and I got my first dash of gray hairs that day. I wonder I didn't get gray as a badger. My teeth were as loose as a string of beads for two weeks. Folks thought I had the old home-made Illinois ague, I shook so whenever anybody sung out 'Boa coming." I was with a party of Englishmen hunting tigers, jaguars and leopards, and after an unsuccessful tramp through jungle and morass we stopped for a cold snack from the hampers. I grew infernally sleepy and lazy afterward, and the party left me to smoke. I had a mind to follow, and then again a mind to take a rest, as the spreading tree made a grateful shade, and I was safe there from prowling beasts, the natives said. Soon I began to have the pleasantest dreams a man ever had, and saw the most gorgeous visions. Talk about hash-heesh and opium smoking; they ain't a patching to my feelings. My head drooped lower, and I felt as if in the seventh heaven. Suddenly I came to myself just as sound as a nut, and knew that I had been magnetized by a boa. I swept my hand across my eyes, and there he was, hanging from a limb near me, his bright, glittering, serious eyes wide open, charming me while making ready to drop on me. Although I saw death yawning for me, I was in a nightmare and couldn't move to save my life. Then I felt with a thrill of unutterable horror that he had begun to wrap himself about me in that last embrace. My limbs grew cold, and one little squeeze made me scream out in agony, My God! Would no one come? Already that strong musky odor made me faint and sick. Another coil half made, when I felt a rude shock, the boa tightened his grip for an instant, then loosened it as his head was violently jerked by the lasso thrown by Capt. Luxbridge, an old tiger-slayer. Bang! bang! went four guns, and the boa lay dead—a monster fourteen feet long and as thick as a young tamarind tree. I wanted to come home, and I did.—Missouri Republican.

The Tragedy of a Terrier.

The following story was told by the owner of the dog to Mr. Wood': niece, then at school at Paris: "M. H. (the owner of Medore, a little Scotch terrier) was obliged to leave Paris for a time, and not being able to take the dog with him, left it in charge of a friend. By some curious chance the friend was called suddenly to St. Petersburg, and not knowing what to do with the little creature took it with him. Both man and dog reached St. Petersburg safely; but shortly after their arrival the dog was lost, and, though every effort was made to recover it, M. H.'s friend was obliged to write and say that Medore was hopelessly lost. About the end of May, some months after the letter had been received, M. H. came as usual to give his lesson. He seemed in great grief, and in broken accents asked to be excused from giving the lesson, as he was incapable of it. "My poor little dog! my poor little dog!" was all that he could say for some time.

At last, being encouraged by his pupil's sympathy, he told her the whole story. For some time a miserable half-starved dog, covered with scars and bruises, had persisted in scraping at his door, and the servant being annoyed at its persistance, kicked the dog down stairs repeatedly. But, as soon as it recovered from its fall, it returned to the door and renewed the scratching. Whenever M. H. entered or left the house the dog kept jumping upon him trying in every way to attract his attention. At last an idea flashed across his mind. Could this disreputable looking animal be by any possible chance the dog which had been lost at St. Petersburg? He fixed his eyes upon it and said, "Medore." The dog gave a piercing cry and fell at his feet. He picked it up, carried it into the house and laid it gently on the sofa. But Medore was dead.—Ex.

Red Cloud's Address.

Red Cloud, the well-known Sioux chief, visited the government school for Indians at Carlisle, Pa., and addressed the school in his own language. A prize of $3 was offered for the best translation of this speech. We give a portion of the successful report, made by Luther Standing-Bear:

"You seem like my grandchildren; and now I went pass through the shops and saw what you can be done. I saw the shoemaker, harnessmaker, tailor, carpenter, tinner, blacksmith, and they all doing well. Here you see I wear a boots which is you make it. I was surprise that the blacksmith doing very good. Also the girls can washing clothes and sewing. Also I went pass through the school-rooms and I saw some of you can write very fast, and read, and I was glad. Now, this is the thing what we send you here for, to learn white men's way. There is two roads, one is good and one is what we call a devil road. Another think is you know, if who do nothing, just put his hand on his back and lie down, so any time not come to in his pocket itself, so you must do something with your hands. Now you must not home-sick any, but you must try to be good and happier."—St Nicholas.

DANGEROUS SUBSTITUTES FOR HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE

Several infetior and dangerous "substitutes" for the genuine "Horsford's Acid Phosphate" are being offered for sale; and we hereby caution the dealers and public against buying or using them, as they will not produce the same effect upon the system as the genuine "Horsford's," and the ingredients in some of them are dangerous to health.

Some of these "substitutes" or imitations are simply Dilute Phosphoric Acid, which interferes with the digestion; while the genuine "Horsford's" not only causes no trouble with the digestive organs, but materially assists in their action.

One preparation that is being offered for sale, by the gallon, contains Meta- or Pyro-Phosphoric Acid, which are declared by the highest authority to be poisonous. The same preparation also contains Chloric Acid, which is a compound of Chlorine. "Horsford's" contains neither of these ingredients.

These "substitutes" are liable to be found at soda fountains, because of their cheapness.
