GREAT BRITAIN.

The funeral of the late Mr. Cobden took place April 7th, at Lavington Church—close to which his country residence was situated. A large number of Members of the House of Commons, and other leading men, were present, and the scene in the country church-yard was solemn and touching. Mr. Bright, who was one of the pallbearers, was most deeply moved.

The Corps Legislatif continued to debate the address, and all the paragraphs up to number eight had been agreed to, all the amendments having been voted down.

The Emperor Napoleon had decided that a marble bust of Mr. Cobden should be placed in the Museum at Marseilles.

BELGIUM.

In the Chamber of Representatives a motion that the Chamber should express regret that the Government had not absolutely refrained from taking part in the Mexican expedition, was lost by a vote of 55 to 57, the Chamber maintaining its vote of the 2d of September last.

RUSSIA.

The British Government having telegraphed to its officials in Russia for information relative to the epidemic in that country, the ambassador at St. Petersburg, in a telegram dated April 5th, says: "The fever is contagious, and in England is called the relapsing or famine fever; also, the remittent or bilious typhoid fever. It was unknown to Russia until eight months ago."

Lord Napier reports from Berlin, on the 5th inst., that an unknown disorder had appeared along the Valley of the Vistula, but the Prussian Government were not aware that it came from St. Petersburg.

A Paris letter says that several medical students who went from France to investigate the epidemic had fallen victims to it.

Berlin, April 6th.—The Plague continues at St. Petersburg. The total number of cases thus far is ten thousand and the deaths two thousand. The cases average one hundred a day. Forty physicians are dead. The Ismail officers' barracks have been converted into a hospital. Precautionary measures are being taken at Moscow, where the food and lodgings of the laboring classes are being inspected by the police. The disease is not cholera, but the Plague. It may be known by dilated pupils of the eye, carbuncles, and pestilential bubo.

NEWS ITEMS.

FLOOD BELOW MONTREAL, C. E.—On the 10th of April, Berthier and the islands near Sorel and the Cheval du Moine were submerged, and on the 12th a high wind with the increased rise of water destroyed many buildings and lives in that region. On L'Isle de Grace 4 women and 11 children were drowned, all but 3 houses were swept away, and the greater part of the animals, grain, &c., were destroyed. On Isle aux Ours several houses, barns, &c., were swept off. On Isle Madame 4 families lost all their property. On the Cheval du Moine 71 houses, barns and other buildings were destroyed, a large number of animals drowned and much grain destroyed. On Isle du Ponds 17 buildings were destroyed. At Berthier 2 or 3 houses were swept away. A subscription had been started at Sorel, to relieve the suffering.

It is curious that the third instance of the succession of a Vice President to the vacant chair of the President is marked, as were the two former instances, by the fact that the vacancy occurs in the very early part of the term of office. President Harrison was inaugurated March 4, 1841, and died April 4 of the same year, one month after his inauguration. President Taylor was inaugurated eight years later, March 4, 1849, and died July 9 of the same year, about four months after entering office. President Lincoln was inaugurated for the second term on March 4, 1865, and was killed April 14, less than two months after the commencement of the term of office.

FORT SUMTER.—On the 14th ult., the identical flag that was lowered at Fort Sumter four years ago, was raised again to the same position, and it now floats where it did, before the rebellion. Henry Ward Beecher made an address on the occasion. Gen. Anderson run the flag up amid shouts and salutes from all the forts in the harbor of Charleston.

THE Emperor of the French is laying out a city where but lately was a fishing village, St. Nazaire by name, near the mouth of the river Loire, which he hopes will rival Liverpool, and draw to France the commerce of all nations. The population of the town has increased from 1,000 in 1857 to 15,000 now. Two lines of railroad connect it with Paris, and the government is now building nine ships of 5,300 tons each, to engage in the Mexican and West India trade.

PERSIA will not, in commercial matters, treat Turkey as well as she treats other powers, and Turkey retaliates. They are both of the Mussulman persuasion, but Turkey is Soomnee, and Persia is Sheah; and these two branches of the Mahometan faith hate one another worse than rival Christian sects hate each other. Not even the chance of making money can bring into good (commercial) relations.

BELOW the falls at Rochester in the Genesee river, an island an acre in extent has been formed by the late flood. The island is formed of flag stones and other debris that was washed over the falls. The doors of several iron safes and the wheels of a street cart have been found on this island.

PHOTOGRAPHY is applied to topography in France with wonderful success. A plan of a city over twelve miles square was made in sixty days by the aid of photography, while it would have taken two years to execute it by triangulation.

WHAT DOES ECONOMY MEAN?—In our use of the word "economy," it means sparing or saving; economy of money means the saving of money, economy of time the sparing of time, and so on. But economy no more means saving money than it means spending money. It means administration of a house—its stewardship; spending or saving, that is, whether money or time, or anything else, to the best possible advantage. In the simplest and best definition of it, economy means the wise management of labor; and it means this mainly in three senses, namely, first, applying your labor rationally; secondly, preserving its produce carefully; and lastly, distributing its produce seasonably.—[Ruskin.]
