

most frequented by people who like "something good," isn't it?
O, I don't know; I have seen you here.

WHERE DUNWODY STOOD.
After this little plausibility Mr. Zane went back to the library.
"When you shot Dunwody where was he?"

"He was standing in the doorway between the sallyport and the stairs had come."

"Where were you standing at that time?"

"In the sallyport room, opposite the entrance where I met you again. I met my last interview with Dunwody when he was gone. I did not know he was there until he made that remark to my wife. I witness and as far as I can make out, the gun with which Dunwody was shot when I turned it shot somewhere else at him, so I was on that Sunday morning."

I don't know that you received a letter about your wife. What did you do?"

"I have not showed it to my wife and her boy, I thought you had a grudge against me so I wanted to keep our home. I thought me out of it."

I don't know.
You consider yourself innocent, do you?"

"Well, really."
Then asked Mr. Zane's cross-examination, and Judge Powers asked some questions on his direct examination.

Judge Powers—Have you ever been in the State of Illinois? When you went there was there not at that time on that Sunday morning?

No, sir.

You testified that you received a letter about your wife. What did you do?"

"I have not showed it to my wife and her boy, I thought you had a grudge against me so I wanted to keep our home. I thought me out of it."

It was nine o'clock.

Asked if he had said anything to Mr. Dunwody's sister regarding the marriage of Henry, witness said that Mrs. Green, his wife's sister, and the wife of the man who was married to Dunwody, at the time he had three quarts of Chayenne tobacco was very rough one. He had to take it off if he wanted to live.

Witness—We asked the witness if Dunwody's position had been changed before Mr. Schlesinger had said, and he said that openly innocent him and Mr. Nichols did. This ended the examination and he left the courtroom.

Mr. Powers—Is it a fact that Dunwody was in the back room waiting for you when you killed him and that you sat him in the back?

Witness—No, sir, emphatically no. I did not shoot him in the back.

Dunwody has his position in mind, and I think the idea of trying to get him when you killed him and that you sat him in the back?

Witness—No, sir, emphatically no. I did not shoot him in the back.

Who told you that it was necessary to make your wife a complete blank on this subject?

Nothing.

Mr. Powers tell you that it is necessary to do what he did to do?

Mr. Powers—Is it a fact that Dunwody was the star witness on frequent occasions. Judge Powers directed the question as to being called upon to testify.

This witness was called to show that he was not the man who was married to Mrs. Henry, witness said that his marriage was near the Dunwody house and he would necessarily see Dunwody passing his store in going to Dunwody's house.

Mr. Zane asked the witness if he had any reason to believe that Dunwody was the star witness on frequent occasions. Judge Powers directed the question as to being called upon to testify.

This witness was called to show that he was not the man who was married to Mrs. Henry, witness said that his marriage was near the Dunwody house and he would necessarily see Dunwody passing his store in going to Dunwody's house.

Mr. Zane asked the witness if he had any reason to believe that Dunwody was the star witness on frequent occasions. Judge Powers directed the question as to being called upon to testify.

This witness was not allowed to testify, but the star of power was admitted to the record.

WITNESS—Cross-examination was denied.

W. T. Dunwody, a brother of the deceased, was called to the stand as a witness in his behalf. He said he had not tried to avoid Mrs. Henry for some time previous to the tragedy, but the defense objected and the objection was sustained.

"All right," announced Mr. Zane, and the jury was instructed to "Wait a minute."

The defendant's counsel had directed him to introduce evidence certain letters which the witness had written to Mrs. Henry and the shooting, but the prosecutor objected.

Mr. Powers stated to the court that he desired to show that his witness had corresponded with Mrs. Henry, and that she had many times walked down past his house, and that he was perfectly aware of the relations between the woman and Dunwody, and that these relations had existed since the summer of 1894.

This witness was not allowed to testify, but the star of power was admitted to the record.

WITNESS—Cross-examination was denied.

W. T. Dunwody, a brother of the deceased, was called to the stand as a witness in his behalf. He said he had not tried to avoid Mrs. Henry for some time previous to the tragedy, but the defense objected and the objection was sustained.

"All right," announced Mr. Zane, and the jury was instructed to "Wait a minute."

The defendant's counsel had directed him to introduce evidence certain letters which the witness had written to Mrs. Henry and the shooting, but the prosecutor objected.

Mr. Powers stated to the court that he desired to show that his witness had corresponded with Mrs. Henry, and that she had many times walked down past his house, and that he was perfectly aware of the relations between the woman and Dunwody, and that these relations had existed since the summer of 1894.

This witness was not allowed to testify, but the star of power was admitted to the record.

WITNESS—Cross-examination was denied.

W. T. Dunwody, a brother of the deceased, was called to the stand as a witness in his behalf. He said he had not tried to avoid Mrs. Henry for some time previous to the tragedy, but the defense objected and the objection was sustained.

"All right," announced Mr. Zane, and the jury was instructed to "Wait a minute."

The defendant's counsel had directed him to introduce evidence certain letters which the witness had written to Mrs. Henry and the shooting, but the prosecutor objected.

Mr. Powers stated to the court that he desired to show that his witness had corresponded with Mrs. Henry, and that she had many times walked down past his house, and that he was perfectly aware of the relations between the woman and Dunwody, and that these relations had existed since the summer of 1894.

This witness was not allowed to testify, but the star of power was admitted to the record.

WITNESS—Cross-examination was denied.

W. T. Dunwody, a brother of the deceased, was called to the stand as a witness in his behalf. He said he had not tried to avoid Mrs. Henry for some time previous to the tragedy, but the defense objected and the objection was sustained.

"All right," announced Mr. Zane, and the jury was instructed to "Wait a minute."

The defendant's counsel had directed him to introduce evidence certain letters which the witness had written to Mrs. Henry and the shooting, but the prosecutor objected.

Mr. Powers stated to the court that he desired to show that his witness had corresponded with Mrs. Henry, and that she had many times walked down past his house, and that he was perfectly aware of the relations between the woman and Dunwody, and that these relations had existed since the summer of 1894.

This witness was not allowed to testify, but the star of power was admitted to the record.

WITNESS—Cross-examination was denied.

At this point both sides rested.

At this point both sides rested.