THE MOTHER'S ALTERED PRAYER.

BY HELEN E. WHITMAN.

The suffering infant slept;
The faithful mother kept Her ceaseless vigil by the couch of pain, And over its form so fair She breathed an anxious prayer:
"Lord, bring my loved one back to health again."

Standing beside the bed,
"Oh, hush," the father said, "Your bitter griefing is not good for thee."
Canst thou not feel to say,
And in thy spirit pray Thy will be done, whatever the end may be?"

Sobbing, she cried, "Ah, no!
I cannot, cannot ever give him up!
Thou, who the Cross did bear, A thorn crown wear, Oh, from my lips remove this bitter cry!"

While thus she prayed and wept, A troubled slumber crept Over her weary spirit for a time, Till even in her dreams To see her child she seems,
And follows him from youth to manhood's prime.

And, oh! her noble boy
That once with hope and joy And pride, had caused her loving heart to swell,
She sees temptation win,
Lead on in ways of sin,
And bring at last upon a felon's cell.

They lead him forth to die, Oh! hear his agonizing cry,
"To him, O Lord, pity and pardon send!"
But a stern voice says: "Nay, Thou for his life didst pray; Behold thy rebellious wish the end!"

She woke; but while she slept A wondrous change had swept—And lo! he in the Savior's arms to dwell,
"Twas then her heart did say—
"Lord, I did blindly pray; My heavenly Father, Thou hast ordered well."

"A MODERN PROPHECY."

THE PSYCHIC PECULIARITIES AND EX-TEMPORAL SPEAKING OF MR.
COLVILLE.

That was a very interesting sketch that the Herald printed of "a modern prophecy," copied from a paper in San Francisco, where he is. It was very true, also. I wonder if the readers generally believe it? I am not particularly attracted to W. J. Colville; nor is he very popular, as a man. He is wholly his psychic character that does the business for him, and on this point he is a phenomenon. Let me add a few words to what has already been said. He is a living proof that there is a royal road to knowledge, if one could only know how to find it. My impression, however, is that Colville is not alone, it is constitutional, born in the truth when he said "there was a crack in everything God had made and the light of heaven shined through the crevice?"

Genius, then, may be one of those "cracks," an ear for music may be, a keen sense of poet may be. If they always produce a Holmes, or a Whitier, would we not be thankful for such cracks? The Daniel Websters, the Theodoros Parkers, the Emersons, acquire their intellectual greatness by study, but they are born with the "raw material" in them, or even study would not have made them what they were. The same woman, such as Colville is, can in no sense be compared with such; they seem to be spiritual forces, but Colville is a tunnel, a conduit. If there be a psychic world, Colville's phenomenon is explained; if not, it is an undiscovered force, of power, but none the less a phenomenal fact. My acquaintance with mediums has made me satisfied with myself. I prefer to be an individual, a source, even of the smallest kind, rather than to be a "passage-way," and hope they will keep open and clear for the point in their variety to the "Gates Ajar."

Now, a word about Colville. When he first appeared in this country, he was the chairman of the spiritual meetings that were held in the Parker Memorial Hall. In engaging speakers, we reserved November for Colville, if he wished to speak in Boston. When he arrived, some of the spiritualists, including myself, called on him. His presence was a very odd and unattractive, his manners odd and unattractive, and somewhat frivolous. We concluded that with such a subject to finish them, and that we would have to supply the rest of the month elsewhere.
He awkwardly cooperated on the platform, and, after the musical preliminaries, asked the audience for a subject, and one was given him, which was treated in a masterly manner. As the article you printed says, he is in no sense an orator, but an inexhaustible fount of knowledge. He made his mark at once, and is now one of the best known and most popular speakers in the spiritualistic field. He is not at all an educated man, he has no schooling to speak of. He seems to grow intelligent personally, however, as time rolls on, so that he has improved as a man.
Probably the passage of the thoughts through him leave their footprints in his organs, so that they are of some benefit to him as well as to others.

Let me relate one incident that occurred in the early part of his appearance here. He held some weekly meetings in his parlour. A Baptist minister, who was once a student in his neighborhood, but had resigned on account of poor health, but more on account of a growing liberal tendency in his mind, went with me on one occasion to these parlor gatherings. My friend was not a spiritualist. The room was well filled on this occasion. Mr.
Colville opened the meeting with a music, singing and playing himself, and was then ready for a subject. My clerical friend had said to me that he would like to have Buddha for a subject. I suppose he had been reading it, but of that I am not certain. As Mr. Colville asked for a subject, I replied, "Buddha." What he said he. I replied, "Buddha." He then addressed them for half or three-quarters of an hour on that subject, and I will venture to say that no writer in the world minister in Boston who could on the spur of the moment, without any preparation, have treated the subject in so historical, logical and condensed a manner. In a word, given no masterly production—without preparation, or superior to it even with. That was the opinion of my clerical friend, who knew from the circumstances of the case that the subject was unexpected.
When Mr. Colville had finished, I asked him what his previous reading or information upon that subject was, and he replied that when it was given he did not know whether Buddha was a plant, an animal or a man. From what I know of Mr. Colville, I think he told the truth.—Boston Herald.

A CAUTION TO TEACHERS.

THINK IT OVER WHILE ENJOYING YOUR VACATION.

Let me warn teachers, especially young ones, against a writer in the Countryman, against attempting to reply to any question by a scholar when they do not really know what answer to give. No one can be prepared for any question that can be asked.
The worst fool can ask more in five minutes than the greatest philosopher can answer in a lifetime. I know the temptation is great to give a reply of some sort, which may be right or may be wrong, for fear the scholars should think us ignorant. But that temptation must be battled with. The real reason why an answer is attempted, ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, is pride, and it is pride which will certainly have a fall, for if the scholar does not know at once that the reply was a guess he will remember it, and confront the teacher with it at some most inopportune time—perhaps quote his own words against him. Then, indeed, will the scholars look down upon the teacher, and probably give him a far lower place in their regard than he really deserves. It is, however, the teacher is generally well informed, and well ahead of them, he will not sink at all in their estimation. If, however, he confesses that he cannot answer some particular question—it is generally one of fact—on the spot if he is honest, Still, he should carefully treasure the question, and set that he obtains the correct answer to it for the very next time he meets his class, and should give them the reply, with any other information about the subject he may think fit. I can speak from a lively experience on this matter. A few days after I took my first and only class, we had a lesson in which some of the mountains of the Holy Land were mentioned, and, as we spoke of them, I was suddenly taken aback with the question, "Teacher, what's the highest mountain in the world?" I confess I had some sort of an idea that it was Chimborazo; but fortunately, my better nature conquered, and I admitted that I did not know, but added that I would tell them in the afternoon. I know that I never forgot the lesson since then that it is Mt. Everest, and I do not think they have forgotten it either. I found that the teacher who asked me knew it, and had I made a guess, would have tripped me in the style.

CORRESPONDENCE.

INTERESTING FROM THE SAN JUAN COUNTRY.

BLUFF, San Juan County,
July 29, 1886.

Editor Deseret News:

CONDITION OF THE CROPS.

Health, peace and a good degree of prosperity prevail in this State.
Our corn, cane and vines look fairly well, but our potatoes are almost a failure, owing, we think, to the very hot weather we have had and the drought that has prevailed for a long time.

We have had a good deal of trouble to keep the water out of our ditch all the fore part of the season, and now, since the river has fallen, we have nearly as much trouble to keep the water in. At Mancos, 90 miles east from this place, the crops do not promise a great yield; the winter wheat will be a fair crop. Spring wheat and oats about half a crop.
Much of it had to be watered up, and the spring being late, the growing season is too short to make a fair crop.
The potato crop up there will be good.

THE TIMBER TYRANNY.

Our grist mill up there is standing idle for want of wheat to grind. The saw mill is being repaired, after which will cut out what logs we have cut and then shut down again, as the government has forbidden the cutting of any more lumber in that section, except for mining purposes. The timber has been referred to the Interior Department for a hearing.

IN SEARCH OF WATER FACILITIES.

We have just returned from a trip to the Blue Mountains, about 40 miles north of Bluff; we went up to survey a canal to take the waters of Johnson and Recapture Creeks on to the White Mesa. Found very little water and the route for the canal such a weary one that we deemed it wisdom to abandon the enterprise for the present.

We found other streams that can be brought out on fine tracks of land and water, and water is in great want of 6,000 or 7,000 acres, with plenty of good pine timber within a few miles. This location will also be nearer market than the White Mesa, but not so warm and China being nearer the mountains, but not too high, we think, to raise fruits.

MILITARY CAMP AND INDIAN AFFAIRS.

We visited, while out, the U. S. military camp at the eastern base of the Blue mountains, where the Montozuma, a small stream that empties into the San Juan, is dammed up, and the camp at present is in charge of Lieut. Stephens, of Fort Douglas.
There is one company of infantry stationed here for the protection of the stock interest and settlers who are trying to settle up this section of country. The Indians have been very quiet this season, no prospect of any disturbance this summer, the first summer for six years without them making a raid on the stockmen and settlers. I think this is owing to the troops being stationed here. There is more security felt here. The military is close at hand. The We have purchased from the Utes, the privilege of running our stock on the Elk Mountains, about 40 miles from here, a very dry summer range with an excellent winter range attached on the south, reaching 40 miles to the San Juan.

We have a small dairy started at the foot of the Elk Mountains, where we are making an excellent article of cheese, which finds a ready market at fair prices.

CONVULSIONS, ETC.

At our late Conference held at Mancos, we had a most excellent time; the Spirit of the Lord was manifest in all of our meetings.

I see by the papers our brethren are still being persecuted and imprisoned for daring to have some religious conventions a little different from the accustomed ones of this anti-Christian age. How long shall this last unhappy persecution continue? May this soon be the condition of all the faithful saints.
