mmittee in its determination to place hallengers at the polls. He left the impression that tomorrow the Mormon voters would take the test oath, and with that all the dire con-oath, and with that all the dire con-equences that would follow either vot-ing or not voting. The Mormon people, he said, had re-ceived their orders how to vote, the bishops all met yesterday and it was all decided to vote the straight Republican ticket, but every vote would be chal-lenged and later taken to the courts for fixed decision. He made many cumulus final decision. He made many cunning-ly laid salhes at the expense of Mor-mon leaders, and depicted the people is ever waring against the govern-ment, addressing them as "My dear Mormon friends," and affected to be-lieve how the Church absolutely con-trolled the political conventions as to bar out even a suggestion of opposition. Curiosity to witness a closing political speech by a man surcharred with ani-mosity and who would probably retire on the morrow from political activity brought many people out. Two thousand three hundred and sev-enty two voters have registered this time in the six precincts of Pocatello, which is less than two years ago by $39 votes. Below is the registration of two years ago as compared with today. has out even a suggestion of opposition

VOTING AT POCATELLO. torious Gambler Challenged But	URGES

Couldn't Stand the Pace. (Special to the "News.")

Pocatello, Ida., Nov. 6 .- By 11 o'clock this morning the election was in full swing, with everything going peaceably.

The weather conditions are bright warm sunshine overhead, with the streets slightly muddy from recent rains. The Mormon votes are freely challenged ip the hope of getting a legal point of law for throwing out the wate of the southeastern counties. Old Jim McConkey, unkempt and un-washed, was the third challenger in the Sixth precinct. Samuel E. Elwell was the agent in the Second precinct, where Joseph E. Corbridge was the first one Joseph E. Corbridge was the first one challenged: he promptly swore in his vote. "Danny" Suffixian, the gambler, acted as challenger in the Fifth pre-cinct here. Ex-Bishop Carl J. Cannon was the first to pass the ordeal, the votes came so fast, however, that "Danny" could not keep pace with the names received. Judge Kelly materially assisted him by holding the well known church goers and asking "Danny," Do you challenge this vote?" Sullivan would look up from his book a moment and recognize the individual in question and veolation answer, "I do." Mr. Kelly would then read the elector's oath which was then sworn to by each elector without exsworn to by each elector without ex-ception. A stranger acted as challen-ger in the Third precinct, Joseph Edg-ley being the first clizen then to swear to his vote. W. R. Kirchoff acted as challenger and challenged first the Mormon judges and then every Mormon present to him. The nearly take it soud known to him. The people take it good naturedly, knowing that it is only a po-litical trick. The sporting element is known to be solid for the anti-Mormon party.

Not all the gamblers voted the "Am-erican" ticket. The reason is plain. # Election Day. Have You Made a Decision!

ELECTION DAY-A day of much meaning to every true and loyal subject of our dear Uncle Sam. For days men have been engaged in friendly, but earnest discussion of the various opinions of the different parties, commonly known as "principle," and today they go forth to the great battle of ballots to determine who, on the morrow, can say, "I told you so," be the result what it may. The ballot is the foundation of the nation; use it-conscientiously.

"The day after" many will stop long enough to reflect that they are short an Overcoat (to say nothing of cash, or hats).

It is then the Gardner Store will be entitled to consider-ation, for here can be found the desired overcoat (or hat) and the saving will be a consideration worth while. Overcoats, $6 to $50; nobbiest hat styles, $2.50 and $3.50.
