NEWS OF THE WEST.

Sensational Robbery Reported to the Sacramento (Cal.) Police.

A WILD MAN IS DISCOVERED.

A Troublesome and Dangerous Role—An Exploded Cartridge's Result.

John Moore had his left hand frightfully mangled a few days ago in Long valley, says the Idaho daily Statesman. He was reloading a cartridge shell and it exploded in his hand. It was found necessary to remove two fingers.

Green River (Wyo.) Star: If Captain Hay, the agent of the Peacedale agency, should carry his idea of putting up a flouring mill at that place into effect, it will prove a serious blow to the farming interests of the Lander valley.

Says the Bonanza (Nevada) Sentinel: Hiram Jackson, formerly a citizen of this place, but now of Salt Lake City, arrived here from the latter place last Saturday. He is here on business connected with the firm of Bennington, Jackson & Co., which, owing to the death of M. H. Petty, requires his presence. His numerous friends were pleased to meet him.

Judge Heed, postmaster at Oakley, Idaho, is reported as here short in his accounts and his bondsmen are being pressed to make the same good to the government. Mr. Heed was well known about Snow City, Almo, Challis and other places in Idaho where he lived, and he was also a resident of Brigham City. He is quite old and was one of the pioneers of Idaho.

The Fremont (Idaho) Jubilee says: Mr. North, of the firm of North & Stone, the cattle kings, of Evanston, Wyo., passed just such of here a few days since with about 700 head of two and three-year-old cattle that they had bought on Weiser and Crane creek. They will ship from Caldwell to their immense stock ranch to Wyoming, which consists of 90,000 acres.

A dispatch states that a wild man has been found on Malheur creek in Oregon. For many days past ranchers have heard strange noises among the willows and the wail of a human being blended with the yelps of coyotes. Last Saturday Lloyd Garrison was at work on Malheur creek when the wild man suddenly broke his appearance and frightened him. He bore a series of yells, and then out of the brush came the man with a scanty rag about his loins, his eyes wild and protruding from their sockets, and his unclothed body covered with shock hair of dark color.

Tacoma, Wash., Aug. 18.—A special to the Ledger from Roslyn says: The 250 negro miners arrived at Roslyn this morning. Of that number 187 are men and the balance women and children. The negroes will work mine No. 7, which turns out two thousand tons of coal per day. If the Roslyn mines are worked to their full capacity, as now seems probable, 1,000 men will be employed. The importation of the negroes cost the company about $25,000. The pay for their expenses and transportation is to be paid out of their wages. The imported men are well dressed and appear to be of a better class than the miners imported in 1889. The white men will cause no trouble.

Dillon (Mont.) Tribune: The chief of police had some difficulty in arresting a hobo one day last week, and had not chief Hamilton gone to the rescue he would have been sadly used. As it was both Haggerty and Hamilton were more or less bruised and scarred up. The brute kicked and struck even after he had the handcuffs on and gave the sheriff a new point in his head that might have proven serious had it not been a glancing blow. After the fellow was lodged in jail he stripped all his clothes off and gathering all the rags he could find about the place, set fire to them. The fire did no damage other than depriving the hobo of clothing. He was locked in a cell naked and there he stays. He is trying to make out that he is crazy, but it will not work.

A sensational robbery was reported to the police at Sacramento, Cal., on Friday last. A tourist named Gustave Braman declares he was robbed of jewelry and money valued at between $7,000 and $10,000 in a house of ill repute operated by Fannie Brown on second street. Braman says he went to the woman's house about 12 o'clock Thursday night, and remained there until noon Friday. He had his money and jewelry in a bill which he upon arising. The next day his money was gone, and so was a woman named Clark. Braman swore to a complaint against Nellie Clark and she was arrested. A search was made of the house and under a carpet was found a diamond stud, $50 in American money, a $100 Guatemalan bill and two 10 franc French pieces of money. The police are still working on the case.

Lighting Chinch Bugs.

From the Kansas station we have had reports of the experiments of Professor Snow of Kansas in killing chinch bugs by scattering diseased bugs about the fields. The same thing was tried in Nebraska last year. The farmers were given to bulletin 34 of the Nebraska station. First, huge quantities of live bugs were secured and placed in breeding cages. The next step was to obtain a supply of dead bugs that had been killed by a disease bearing the name of Sporotrichum globuliferum. This disease was spread among the healthy bugs, and the latter were then all over the state to spread the disease in the fields as it was spread in the breeding cages. The manner of proceeding is about as follows:

The infected bugs were from a station in a tin box. The farmer then takes a shallow wooden box, places in it green wheat or corn and sprinkles in the infected bugs, alive or dead. He then plants with them a pint or so of healthy bugs and covers all up for a day or so. Then half these "starters" are to be scattered over the field where the bugs are thickest, another dose put in the box and soon through the season. At the end of the season some of the bugs are put aside in a tin box to be kept till another season. This, in brief, is the latest method of fighting the chinch bug on large farms. Last season the station distributed the bugs to 154 different farmers, 93 of 94 who gave the matter anything of a trial, 61 reported more or less success.
