

THE FRUITS OF SOUTHERN UTAH.

WE have before us samples of raisins raised at St. George, which were given to President B. Young while there by Elder Joseph E. Johnson, who produced them from vines one and two years old from the cuttings. We had the pleasure of visiting Elder Johnson's garden while we were at St. George, and words cannot express the gratification which we experienced in passing through it, and witnessing what he had accomplished. With the exercise of excellent taste and untiring industry, he has made a little paradise where not more than three years ago there was a dry, barren and apparently worthless piece of land. His collection of flowers and fruits is exceedingly fine, and of great value. Every variety of grape that he could hear of, and that he has thought would be useful, he has imported, and he is experimenting with them, as well as with hybrids of his own production, to learn conclusively which are the kinds best adapted for that country.

The samples of raisins before us are from the Fiber Zagos, the White Muscatel, the White Malaga, and the Canadian Chief, any of which would sell in this, as well as any other market, as an excellent raisin. We understood, while there, that the "Tasting Committee" of St. George had pronounced in favor of the Fiber Zagos raisin in preference to the others; but, while admitting the excellence of this raisin, President Young and several of the company who tasted the samples evinced a preference for the White Malaga raisin. All these are as good dried fruits as can be imported from any country, and yet they have only taken one and two years from the cuttings to produce them.

Here is a source of revenue to the people of our Southern settlements, and this fruit should be produced in sufficient quantities to supply the entire Territory, and its importation from abroad should cease. Already raisins from the California Mission grape are produced to a considerable extent; but this grape does not answer so well, when dried, as the varieties referred to above. The Mission grape makes good wine, and for that purpose will doubtless be widely cultivated; but the other varieties make better raisins and good wine also.

Figs, also, are brought here from abroad and extensively sold. They are a healthy fruit, and their use in our dry climate is attended with excellent effects. They are being produced in the settlements south of the Rim of the Basin, and we see no reason why our market should not be entirely supplied from that source.

The English walnut and the almond, also, grow finely, and are likely to yield heavily in that country. They can be cultivated with but little labor, and their fruit can be readily sold in this and other markets.

The attention which is being paid at the present time to diet by our community will undoubtedly cause all these fruits to be in demand. In fact, until fruit is plentifully produced at home, and placed within the reach of all classes, we can not be entirely successful in bringing about the change in habits of living which is contemplated. Already the production of pork as an article of diet is greatly reduced in this Territory, yet butter has been so dear and difficult to obtain at any price, that recourse has been had to lard for shortening, and this has been mainly imported. Neither lard nor butter answer well for this purpose; but pure olive oil would.

Various opinions are entertained in the southern part of the Territory about the raising of the olive tree, the general impression being that it can be successfully raised. In the garden of Brother John C. Nalle, at Tokerville, we saw an olive tree growing which was very thrifty. Brother Nalle feels sanguine that olive trees will grow in that region, and he is making calculations on propagating them. We have seen them growing and bearing fruit at Los Angeles and vicinity, California, in a climate no more favorable than that of Southern Utah, and we share in the opinion of Bro. Nalle that they can be produced in our settlements. The olive is a hardy tree and very tenacious of life; for, we read, that after the earth had been immersed in the waters of the flood, the dove, which Noah sent forth from the ark, returned bearing an olive leaf plucked off.

If it can be acclimated in our southern settlements, it should receive attention; for there is no people in the world who would consume more olive oil, in proportion to their numbers, than the Latter-day Saints, if they could get the pure article. In the countries where the olive grows the oil is used as generally and in the same way as butter and cream are with us. These trees flourish in the rocky mountains of Palestine, and they are beautiful, long-lived and very fruitful. Among the ancient Jews the consumption of this oil was enormous. The lamps which were kept constantly burning in the Tabernacle and Temple were fed by it, and it was an article of exportation with them. Solomon gave 500,000 gallons of oil yearly to the Tyrian hewers of timber in Lebanon, and, probably, an equal quantity to the King of Tyre himself. The Jews also traded with their oil in the mart of Tyre and sent it to Egypt.

Its cultivation, as well as that of cotton, the raisin grape, the fig and other southern productions, should receive attention from our people who live south of the Rim of the Basin. It strikes us as being the surest and safest way they can adopt of securing their temporal independence and helping forward the great cause which is equally near to the heart of every Latter-day Saint, whether living in the North or South.

Lucy Stone and George W. Curtis addressed the meeting.

The third anniversary of the Universal Peace Society was held today, at Dodsworth Hall; there was less than 100 persons present. A series of resolutions in the interest of peace were read; also thanking Grant for Quaker Indian agents, and a long discussion with regard to the proper method of carrying on the work of settling the Alabama claims and how to avoid war with Spain, France, England &c.; a recess was taken till the afternoon.

A number of vessels at different ports, suspected of being in the Cuban interest, are being closely watched by revenue cutters; assurance has been given that the government will enforce the neutrality laws.

St. Louis, 15.—A movement is on foot to protect the river marines from piracy; it is proposed to procure an iron clad tug with sufficient power to tow from the levee, the largest steamer in case of fire, with a powerful steam engine aboard the tug to ply up and down the harbor. The insurance interests will probably furnish the tug, and the police authorities will man her. It is also proposed to license and register all small boats playing in the harbor, as a preventive of river piracy, which is being carried on extensively.

The House passed a joint resolution by a vote, ayes 62, nays none, two Democrats and one Republican present refusing to vote, that seventy-seven members shall constitute a quorum.

Charleston.—Accounts from all parts of the State represent that the upland cotton crops have been seriously injured by recent cold weather, in many cases replanting will be necessary. The Sea Island crops look promising.

St. Louis.—The assistant U. S. Treasurer here has been authorized to sell importers all the gold they need to pay their duties, at the current New York rates.

J. L. Bowman, a humorous writer to the press, over the signature of "Hans Patrick Le Connor," died at the Sisters' Hospital, today.

New York.—The meeting, intended for the reception of Warren and Costello, the released Fenians, occurred at the Cooper Institute, to-night; neither Warren nor Costello attended, considering that the demonstration partook of a partisan character. Griffin, of the Savage wing of the Fenian brotherhood, presided; speeches were made by Col. Nagle and others.

Boston, 14.—The Legislative investigating committee held a meeting last night; the officers of the Boston, Hartford and Erie Railroad were examined, but nothing was shown of payments to improperly influence the Legislature. Eldridge, President of the road, testified that the last time he had seen the head of the New York and Erie road, Thomas Drew, who has been imprisoned 25 days for contempt of the Senate, visited him at Boston, and said that he proposed to publish certain articles in the New York papers against the management of the Boston, Hartford and Erie roads. Fearing that they might depreciate securities and impede pending negotiations for a loan, Eldridge gave Drew ten thousand dollars from his private purse, he carrying at the time a five or six hundred thousand dollars' worth of stock at his own risk and on his own account.

Eldridge said that Drew said a combined effort had been previously made to break down the securities by telegraphing false sales to New York. Drew will be examined at a future meeting of the committee.

Chicago, 15.—Felton's removal as sub-Treasurer is settled, but the chances are now in favor of the appointment of Eastman or Folsom as his successor, and not Cheesman; Eastman is a personal friend of Grant. FOREIGN.

Washington, D. C., 14.—Admiral Hoff informs the Navy Department that he goes to Key West for a few days for a chance of air for his officers and crew. Everything in Havana is quiet; the Spanish authorities seem confident of suppressing the rebellion this year. The rainy season is approaching, which precludes active operations in the interior. The Cubans at the Havana end of the island are dissatisfied because the revolution has not been conducted according to their views; though they claim that the present inactivity is for the purpose of exercising their forces in the use of arms, preparatory to a campaign at the close of the rainy season. Generals Cespedes and Quesada are acting independently and have their own separate forces and adherents. Half our Consul General, and the commander of the English fleet, think the rebellion is being crushed, and in a few weeks will consist of nothing but irregular bands of outlaws.

It was estimated that over eight thousand people were present, including many officials.

(For the Deseret News.)
ADDRESSED TO SISTER BARBARA NEVE MOSES.
ON THE DEATH OF HER FATHER.

I would not chide the holy tear
That falls so freely from thine eyes,
Upon the consecrated bier
On which, in death, thy parent lies.

Let nature freely have her due,
Her sovereign rights are rights divine;
Then Lady! let me say to you
Let nothing cause thee to repine.

The Saint is simply summoned Home
To dwell beneath his Father's smile;
He has not left thee all alone,
For God is with thee all the while.

Threescore and ten, and some few more,
Thy noble parent journeyed here;
His earthly pilgrimage is o'er—
He revels in a holier sphere.

Methinks I hear his voice to thee,
Speaking in accents full of love—
"My Barbara! weep no more for me,
My Home is with my God above!"

And thou, my child, shall come to me
Within a few short passing years,
Where I am, dearest, thou shalt be,
Then shed no more those bitter tears.

But if thou weep'st, let it be
As falling dew on evening flowers,
As tokens thou dost think of me
When sitting in thy Summer bowers.

And, if permitted, I will still
Be round my dear ones left behind,
Sustaining them, through good and ill,
In body, spirit, heart and mind."

Lady! bow down thy spirit ear
And listen for the "still small voice";
In loving accents it will cheer,
And make thy drooping heart rejoice.

An honest man the poet wrote,
The noblest work of God displays;
Thy father! he did this for thee,
In all his words and all his ways.

This picture was his own—and he
Reward'd it—eternally!

A FEW WORDS

ABOUT
SEWING MACHINES.

SOME time ago D. O. CALDER was offered the Agency for the sale of the Wheeler & Wilson, Grover & Baker, and other first-class Sewing Machines; but owing to the conflicting testimony of persons who were acquainted with the character of the different Machines, was unable to decide which was the best, or finally accepted. When in New York last season, he (in company with H. B. Clawson), visited the famous "large" business in SEWING EXCHANGE, ING, RENTING and REPAIRING all kinds of Sewing Machines, and who had no special interest whatever in the sale of any particular Machine. They informed him that the

HOWE MACHINE

Was in every respect the best Sewing Machine in the market; that, during the many years of their business, they never had a HOWE Machine returned to them—that their customers had exchanged nearly all other Machines for the HOWE—that, if they were compelled to come their sales to the Machines of that maker, that one would be HOWE. The evidence from disinterested parties of the

SUPERIORITY

OF THE
Howe Machine

Was so satisfactory to himself, H. B. Clawson, Wm. C. Staines, and others who wished to purchase Sewing Machines, that they decided to purchase and accepted the AGENCY FOR THIS TERRITORY.

We are now prepared to receive orders for those Machines for Family or Manufacturers' use at

MANUFACTURER'S PRICES AND FREIGHT.

Orders can be left at the Store of Clyde Brothers, Salt Lake City, where descriptive Price Lists can be obtained, or at our office in Ogden.
