BELLEVILLE, Ont., 13.—The forest fires are raging. Vast quantities of property have been destroyed.

Father and Son.

"If you wish to train up your child in the way he should go, just skirmish ahead on that line yourself," said Josh Billings, and if he was not addressing fathers or thinking of boys he ought to have been.

The divines followed in a similar strain and ended with the same exhortation, and all the brethren settled more comfortably in their seats, and all the sisters bowed their heads with meek faces, as if sweetly taking up the heavenly burden thus flatteringly laid upon their frail shoulders.

Because some mothers, blessed with mighty faith and powerful will, have borne their sons triumphantly over the quicksands of youthful temptations and planted their feet firmly on the pleasant upland of righteous manhood, shall it be demanded of every frail woman to whom God has given a son, that she do the same?

What weight has a mother's word when weighed against a father's example? The mother says, "My son, do not smoke; it is bad for your health, bad for the purse, bad for the morals, and the pleasure it affords is trifling compared to the evil it works."

"What does mother know about smoking?" reasons the boys; "she never smokes; father smokes, and I am going to, too."

"Don't spend your evenings about the bar-room and village store," pleads the troubled mother; "the conversation there is not such as I wish you to listen to."

"What does mother know about bar-rooms?" questions the boy; "she is at home rocking the baby or darning stockings; father is there, and I am going."

One out-spoken boy said: "I like my mother well enough, but I think father is a great deal smarter," and he expressed the feeling of the average boy when he enters his teens.

"I'll take what father takes," said the boy at the hotel dinner-table, and boys are taking what their fathers take all the world over.

A father and son were clambering up the rough, steep sides of a mountain, when the father paused to decide which of the many paths to take; the boy said: "Be sure to choose a good path, father for I am coming right behind you."

Fathers, upon the hillside of life, be sure you choose a good path, for your sons are just behind, and almost certain to follow in your footsteps.

If the bewitching voice of pleasure entices you into the by-paths of self-indulgence and sin, remember that where you trip he will stumble, and the same foul mire that soils your garment will engulf him. But if you choose to walk the pleasant highways of temperance, virtue and manliness, he shall keep even step with you, and at last shall dwell in peace at your side.

How Milk Should Be Taken.

Again, milk is a food that should not be taken in copious draughts like beer, or other fluids which differ from it chemically. If we consider the use of milk in infancy, each small mouthful is secured by effort, and slowly presented to the gastric mucous surface for the primal digestive stages.

not oppressed with a lump of half-coagulated milk. The same principle should be regarded in the case of the adult. Milk should be slowly taken in mouthfuls, at short intervals, and thus it is rightly dealt with by the gastric juice.

Milk is insufficiently used in making simple puddings of such farinaceous food as rice, tapioca, and sago. Distaste for these is engendered very often, I believe, because the milk is tainted in making them, or poor, skimmed milk is used.
