It may go up to 70 or even 75 cents, but it won't stay there. The difference between 47 and 65 has already been sufficient to bring many new millions to the mining industry of this state. Our producers have come to believe that it will not sink below 60 unless the mar-kets shall be flooded from new sources, of which the flooded from new sources, of which there is no prospect at all. It is a fact that neither Colorado nor any other western mining field has any great silver mines, like the old Comstock, the Mollie Gibson of Aspen or the Carbonate bonanzas of Leadville. About all the white metal produced in this state comes from the pursuit of gold mining. In all districts save Cripple Creek, gold, silver and lead with a certain per cent of copper are inter-mixed with the mineral extracted. We cannot (with the exception noted) mine gold in this state without producing the associated metals. Now here is a matter to which very little attention has been given in con-nection with sliver mining. The differnection with silver mining. The differ-ence between silver at 65 cents and one dollar per ounce is more than covered by the present value of zinc. When the white metal declined below 50 cents an ounce zinc, when then had no commer-cial value, came in as a belper. The value of this metal to Colorado this year will not be far short of $5,000,000. In Leadville and in several other of our mining districts, notably Rico and the San Juan, if it were not for the ad-vanced price of zinc silver mining would be as difficult and harassing as it was in 1897-8. That the government purchases will

That the government purchases will be of great assistance to the industry at large while they continue, is unquestionable, because it will hold the price on a profitable plane even though there he no material advance beyond prese quotations. One thing is certainwon't decline, which to the producer is a comforting assurance. So long as he can get fair prices for his silver, lead and zine he can make money, enlarge the scope of development and live on something better than sowbelly and bolled beans. Simon Guggenheim is a candidate for the United States senate. Smelting charges have been reduced and the price of lead advanced. Glory

Both he and Cole are more pleased with the showing on their prop-erties and both were surprised at the xtent of the surface showings of the district.

Like all Utah men, they are used to seeing big bodies of ore, but Ramsey surprised even these men. From every viewpoint there can be but one prophecy, and that is that the stocks will continue to advance in value until a much higher level is reached, and this August flurry can be construed only as a forerunner of what is to come during the fall and winter, i. M. Sullivan, of the L. M. Sullivan Trust company, of Goldfield, when asked to account for the present bull-ish tendency of the market, said; "It is very easy to ascribe a reason for the present action. In fact, it would be much more difficult to find a theory which would fit the conditions were they reversed. During the days im-mediately preceding the San Francisco disaster, the market was strongly huoyant, and while a temporary de-pression was looked for in midsummer hat time was far in advance and the op of the market had not been reached. When the catastrophe came, all the world stopped, stood still, and awaited the outcome. Then the time came when the banks closed—when money was tied up. Holders of futures could not take them up, and the result was a slaughter in Nevada securities, and the slump was general. During these last months, however, the intrinsic worth of the properties represented by these stocks have through further de-velopment and rich finds all over the state, steadily advanced, so that to the casual observer it must be patent that as soon as the insurance losses were paid there must be a strong reaction owner of the Doherty group situated two miles west of town, is prospecting its claims to ascertain the best place n which to reach somewhere near heir intrinsic worth the entire list must advance from 50 to 80 per cent. The difference is in the cost of production, transportation and treat-ment, supplemented by better milling. Since the stabilizing of aliver buildon. Since the stabilizing of silver builton took place about two years ago mainly through the action of the Mexican government, the price has advanced from 41 cents per fine nunce to 57 and 68 cents.
