WILL VOTE AGAIN FOR BOND ISSUE

New High School Proposition to Be Decided July 10, For $75,000.

EXPLOSION OF A GAS TANK

Alma Wagstaff Suffers a Broken Leg Narrow Escape of Others-Fire at Residence of J. T. Hurst.

Ogden, June 20.-The pecple of Ogden will be given another chance on July 10 to vote upon the proposition of bonding the city for $75,000 for the purpose of building another high school. This is the conclusion reached by the board of education at its regular meeting held last night.

This action is taken again after strong pressure had been brought to bear by the Civic Improvement league, the Chamber of Commerce, the Weber club and the city council, as well as a number of the heavy taxpayers.

The gift to the city of Mr, and Mrs. Fred J. Kiesel of a $25,000 lot upon which to erect a high school was the means of urging the board of education to take immediate action for the resubmital of the question of bonds to aubmital of the question of bonds to the citizens and taxpayers.

The first proposition to bond the city for $90,000 was submitted to the taxpayers in January. But owing to the fact that conditions were misrepresented to the people by a certain class of people, particularly one or two land agents who only hold the land of eastern capitalists, the bond issue was voted down by a small majority. But since the recent action has been taken it is believed that the question will carry when it is submitted to the people on July 10.

Kaysville, Pavis Co., June 19.—The city-council last Monday night rejected the numerously signed petitions of the citizens of Kaysville for the ruising of the city liquor license from $600 to $1,200 per year, thus showing again their contempt for the wishes of a majority of the citizens of the town, among them the heaviest taxpayers. A rather heated discussion followed the presenting of the politions. Leading citizens appeared before the council and urged favorable action, but all efforts were vain. Arrangements are being made for a grand colebration here July 4. Prizes will be offered for races, games, and contests of all kinds. Winter Quarters is an ideal place for a large crowd to celebrate and have a good time. It far surpasses any other place in these hills east of the valley. It is basin-shape, about 200 yards across the bottom, which is practically level and is flanked by gently sloping hill-sides, heavily shaded by trees where thousands of people may sit or recline in a bed of grass and most fragrant wild flowers, enjoying the cool and healthful mountain breezes and watching the sports in the arean below.

Cardston, Alberta, Canada, June 14.—
Seven inches of rainfall is the record for May. Another seven inches has fallen since the first of this month. The results can easily be guessed. Cardston has had a repetition of the exciting times experienced in 1902, when the floods came in May and July of that year. Not nearly so much damage was caused this time because people
were better prepared.

Several people have lost their homes in this year's flood. The old Ramsbottom pleze went first, then the Cook home, built and first owned by the late W. T. Rose, slid into the raging torrent and was soon a wreck. The foot bridges at various points along the creek were soon cleared away and the traffic bridge on the main street had a very close call. The water mains under the old creek bed were washed out and carried away; electric light and telephone poles and wires were mixed up promiserously. Lumber, play poulup promiscoously. A rollcall at the first meeting in Sat Lake, Boxelder had from 20 to 28 representatives, are no lives have been seriously endengered.

The saddest event in all the excitement was the loss of the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Ephraim Harker, which died just when the family were compelled to leave their beautiful home because of the floods around it. Word reached town later that the east half of the Kimball bridge dropped into the river and was carried half a mile down the current.
