riably respected those rights? Not by any means. On the contrary some of the judges have premeditatedly, a deliberately, purposely, carefully, and persistently violated and often utterly ignored them, yea, have done much more-have sedulously endeavored to have honorable and generally believed innocent citizens convicted on charges, made sometimes by perjurers, of infamous crimes. Balked in the consummation of these schemes, the cry has arisen that it is impossible to administer the laws in Utah without stringent special legislation by Congress, and the bills cut and dried for Congress to operate upon in this connection are almost invariably so cruel and tyrannical as to be subversive of the ruling principles of American republicanism, and destructive of the liberties of the people of the United
