

LOCAL AND OTHER MATTERS.

FROM WEDNESDAY'S DAILY, SEPTEMBER 1.

Mrs. Ellis Cadey, 169 Gillingham Road, New Brompton, Kent, England, is very desirous of learning the whereabouts of her uncle, William Batley, or of any member of his family, who emigrated to Utah about twelve years ago.

Intermountain papers, please copy.

A little son of Abraham Smith of Smithfield was seriously injured Saturday by having a piece of wood run into his groin while playing on a board. A boy named Alexander Smith of Logan was injured on the same day by being thrown from a horse. His face and arm were badly bruised. Drs. Ormsby and Ormsby furnished the necessary medical assistance.

In 1849, whereabouts, my uncles, Samuel and Thomas Harrington, left Ontario county, N. Y., to go west. They have families. They have never been heard of since. Their father, Isaac Harrington, had Samuel, Thomas, Isaac, Calvin, William and Edwin, besides several daughters, none of whom except my father, Isaac, I ever saw.

Will you request the Harringtons of Utah, Idaho, and the West generally, to send me their names, addresses and family Bible records, with such other family history as they can? I refer to the New York and New England Harringtons, not to those who came from the Southern branches, i.e., the Irish Harringtons, of whom there are a great many in this country. I am trying to get material for a family genealogical chart of the New England and New York Harringtons, and data of any kind concerning them will be greatly appreciated by me, and made good use of.

CLARKE WILLETS HARRINGTON.

The Sunday School Union held in this city Saturday and Sunday was a great success. Saturday morning there were addresses by Superintendents Ormsby, George Goddard and Elders Andreas Pederson, Ephraim Jensen, W. H. Apperley, Richard Godfrey of Clarkston, J. Z. Stewart, Jr., Samuel Nelson of Smithfield, and John Thomas.

Saturday afternoon there was a duet from the Hyde Park school, addresses by Superintendents Liljenquist of Hyrum, George Reynolds of Salt Lake, W. G. Reese and George Goddard, and an exercise by a class from the Hyrum school.

Sunday morning there were addresses by the superintendent of the Lewiston school, Superintendent Jessop of the Millville school, Elders Samuel Milton and George W. Thatcher Jr., and Superintendent Reynolds, and an exercise by a class from the Mt. Sterling school.

Sunday afternoon the Tabernacle was crowded to its utmost capacity. The opening prayer was offered by Elder Lewis Cordon, and the Sacrament was administered by the Priesthood of the Seventh ward. President Fjelsted of the Seventies' quorum, Elder Reynolds of the general superintendency and President Orson Smith of the Cache Stake spoke at length on the necessity of an effort to bring the young men into the Sunday schools in larger numbers.

Superintendent Ormsby delivered a brief but earnest address, giving teachers and parents excellent instruction. A beautiful quartette was also rendered during the afternoon by members of the Providence school, and an extremely well rendered exercise was presented by Hattie Smith's primary class of the Fourth ward Sunday school. The authorities of the Sunday, local and general, were sustained.

During the afternoon the announcement was made that Elder B. H. Roberts would deliver a lecture in the evening on the "Apostasy of the Church," and needles to say the large tabernacle was again thronged for the occasion.

Elder Roberts was at his best, and delivered a powerful address. He first explained the Catholic position, then Protestant position and lastly the Latter-day Saints' position with regard to their respective authorities for administering the ordinances of heaven. He then quoted numerous passages of Scripture to prove that the Christian church became extinct after the death of the Savior. The eloquent gentleman marshaled his facts before the audience in strong array, and constructed an unassailable position on the question.

Tuesday evening there will be a free concert in the tabernacle, given by the missionary quartet.

FROM THURSDAY'S DAILY, SEPTEMBER 2.

Ogden Standard: A party of twenty-five people, hardworking business men and farmers from western Iowa, are in Ogden. They have been looking over the farm lands in northern Utah and southern Idaho, with a view to settlement, and are now on their return trip.

The party is in charge of R. L. Armstrong, T. A. Harris and the Romans brothers, and are as follows: Messrs. Schrader, Parker, Theodore Ivins, Chas. Parker, H. Murray, Henry Luman, C. E. Layne, Adolph Peters, D. G. Platt, and wife and family, Henry Elfert, W. W. Zane, Philip Beechell, Herman Rush, John Nohrs, Henry Watzi, D. Beck, Joseph and William Squibbs, William Peters, Lou Perrin and Jas. Baumeister. They spent yesterday at Salt Lake and last evening arrived in Ogden. They will make the trip up the Royal Gorge this morning, after which they will go to their eastern homes over the Union Pacific. All the members of the party are well pleased with the Utah land and prospects, and expressed great surprise and appreciation of Ogden and her appearance as a city.

By an accident which occurred in the Homestake mine at Tintic yesterday afternoon, James Taylor met instant death, while Robert Beasley was quite seriously injured.

It appears that the two men were working just off the shaft on the 200-foot level, engaged in putting in a pipe for the pump. To do this they had to lower two half-inch pipes eighteen feet long which were fastened to a half-inch rope. In descending, the pipes caught on the side of the shaft and a sudden pull at the rope caused it to break and hurl the pipes downward at a terrific rate of speed. One of them struck Mr. Taylor in the back of the neck, going clear through his body and killing him instantly, while the other piece struck Mr. Beasley, causing severe cuts about the head and abdomen and breaking the thigh in two places.

A coroner's inquest held over the body of Taylor last evening resulted in a verdict charging the company with criminal negligence. The dead man was young and well liked in the district and has a family residing at Mammoth.

Beasley, the injured man, is a brother-in-law of Frank Harris, receiver of the land office.

Vineland (New Jersey), Journal: The board of trade was greatly pleased last evening to see such a representative class fill the Baker house parlors to hear Mr. James Devine's talk on Utah and its people. The speaker proved to be very conversant with his subject and grew quite eloquent when dwelling on the industry and consequent prosperity of the great State. He covered the ground from the time Brigham Young first stepped into the Salt Lake valley down to the present day, giving short sketches of the political aspect at different times and the social organizations as well. To the Mormons he paid a glowing tribute for honesty, industry and enterprise, and recited how they had made a fertile country out of a barren waste; had made trees grow where none grew before and had reared temples and cities in fifty years second to none in the United States. He said the Mormon had been pictured as a bad man, when in fact he was for the most part of New England stock and had a regard for integrity worthy of emulation by many of his traduces. Not all believe in polygamy, and contrary to the general belief, only a comparative few had more than one wife. The law has done away with polygamy and the Mormons have accipiesced. The speaker then went on to give a little history of the mining interests and the natural resources of the country. Mr. Devine evidently takes great pride in his new home, but still has a warm spot in his heart for Vineland, the scene of his childhood. He made a very pleasing appearance before his audience and held their attention to the end. After the address his many friends crowded around him and extended congratulations. Miss Constantine sang two beautiful solos and Rev. A. Roeder and Miss Elsa gave two four-hand pieces on the piano.

FROM FRIDAY'S DAILY, SEPTEMBER 3.

The headquarters of the California mission has been changed to 915 Golden Gate Ave., San Francisco, Cal.

Ogden Standard: The fire department was called out to the Broom hotel again yesterday.

A blaze started beneath the flooring of the kitchen on which sits the cooking stove. The department responded quickly and soon extinguished the fire but found some difficulty in so doing, owing to the thick flooring of the kitchen. The damage was slight.

Ogden Standard: About 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning Emma Smith, wife of the late Harvey W. Smith, the ex-associate justice of the Supreme Court of Utah Territory, passed away at her residence, No. 648 Twenty-fourth street. Mrs. Smith had been ailing for some time and a physician has constantly attended her. It was thought for a short time that she would entirely recover, but the angel of death appeared to bear her soul across the river.

Mrs. Smith was a native of Louisiana and was 30 years of age. She leaves a mother, a sister and two brothers to mourn her death, all of whom were at her bedside when she passed away.

The time of the funeral will be announced later.

A stranger came into the city afoot yesterday after having competed over 11,000 miles of his walk around the world. The remarkable pedestrian is Konstantine von Rengarten, a native of Riga, Russia, and he is engaged in correspondence with Russian and German journals. He is gathering data also for a book which he will write on his return home.

Three years and one week ago the traveler wandered from his home and
