

DESERET EVENING NEWS.

TRUTH AND LIBERTY

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH

TERRITORY, FRIDAY EVENING, AUGUST 16, 1878.

NO. 223.

NO. 223.

Pioneer Paper of the Rocky Mountain Region.

THE EVENING NEWS.
[Published every evening except Sunday.]

One Copy, one year, $10.00
Six months, $5.00
Three months, $2.50

THE DESERET NEWS.
SEMI-WEEKLY.
[Published every Tuesday and Saturday.]

Terms for the Semi-Weekly:
One Copy, one year, $5.00
Six months, $2.50
Three months, $1.25

DESERET NEWS: WEEKLY.
[Published every Wednesday.]

Terms for the Weekly:
One Copy, one year, $5.00
Six months, $2.50
Three months, $1.25

OFFICE:—Cor. South and East Temple-sts.

ANGUS M. CANNON, General Business Agent.

THE NEWS BOOK AND JOB PRINTING OFFICE.

Has superior facilities for the execution of all kinds of book and job printing.

BOOK BINDING AND PAPER RULING

GEORGE Q. CANNON, EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

22 OUR SUBSCRIBERS in the country can at any time ascertain the date on which their subscription expires by referring to the numbers attached to their name on their copy.

1-4-5 means first, fourth, month, third year, or April 1st, 1873, 15-7-2 means July 15, 1872, &c., &c.

Those names having no numbers close with the end of the volume.

Subscribers understanding this will be able to renew their subscriptions prior to that time so that their papers may continue without interruption.

SPECIAL TO THE DESERET NEWS, By Telegraph.

PER WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH LINE.

EASTERN DISPATCHES.

NEW YORK, 15.—The Lamar, from Stettin, arrived to-day with a crew of ten, six of whom died prior to August 7, since which the vessel has been drifting along the coast from Hatteras with one seaman and the cook sick of yellow fever. She was taken in with off Sandy Hook Friday by the pilot cutter and towed into lower quarantine. The passage was one of horror.

Alderman McMullen has telegraphed Mace's friends in this city this afternoon, suggesting New Orleans as the place for the fight. Answer was made that the proposition was to meet at Erie, Pa., and go to Canada to fight. McMullen replied that he would name the time and place for the fight tonight.

During the forenoon to-day, the members of the Cabinet then in town—Belknap, Creswell and Williams—visited President Grant at the White House in relation to the Ku Klux convicts at Albany penitentiary. The report of Colonel Whately in the case having been read to the President, he directed a pardon to be made out in behalf of those specially recommended for executive clemency. They were four in number, all old men, and one or two in poor health. The President will consider the suggestions of Colonel Whately relative to eighteen others now in the Albany penitentiary.

In the afternoon, in conversation with friends on political topics, he expressed himself satisfied with the situation. Some one asked about the alleged slight to Fred Douglas. He replied that if Douglas did not complain because he did not feel that he was not invited to him to dinner he did not see why Sumner should exhibit much anxiety, if not indignation on the subject. The simple fact was that the President's personal relations with his secretaries were being called to mind by his report he invited them to dine with him. Douglas was not being with the commissioners, he did not at the time of his report of the others who accompanied the expedition, but if Siegel and Douglas had been with the commissioners they would have been included in the invitation to dinner, which was informal and private, having no public or official significance whatever. The President expressed surprise that so much should be said about an immaterial matter, one that merely concerned his own household. The President remarked that no public business is neglected by his absence from Washington as he attended to it at Long Branch. His coming back to Washington to-day was not absolutely necessary for that purpose. The conversation turning on the remark of Sumner to the effect that Greeley is a better friend to the black man than Grant, the President said he never neglected to be as he had repeatedly said, an original abolitionist, but he had favored emancipation as a war measure. When this was secured he thought the ballot should be conferred to make the Ku Klux words to place those who had been liberated in the full possession of the rights of freemen. His views, however, on the subject of slavery were well known, expressed in letters to Washington and others, and extensively published, hence this was not now a matter of dispute. In the course of conversation he said, that while the President should be in accord with the leading principles of the party that elected him, it was essential that he should enforce the laws which were enacted and administered the government, not in the interest of party, but in the interest of the entire country. While he had no unkind words to place concerning Senator Sumner, he was perfectly willing to place his acts against Sumner's words, and in this connection he said Sumner did not show himself such a good friend to the black man as he professed to be when he was not willing to have the civil rights bill, however, was passed during the absence of Sumner, and as would be seen by his surprise, it would be seen by the Congressional Globe Sumner did not vote at all on the joint resolution recommending the ratification of the 15th amendment to the constitution by any State on so count of race, color or previous condition of servitude, and congress invested with the power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation. Sumner, the President said, dodged a vote on the joint resolution. A cable message will be held to-morrow, at which Belknap, Creswell, Williams and Delano will be present, the last named gentleman having returned from Ohio. The President will leave to-morrow for Long Branch.

CHICAGO, 15.—A very large meeting of colored citizens was held to-night in Greenwood hall, and passed resolutions acknowledging the wrongs of the colored race by Sumner, but declaring they cannot follow his advice to support the party that has always been their enemy; and that they will unitedly support Grant and Wilson.

CINCINNATI, 15.—McVicker's new theatre was opened to-night. It is one of the most commodious in the west, and the first place of amusement opened in the burnt district.

NEW YORK, 15.—The debate between Wm. M. Saunders and Rev. H. H. Garnett, on the presidential question, occurred to-night at Cooper institute, before a large audience of white and colored. John J. Smith, colored, presided. The colored people present were largely in favor of Grant. Saunders commenced the discussion in favor of Greeley, and said Horace had been thirty years a Republican, a life-long advocate of freedom for every race. The Cincinnati platform had a plank in favor of equal rights, while the Philadelphia party adopted Grant. Saunders was frequently interrupted by laughter, hisses and hootings.

Garnett, speaking in favor of the re-election of Grant, said it required a great deal of brass for an orator to unite black men to a party who murdered their children and hung them to lamp posts. He said a million black voters were satisfied with Grant's administration for the past four years, and would re-elect him. Garnett's remarks were received with great applause by the colored portion of the audience. Saunders rose to reply, when a scene of great confusion occurred, hundreds of colored people leaving the hall. Saunders continued shouting that the top of his voice, denouncing Garnett in angry terms. The meeting broke up in great uproar.

CANADA.

TORONTO, 15.—Ft. Garry dispatches state that the Indians at Portage la Prairie refuse their annuities as provided by the treaty of last year, and demand better terms, and declare if they are not granted they will stop the survey.

EUROPEAN.

LONDON, 15.—The strike of agricultural labor for higher wages continues in Oxfordshire. The government have placed a number of soldiers at the disposal of the farmers and the crops which were in danger are now being harvested. The farmers demand a higher price for their produce, and have protested against this proceeding of the authorities.

The Paris correspondent of the "Standard," says the German government has announced to Thiers its intention to remain in possession of Belfort though it is willing to make compensatory amends to France.

Value of Bees in Horticulture.

We are glad to record the results of some actual experiments by German professors, in relation to the use of the bee in horticulture. Usually there has been an intense prejudice against the poor bees, but at the late General Convention, held at Stuttgart, in Württemberg, 1858, the subject of the honey yielding crops being under discussion, the celebrated pomologist, Prof. Lucas, one of the directors of the Hohenheim Institute, alluding to the prejudice, went on to say:

"Of more importance, however, is the improved management of our fruit trees. Here the interest of the horticulturist and the bee keeper combine in a parallel. A judicious pruning of our fruit trees will cause them to blossom more freely and yield honey more plentifully. I would urge attention to this on those particularly who are both fruit growers and bee-keepers. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in due time to have remunerative crops. Time passed, and the lady died, leaving the house and its contents to her daughter. A careful and observant bee keeper, at Potsdam, writes to me that his trees yield decidedly larger crops since he has established an apiary in his orchard, and that annual crop is now more and more certain than before, though his trees had always received due attention."

"Some years ago, a wealthy lady in Germany established a green house at considerable cost, and stocked it with a great variety of choice native and exotic fruit trees—expecting in