

BREVITIES.

Three thousand families have been made penniless by the Rio Grande hurricane.

Six hours was all the time a Nevada man found necessary to get drunk, kill a friend, and be hanged to a convenient tree.

Rabbi Joshua once met a boy who carried something in a covered vessel. "My boy," said the Rabbi, "what have you in your covered vessel?" "If it was intended for you to know," replied the boy "it would not be covered."

In the town of S—there was a shoemaker, who at one time officiated as a preacher. He always wrote the notices himself, in order to save the expenses of printing. Here is one of them: "There will be preaching in the pines this Sunday afternoon on the subject, 'All who do not believe will be damned at 3 o'clock.'"

Much alarm was created in London a short time since by a report that an underground railroad, which is one of the great arteries of traffic in the metropolis, was beset with noxious and explosive gases. At an inquest held in the city, October 30, on the body of a young girl who had died suddenly in one of the carriages on the line, scientific evidence was produced to prove that the atmosphere in the tunnels was quite innocuous.

Voltaire said: "The more married men you have, the fewer crimes there will be. Marriage renders a man more virtuous and more wise. An unmarried man is but half of a perfect being, and it requires the other half to make things right; and it cannot be expected that in this imperfect state he can keep the straight path of rectitude any more than a boat with one oar, or a bird with one wing can keep a straight course. In nine cases out of ten, where married men become drunkards, or where they commit crimes against the peace of the community, the foundation of these acts was laid while in a single state, or where the wife, as is sometimes the case, an unsuitable match. Marriage changes the current of a man's feelings, and gives him a center for his thoughts, his affections and his acts. Here is a home for the entire man, and the counsel, the affections, the example and the interest of his 'better half' keep him from erratic courses, and from falling into a thousand temptations to which he otherwise would be exposed. Therefore, the friend to marriage is the friend to society and to his country."
