

THIRD DISTRICT COURT.

Chief Justice Zane Dissolves More Matrimonial Bonds.

THE CASES OF EXTREME CRUELTY.

Judge Barth Dissolves Mrs. Malquist's Marriages—Short Orders in Both Chambers.

The principal feature in Judge Zane's court at this morning's session came under the heading of divorce, the remainder of the business consisting of the ordinary run of Saturday motions and the disposal of informal matters. In the second court, presided over by Judge Barth, there was nothing of any consequence done up to 11 o'clock, at which time his Honor left the bench for the day.

THE "PHANTOM" OF HIS CHILDHOOD.

Judge Barth was called for Mrs. Katherine, a well-known lady, who, pined for a divorce from her husband, Benjamin, on the grounds of extreme cruelty and failure to provide.

The story as told by the plaintiff on the witness stand is an exceptional one, and showed the defendant to be a man of peculiarly brutal tendencies. According to Mrs. Barth's statement, the parties were married in Louisville, Kentucky, in the year 1855, thence for the last seven years, the defendant has not provided for his wife, and she has been obliged to support herself and the family. On one occasion, in fact, he hanged their little girls by the neck with a rope, until she thought they would never again "come back." This seemed to be a favorite pastime with him. He had shoved her down and pushed her, although he had never actually struck her, but his language was described as most coarse and profane. He had rolled this out towards his wife both in public and private. The defendant is a miner, and an able-bodied man, and said the plaintiff, "though he doesn't drink to excess, he keeps his company."

The Judge was in a sober at the time of this statement.

Witness said that he was not drunk, and, in another question, stated that she supported herself by keeping a boarding house.

A married daughter of the parties gave corroborative evidence.

Judge Barth asked the wife to show to the court the evidence in reference to the hanging with a rope.

Witness said no, but the youngest daughter of the parties was called. Her father was a very rough man.

Judge Zane—Take your dearest. Noimony was taken for the defendant, it appears, is now living in California.

ANOTHER DECEIT.

Don Felt (represented by Hon. F. K. Heber) is a woman of about fifty years of age, and a divorce from her husband, James Felt, on account of cruelty.

The parties were married in this city in December, 1875, and were residing in Tooe County. For more than ten years past, plaintiff said, her husband had treated her cruelly, her property, and she was a slave and prostitute, and also made numerous accusations against her.

He struck her on many occasions and caused her bodily injury. In the fall of 1891 he struck her on the head with a large brick, and pulled her by the hair of the head, on another occasion he was the very violent and in his rage smashed two panes of glass against her face and caused her to bleed from the nose, and then varied the monotony of his proceedings by smothering a brick belonging to her school teacher who lodged with them. Plaintiff declared that he had gone to the extent of her life.

These statements were borne out by a daughter-in-law, who said the plaintiff, so far as she knew, never gave her husband any provocation, but was always a good wife to him.

Noimony was asked for and Judge Zane granted the decree.

SHORT ORDERS.

Samuel F. Spencer vs. James G. McAllister et al. Defendant to complaint.

Plaintiff's savings and loan company vs. H. F. Mason et al. The defendant to complaint was sustained and there was allowance for costs.

Wm. S. McCormick vs. R. K. Kestel et al. Motion to vacate judgment set for hearing on Wednesday next.

A. M. Muser vs. Geo. W. Deane. Motion to correct judgment by consent to set aside.

Scott H. Howell vs. James Gordon. Motion to dismiss appeal continued.

S. J. Weeks vs. L. G. Hardy, et al. Injunction continued until the 28th inst.

Geo. C. Kildner vs. the Massachusetts Mining Co. Defendant to complaint returned ten days to answer.

H. A. How et al. vs. M. W. White et al. The hearing on motion for a new trial set for Saturday, Jan. 28th.

Adjourned at noon till Monday next.

JUDGE BARTH'S COURT.

In the case of Malquist vs. Malquist, Judge Barth presiding, the plaintiff, Mrs. Malquist, was granted a divorce from her husband, Benjamin, on the grounds of extreme cruelty and failure to provide.

The plaintiff, Mrs. Malquist, testified that she had been married to Benjamin Malquist for about twenty years, and that during that time he had treated her with extreme cruelty and had failed to provide for her and the family.

The defendant, Benjamin Malquist, testified that he had been married to Mrs. Malquist for about twenty years, and that during that time he had treated her with extreme cruelty and had failed to provide for her and the family.

The court, after hearing the testimony of both parties, granted a divorce to Mrs. Malquist on the grounds of extreme cruelty and failure to provide.

The court also granted a short order in both chambers.

The court also granted a short order in both chambers.

The court also granted a short order in both chambers.

The court also granted a short order in both chambers.

The court also granted a short order in both chambers.

The court also granted a short order in both chambers.

The court also granted a short order in both chambers.

ODEN NEWS ITEMS.

Barth's at Work.—First of August Billie's Pardon.—The Prize Right—Came Up.

(Editor's Special.)

Judge Cross yesterday set the cases of the sports arrested early yesterday morning, charged with prize fighting and aiding and abetting the same, for Monday morning. In default of Turner, Campbell, Newell and Walker were taken to jail (the Utah Pacific train could hold three cases and not more than one at a time).

The principal feature in Judge Zane's court at this morning's session came under the heading of divorce, the remainder of the business consisting of the ordinary run of Saturday motions and the disposal of informal matters.

In the second court, presided over by Judge Barth, there was nothing of any consequence done up to 11 o'clock, at which time his Honor left the bench for the day.

THE "PHANTOM" OF HIS CHILDHOOD.

Judge Barth was called for Mrs. Katherine, a well-known lady, who, pined for a divorce from her husband, Benjamin, on the grounds of extreme cruelty and failure to provide.

The story as told by the plaintiff on the witness stand is an exceptional one, and showed the defendant to be a man of peculiarly brutal tendencies.

According to Mrs. Barth's statement, the parties were married in Louisville, Kentucky, in the year 1855, thence for the last seven years, the defendant has not provided for his wife, and she has been obliged to support herself and the family.

On one occasion, in fact, he hanged their little girls by the neck with a rope, until she thought they would never again "come back."

This seemed to be a favorite pastime with him. He had shoved her down and pushed her, although he had never actually struck her, but his language was described as most coarse and profane.

He had rolled this out towards his wife both in public and private. The defendant is a miner, and an able-bodied man, and said the plaintiff, "though he doesn't drink to excess, he keeps his company."

The Judge was in a sober at the time of this statement.

Witness said that he was not drunk, and, in another question, stated that she supported herself by keeping a boarding house.

A married daughter of the parties gave corroborative evidence.

Judge Barth asked the wife to show to the court the evidence in reference to the hanging with a rope.

Witness said no, but the youngest daughter of the parties was called. Her father was a very rough man.

Judge Zane—Take your dearest. Noimony was taken for the defendant, it appears, is now living in California.

ANOTHER DECEIT.

Don Felt (represented by Hon. F. K. Heber) is a woman of about fifty years of age, and a divorce from her husband, James Felt, on account of cruelty.

The parties were married in this city in December, 1875, and were residing in Tooe County. For more than ten years past, plaintiff said, her husband had treated her cruelly, her property, and she was a slave and prostitute, and also made numerous accusations against her.

He struck her on many occasions and caused her bodily injury. In the fall of 1891 he struck her on the head with a large brick, and pulled her by the hair of the head, on another occasion he was the very violent and in his rage smashed two panes of glass against her face and caused her to bleed from the nose, and then varied the monotony of his proceedings by smothering a brick belonging to her school teacher who lodged with them.

Plaintiff declared that he had gone to the extent of her life.

These statements were borne out by a daughter-in-law, who said the plaintiff, so far as she knew, never gave her husband any provocation, but was always a good wife to him.

Noimony was asked for and Judge Zane granted the decree.

SHORT ORDERS.

Samuel F. Spencer vs. James G. McAllister et al. Defendant to complaint.

Plaintiff's savings and loan company vs. H. F. Mason et al. The defendant to complaint was sustained and there was allowance for costs.

Wm. S. McCormick vs. R. K. Kestel et al. Motion to vacate judgment set for hearing on Wednesday next.

A. M. Muser vs. Geo. W. Deane. Motion to correct judgment by consent to set aside.

Scott H. Howell vs. James Gordon. Motion to dismiss appeal continued.

S. J. Weeks vs. L. G. Hardy, et al. Injunction continued until the 28th inst.

Geo. C. Kildner vs. the Massachusetts Mining Co. Defendant to complaint returned ten days to answer.

H. A. How et al. vs. M. W. White et al. The hearing on motion for a new trial set for Saturday, Jan. 28th.

Adjourned at noon till Monday next.

JUDGE BARTH'S COURT.

In the case of Malquist vs. Malquist, Judge Barth presiding, the plaintiff, Mrs. Malquist, was granted a divorce from her husband, Benjamin, on the grounds of extreme cruelty and failure to provide.

The plaintiff, Mrs. Malquist, testified that she had been married to Benjamin Malquist for about twenty years, and that during that time he had treated her with extreme cruelty and had failed to provide for her and the family.

The defendant, Benjamin Malquist, testified that he had been married to Mrs. Malquist for about twenty years, and that during that time he had treated her with extreme cruelty and had failed to provide for her and the family.

The court, after hearing the testimony of both parties, granted a divorce to Mrs. Malquist on the grounds of extreme cruelty and failure to provide.

The court also granted a short order in both chambers.

The court also granted a short order in both chambers.

The court also granted a short order in both chambers.

The court also granted a short order in both chambers.

The court also granted a short order in both chambers.

The court also granted a short order in both chambers.

ODEN NEWS ITEMS.

Barth's at Work.—First of August Billie's Pardon.—The Prize Right—Came Up.

(Editor's Special.)

Judge Cross yesterday set the cases of the sports arrested early yesterday morning, charged with prize fighting and aiding and abetting the same, for Monday morning. In default of Turner, Campbell, Newell and Walker were taken to jail (the Utah Pacific train could hold three cases and not more than one at a time).

The principal feature in Judge Zane's court at this morning's session came under the heading of divorce, the remainder of the business consisting of the ordinary run of Saturday motions and the disposal of informal matters.

In the second court, presided over by Judge Barth, there was nothing of any consequence done up to 11 o'clock, at which time his Honor left the bench for the day.

THE "PHANTOM" OF HIS CHILDHOOD.

Judge Barth was called for Mrs. Katherine, a well-known lady, who, pined for a divorce from her husband, Benjamin, on the grounds of extreme cruelty and failure to provide.

The story as told by the plaintiff on the witness stand is an exceptional one, and showed the defendant to be a man of peculiarly brutal tendencies.

According to Mrs. Barth's statement, the parties were married in Louisville, Kentucky, in the year 1855, thence for the last seven years, the defendant has not provided for his wife, and she has been obliged to support herself and the family.

On one occasion, in fact, he hanged their little girls by the neck with a rope, until she thought they would never again "come back."

This seemed to be a favorite pastime with him. He had shoved her down and pushed her, although he had never actually struck her, but his language was described as most coarse and profane.

He had rolled this out towards his wife both in public and private. The defendant is a miner, and an able-bodied man, and said the plaintiff, "though he doesn't drink to excess, he keeps his company."

The Judge was in a sober at the time of this statement.

Witness said that he was not drunk, and, in another question, stated that she supported herself by keeping a boarding house.

A married daughter of the parties gave corroborative evidence.

Judge Barth asked the wife to show to the court the evidence in reference to the hanging with a rope.

Witness said no, but the youngest daughter of the parties was called. Her father was a very rough man.

Judge Zane—Take your dearest. Noimony was taken for the defendant, it appears, is now living in California.

ANOTHER DECEIT.

Don Felt (represented by Hon. F. K. Heber) is a woman of about fifty years of age, and a divorce from her husband, James Felt, on account of cruelty.

The parties were married in this city in December, 1875, and were residing in Tooe County. For more than ten years past, plaintiff said, her husband had treated her cruelly, her property, and she was a slave and prostitute, and also made numerous accusations against her.

He struck her on many occasions and caused her bodily injury. In the fall of 1891 he struck her on the head with a large brick, and pulled her by the hair of the head, on another occasion he was the very violent and in his rage smashed two panes of glass against her face and caused her to bleed from the nose, and then varied the monotony of his proceedings by smothering a brick belonging to her school teacher who lodged with them.

Plaintiff declared that he had gone to the extent of her life.

These statements were borne out by a daughter-in-law, who said the plaintiff, so far as she knew, never gave her husband any provocation, but was always a good wife to him.

Noimony was asked for and Judge Zane granted the decree.

SHORT ORDERS.

Samuel F. Spencer vs. James G. McAllister et al. Defendant to complaint.

Plaintiff's savings and loan company vs. H. F. Mason et al. The defendant to complaint was sustained and there was allowance for costs.

Wm. S. McCormick vs. R. K. Kestel et al. Motion to vacate judgment set for hearing on Wednesday next.

A. M. Muser vs. Geo. W. Deane. Motion to correct judgment by consent to set aside.

Scott H. Howell vs. James Gordon. Motion to dismiss appeal continued.

S. J. Weeks vs. L. G. Hardy, et al. Injunction continued until the 28th inst.

Geo. C. Kildner vs. the Massachusetts Mining Co. Defendant to complaint returned ten days to answer.

H. A. How et al. vs. M. W. White et al. The hearing on motion for a new trial set for Saturday, Jan. 28th.

Adjourned at noon till Monday next.

JUDGE BARTH'S COURT.

In the case of Malquist vs. Malquist, Judge Barth presiding, the plaintiff, Mrs. Malquist, was granted a divorce from her husband, Benjamin, on the grounds of extreme cruelty and failure to provide.

The plaintiff, Mrs. Malquist, testified that she had been married to Benjamin Malquist for about twenty years, and that during that time he had treated her with extreme cruelty and had failed to provide for her and the family.

The defendant, Benjamin Malquist, testified that he had been married to Mrs. Malquist for about twenty years, and that during that time he had treated her with extreme cruelty and had failed to provide for her and the family.

The court, after hearing the testimony of both parties, granted a divorce to Mrs. Malquist on the grounds of extreme cruelty and failure to provide.

The court also granted a short order in both chambers.

The court also granted a short order in both chambers.

The court also granted a short order in both chambers.

The court also granted a short order in both chambers.

The court also granted a short order in both chambers.

The court also granted a short order in both chambers.

ODEN NEWS ITEMS.

Barth's at Work.—First of August Billie's Pardon.—The Prize Right—Came Up.

(Editor's Special.)

Judge Cross yesterday set the cases of the sports arrested early yesterday morning, charged with prize fighting and aiding and abetting the same, for Monday morning. In default of Turner, Campbell, Newell and Walker were taken to jail (the Utah Pacific train could hold three cases and not more than one at a time).

The principal feature in Judge Zane's court at this morning's session came under the heading of divorce, the remainder of the business consisting of the ordinary run of Saturday motions and the disposal of informal matters.

In the second court, presided over by Judge Barth, there was nothing of any consequence done up to 11 o'clock, at which time his Honor left the bench for the day.

THE "PHANTOM" OF HIS CHILDHOOD.

Judge Barth was called for Mrs. Katherine, a well-known lady, who, pined for a divorce from her husband, Benjamin, on the grounds of extreme cruelty and failure to provide.

The story as told by the plaintiff on the witness stand is an exceptional one, and showed the defendant to be a man of peculiarly brutal tendencies.

According to Mrs. Barth's statement, the parties were married in Louisville, Kentucky, in the year 1855, thence for the last seven years, the defendant has not provided for his wife, and she has been obliged to support herself and the family.

On one occasion, in fact, he hanged their little girls by the neck with a rope, until she thought they would never again "come back."

This seemed to be a favorite pastime with him. He had shoved her down and pushed her, although he had never actually struck her, but his language was described as most coarse and profane.

He had rolled this out towards his wife both in public and private. The defendant is a miner, and an able-bodied man, and said the plaintiff, "though he doesn't drink to excess, he keeps his company."

The Judge was in a sober at the time of this statement.

Witness said that he was not drunk, and, in another question, stated that she supported herself by keeping a boarding house.

A married daughter of the parties gave corroborative evidence.

Judge Barth asked the wife to show to the court the evidence in reference to the hanging with a rope.

Witness said no, but the youngest daughter of the parties was called. Her father was a very rough man.

Judge Zane—Take your dearest. Noimony was taken for the defendant, it appears, is now living in California.

ANOTHER DECEIT.

Don Felt (represented by Hon. F. K. Heber) is a woman of about fifty years of age, and a divorce from her husband, James Felt, on account of cruelty.

The parties were married in this city in December, 1875, and were residing in Tooe County. For more than ten years past, plaintiff said, her husband had treated her cruelly, her property, and she was a slave and prostitute, and also made numerous accusations against her.

He struck her on many occasions and caused her bodily injury. In the fall of 1891 he struck her on the head with a large brick, and pulled her by the hair of the head, on another occasion he was the very violent and in his rage smashed two panes of glass against her face and caused her to bleed from the nose, and then varied the monotony of his proceedings by smothering a brick belonging to her school teacher who lodged with them.

Plaintiff declared that he had gone to the extent of her life.

These statements were borne out by a daughter-in-law, who said the plaintiff, so far as she knew, never gave her husband any provocation, but was always a good wife to him.

Noimony was asked for and Judge Zane granted the decree.

SHORT ORDERS.

Samuel F. Spencer vs. James G. McAllister et al. Defendant to complaint.

Plaintiff's savings and loan company vs. H. F. Mason et al. The defendant to complaint was sustained and there was allowance for costs.

Wm. S. McCormick vs. R. K. Kestel et al. Motion to vacate judgment set for hearing on Wednesday next.

A. M. Muser vs. Geo. W. Deane. Motion to correct judgment by consent to set aside.

Scott H. Howell vs. James Gordon. Motion to dismiss appeal continued.

S. J. Weeks vs. L. G. Hardy, et al. Injunction continued until the 28th inst.

Geo. C. Kildner vs. the Massachusetts Mining Co. Defendant to complaint returned ten days to answer.

H. A. How et al. vs. M. W. White et al. The hearing on motion for a new trial set for Saturday, Jan. 28th.

Adjourned at noon till Monday next.

JUDGE BARTH'S COURT.

In the case of Malquist vs. Malquist, Judge Barth presiding, the plaintiff, Mrs. Malquist, was granted a divorce from her husband, Benjamin, on the grounds of extreme cruelty and failure to provide.

The plaintiff, Mrs. Malquist, testified that she had been married to Benjamin Malquist for about twenty years, and that during that time he had treated her with extreme cruelty and had failed to provide for her and the family.

The defendant, Benjamin Malquist, testified that he had been married to Mrs. Malquist for about twenty years, and that during that time he had treated her with extreme cruelty and had failed to provide for her and the family.

The court, after hearing the testimony of both parties, granted a divorce to Mrs. Malquist on the grounds of extreme cruelty and failure to provide.

The court also granted a short order in both chambers.

The court also granted a short order in both chambers.

The court also granted a short order in both chambers.

The court also granted a short order in both chambers.

The court also granted a short order in both chambers.

The court also granted a short order in both chambers.

ODEN NEWS ITEMS.

Barth's at Work.—First of August Billie's Pardon.—The Prize Right—Came Up.

(Editor's Special.)

Judge Cross yesterday set the cases of the sports arrested early yesterday morning, charged with prize fighting and aiding and abetting the same, for Monday morning. In default of Turner, Campbell, Newell and Walker were taken to jail (the Utah Pacific train could hold three cases and not more than one at a time).

The principal feature in Judge Zane's court at this morning's session came under the heading of divorce, the remainder of the business consisting of the ordinary run of Saturday motions and the disposal of informal matters.

In the second court, presided over by Judge Barth, there was nothing of any consequence done up to 11 o'clock, at which time his Honor left the bench for the day.

THE "PHANTOM" OF HIS CHILDHOOD.

Judge Barth was called for Mrs. Katherine, a well-known lady, who, pined for a divorce from her husband, Benjamin, on the grounds of extreme cruelty and failure to provide.

The story as told by the plaintiff on the witness stand is an exceptional one, and showed the defendant to be a man of peculiarly brutal tendencies.

According to Mrs. Barth's statement, the parties were married in Louisville, Kentucky, in the year 1855, thence for the last seven years, the defendant has not provided for his wife, and she has been obliged to support herself and the family.

On one occasion, in fact, he hanged their little girls by the neck with a rope, until she thought they would never again "come back."