The U. P. vs. the U. S.

NEW YORK, 11. — Washington dispatches indicate that the U. P. vs. the U. S. case will probably be decided by the Court of Claims on Monday. The right of the U. P.

to compensation for its services for the government is not in dispute; the question is whether payment shall be made now, or be withheld until the government has been judicially established. Whatever the court may decide, however, the case will be appealed to the Supreme Court.

WARREN IS IN HIS CASE; THE COURT ASSAYS.

The Case of Col. Anthony.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., 11. — The excitement about the attempted assassination of Col. D. R. Anthony is still most intense, as the critical condition of Anthony still continues. He was removed from the Opera House at 4:30 a. m., to his residence. He has been conscious all day and has conversed freely with his friends. His physicians are divided in opinion as to the probable result; there seems to be a general belief, however, that his death is only a matter of time. He may survive a day, and may die in the next few hours. Embury, the assassin, is in a waiting room at Anthony's residence. Embury, his supposed accomplice, has been released on his personal recognition.
