LOCAL AND OTHER MATTERS.

Call for it.—There is a message in the Western Union Telegraph office for John M. Olfenheimer.

Y. M. M. I. A.—Notice is given that the 11th Ward Association has changed its time of meeting from Tuesday to Monday evenings. Also the 4th Ward from Thursday to Wednesday of every week.

Bumpy Bump.—It has often been said, "There is nothing certain in this world but death and tax collectors." Nine out of the ten men who lost their hold on the sidewalk, to-day, are prepared to file affidavits to that effect.

Discharged.—Hiram Glanzer, charged with falsifying or attempting to intimidate a witness, was yesterday discharged, the Justice holding that a crime was committed only when the witness was so dissuaded that he or she failed to appear, and that by this means the ends of justice were defeated.

Lamented.—Quite a number of well-dressed Indians are walking about town to-day. The sad history of the butchery of their Cheyenne brethren is well known to them, and in referring to their eyes flash and they speak in defiance by no means commensurate terms of the actions of the Government.

Salt Lake County Educational Association.—Programme for Saturday, January 25th, 1879, in University Building.

Opening Address.—School House, etc., by Bishop E. D. Woolley, 13th district.

Reading, by Miss Rebecca Mante, teacher distributed.

Grammar, by Mr. Alma Kendall, teacher 11th district.

The Weather.—The thaw has caused the rapid disappearance of the snow, which has so closely covered the earth heretofore for the last three weeks, and we now have the pleasure of walking through mud and water to our hearts' content.

THE JUVENILE OPERA.—To-night, in the Social Hall, the children's opera, "The Loves of Wolfenstein," is to be presented for the first time.

THE SUPREME COURT.—Proceedings of the Supreme Court of the Territory, on Thursday, Chief Justice Schaeffer and Associate Justices Emerson and Boreman on the bench.

THOMAS McLELLAN, administrator of the estate of Charles Popper, deceased, respondent vs. Jas. I. Dickinson, et al., appellants.

ERWIN DAVIS, respondent vs. Pleasant Silver Mining Company of Utah (limited) et al., appellants.

COURT ADJOURNED till this morning at 10 o'clock.

Mrs. Judge McKean Dead.—Mrs. Kate McKean, widow of the late ex-Chief Justice McKean, died of heart disease, at her residence, in the 7th Ward, about half-past one o'clock this afternoon.

She had been attending Mrs. Gilchrist, a sick lady living next door, during the night, and came home this morning feeling unwell.

After eating dinner, she complained of a pain in the heart, and within two hours afterward succumbed to an attack of the disease stated.

IMAGERY.

After perusing the late unique decision of that august body, the United States Supreme Court, on the constitutionality of the polygamy act of '62, reclining on my couch I was musing on the subject, and wondering what that eminent sage, the renowned framer of the declaration of independence would think, were he cognizant how those notable utterances in behalf of civil and religious liberty would be misconstrued, and applied, to strike and undermine the very rock of the same; my thoughts reverted to that early period in our beloved country's history, which "tried men's souls," when the infant republic was feebly struggling for existence, in order that a sound and firm foundation might be laid for the fullest exercise of civil and religious liberty, and where the oppressed of all nations might find an asylum where they could worship God according to the dictates of their own consciences, not only merely believing, but having the right to practice their belief, gradually I became oblivious to surrounding objects, and I seemed to see a "hall of fame" of patriots, in memory of the patriotic founders of the republic. In an alcove, sculptured in Parian marble, surmounted on a lofty pedestal, (and who seemed to be the framer of the constitution) the majestic form and benign countenance of the Father of his Country, as I had often seen him, stood in reality in my youth, in the Capitol of the "Old Bay State." Interspersed and grouped among the Doric columns that supported the dome other forms appeared. Here was the bold John Hancock, who first flung down the gauntlet and hurled defiance at the tyrannical, but having the eloquent and impassioned Patrick Henry; yonder the gallant and youthful Warren, who fell on "Bunker's Height," and others of the heroic statesmen, warriors and sages, whose names gild the pages of our country's history. Kenneth, then, embosomed in letters of burnished gold, were recorded the mighty deeds and glowing words.

Suddenly, my gaze was riveted on one man's form, who held in his hand a scroll, on which, in characters of bold relief, shaded in some hue, were traced these ever memorable words:

"I tremble for my country, when I remember that God is just!"

While I pondered, the vision was withdrawn. "O'Connell, what is the meaning of this?"

"I tremble for my country, when I remember that God is just!"

"I tremble for my country, when I remember that God is just!"

"I tremble for my country, when I remember that God is just!"

"I tremble for my country, when I remember that God is just!"

"I tremble for my country, when I remember that God is just!"

"I tremble for my country, when I remember that God is just!"

"I tremble for my country, when I remember that God is just!"

"I tremble for my country, when I remember that God is just!"

"I tremble for my country, when I remember that God is just!"
