American Smelter Company Gives Out the Price for the Week

The announcement made by the American Smeiter Company this morning that the settling price of lead for the current week would be $4.57½ per hundred pounds has caused considerable good feeling among the shippers of that metal. A rise was not alto-gether unexpected, but that it should jump 5 cents above the ruling price of last week was more than many producers expected. This means an advance of 12% cents per hundred in little more than a week.
