

SOCIETY

The two important events of the week were the afternoon teas given at the University club on Wednesday and Thursday respectively. Mrs. George L. Nye and Miss Welborn entertained on Wednesday, and the affair was delightful in all details. The hostesses received their guests in the parlor, and refreshments were served in the diningroom. They were bright with apple blossoms, great branches of roses being used with artistic effect. Jars stood about filled with the pretty blooms, and the mantels were blanketed with them. In the diningroom a picture was formed with the table with its central bed of apple blossoms flanked with silver candelsticks and green ribbon bows, while about the room stood vases of the same flowers. In the hall an orchestra was stationed and rendered a delightful program of music. Assisting the hostesses were: Mrs. James L. Franken, Mrs. John E. Woodward, Mrs. Sturgis, Mrs. S. C. Park, Mrs. Ernest Bamberger, Mrs. Jay Tarrvin Harris, Miss Park, Miss Elsie Sherman, Miss Leta McMillan, Miss Kinney and Miss Williams.

One of the prettiest affairs seen here was the tea given at the University club on Thursday afternoon by Mrs. Cunningham and Mrs. Dick in honor of Mrs. Frederick Dorn. The roof-garden of the club was used for the first time, and the place, spread with rugs, and decorated with palms and great sprays of lilac, with the blue sky and beautiful landscape for a background, together with the guests in their pretty costumes, made a truly charming picture. While the event itself was as delightful as well in a social way. The railing of the garden was lined with tall palms, and from the roof hung baskets of flowers. A bank of apple blossoms, and white lilacs formed a background for the receiving party, and a large flag, in the national colors made the background for the stringed orchestra, which furnished music. In the center of the garden stood a table with a bed of lilacs for a centerpiece, and having suspended above it a basket of springer. In the

QUAINT FROCK OF TAFFETA.

This frock of champagne colored taffeta has the bouffant skirt, long shoulder lines and full sleeves decorated by the season's modes. The waist is trimmed with bands of the silk shirred over cords. These bands outline the tucked yoke and cuffs in curly cue lines. The ornament at the back of the deep riddle is also fashioned from the shirred bands. The skirt is made without gored and is fitted into the waistband with plaits which are stitched at below the hips. Near the foot of the skirt is one deep tuck.
