CULLED FROM LATEST EXCHANGES.

Two adventurous young men propose to go from Billings, Montana, to New Orleans, by water.

Forest fires are sweeping over the vicinity of Littlefield, Idaho, and the town has had a narrow escape from destruction.

Shearing sheep has begun in earnest at Portage, Box Elder County; 17 California shearers are clipping 1,700 sheep every day, averaging 100 sheep to the man.

On the evening of the 31st a steel rail was placed across the track about two miles north of Boulder, Montana, for the purpose of ditching a train. The engineer discovered the obstruction in time and avoided an accident.

Mr. Willard Carter, a conductor of the O. & N. R., and favorably known in Montpelier, was killed on his way to his home at Pocatello on Tuesday last. It appears that the caller had awakened him at 3 a. m. and he was on his way out his train. When the time came for the train to pull out he was not there and on going to his room, he was discovered dead in bed; supposed cause of death, heart disease.

A dispatch dated Benson (A. T.), June 2, says: Several days ago it was reported that Springer, the Colton murderer, had been captured in St. Louis and was awaiting extradition. This morning Cole of San Bernardino County, Cal., passed here on his way to prison, where the party supposed to be Springer is in custody. Sheriff Cole says the description given tallies with that of Springer. A reward of $1,000 has been guaranteed the capturer if the party turns out to be Springer.

In the Raymond murder trial, at Spokane Falls, on the 2nd, a verdict of not guilty was handed in by the jury. The case was that of the trial of Raymond, a scarlet woman, indicted by the grand jury for murder in the first degree. The shooting occurred between the hours of 12 and 1 o'clock on the morning of June 26, 1898. The victim was a man by the name of James Fisch, who visited the house in a state of intoxication and threatened to strike the proprietress, who shot him in the back with a revolver, making a wound from which he died within an hour.

A Missoula, Montana, special of the 24 says: Last night at midnight the body of Gus Pelky was found in a culvert under the railroad track just across Battlement Creek within the town limits, with his neck broken and bruised on his face. He was working on the railroad at Bearmouth and was coming home on the freight train and it is supposed mistook the water near the culvert for the road leading to his home and jumped off, with the intention of saving a walk back from the depot. He was about 60 years old. He had been a resident of Missoula since 1884. He leaves a wife and nine children. One of his daughters is the wife of the town marshal.

TULLIDGE'S HISTORY.

From Utah comes a big book, "The History of Salt Lake City," with the compliments of the Mayor and City Council. It is a volume of over one thousand pages, handsomely bound in leather. It has been written by Edward W. Tullidge, under the supervision of the committee on revision of the City Council. There are a large number of steel portraits of the representative men of the city, including Brigham Young, George A. Smith, Wilford Woodruff, Edward Hunter, J. M. Grant, P. Edward Connor, A. O. Smoot, Wm. Jennings, Wm. H. Wood, E. L. Wells, George Q. Cannon, John Taylor, Jos. B. Walker and many others. Typographically this book is as beautiful as any which has ever come in recent years from the American press. The history of Salt Lake City has been very remarkable. More so, perhaps, than that of any other American city. Aside from its being the metropolis of Mormondom, it was founded in a desert, in a faraway valley, and like St. Petersburg, has been made to blossom like the rose. It is the miracle of American cities. Besides telling the story of the growth of Salt Lake, this history necessarily has much to say concerning the Mormon Church, the "Saints," their trials, beliefs, etc. In short, the whole Mormon question is opened up, and discussed from an inside view. It becomes an American legislators and leaders, or formers of public opinion, to make a study of this book and learn what the Mormons have to say for themselves. A careful reading of this volume may enlighten some folks, and possibly show some of Kate Field's florid statements to be wide of the mark. Not the least interesting part of the book is the story of President Grant to the city and the chat Mrs. Grant had with Brigham Young. The Kate Field episode is considered worth mentioning. By all means let all who can read this remarkable history. — Washington Post, May 24th.

ASTONISHED THE BUNCO STEERER.

"Bunco Steerer—'Why, my old friend Baker! How do you do? I am glad to see you.'"

Stranger—"My name isn't Baker."

Bunco Steerer—"What! Ain't you Quincy Baker of Pleasantview?"

Stranger—"No, sir. My name is Yas Alkeldheramot, and I live in Titabawase, Mich. Pretty name, isn't it?"

Bunco Steerer—"Yes, sir. Beg pardon, I—"

Stranger—"Yes, long name. Takes you some time to spit that out with the dead and dumb alphabet to say that other racial across the street, don't it? You needn't keep your hand behind your back any longer. I'm onto this name. Try some other one on me next time. Good day." — Boston Globe.

Eastern railway president—"See here, I understand that after that last catastrophe you sent the survivors to their homes in distant states and charged the expense to the company?"

Conductor—"Yes, sir; this railroad is a benevolent society? What did you do that for? Give me an unanswerable reason at once or your resignation, sir."

"To prevent them from testifying before the coroner."

"Resign, sir."

"I want you for superintendent."

A PROMPT BUSINESS TRANSACTION.

An Ohio widow owned a large gravel bank which a certain railroad company was very anxious to secure.

Several propositions were made and rejected, and the president finally sent his private secretary down with instructions to offer up to $100,000.

The young man returned after a couple of days and when asked how business had turned out, replied:

"I will accept your offer."

"Exactly. I married the widow and own the bank."

In hitching horses in stalls give rope enough only to allow the animal to get his nose down to the floor, or very near there.
