

er of James Carey, informer, would wear that after the murders he was detailed to watch Kavanagh, the car-driver, who it was feared would inform, and whom Curley desired to have murdered.

A servant girl was the first witness called. She fully identified Curley as one of the men she saw in the Park on the 6th of May.

James Carey swore that just before Burke was stabbed he (Carey) heard him tell Cavendish about the attempt made to take the life of Forster. Carey admitted that he had been engaged in 20 attempts to take the life of Forster. He would not have called Forster's removal murder. The conspirators had arranged for the assassination on the 4th of May last, of Lieutenant Colonel Hillier, then Inspector General of Constabulary, and Burke. Did not think Burke deserved to be murdered, but would not have cried at anything that happened Forster.

Upon the conclusion of the testimony of Farrell, the court adjourned until to-morrow.

Curley maintained an indifferent air throughout. Adams, one of the counsel for the defence, applied to be relieved from further duties at the end of the trial of Curley.

The effect of the letter received by the foreman of the jury which tried Joe Brady, threatening that he would be killed unless a verdict of not guilty was found, was shown to-day by the fact that of the special jury panel called in the case of Curley, fifty persons failed to appear, notwithstanding the fine of £50 upon each absentee.

Inquiry at Clifford Lloyd, in the Toplot case, in Crushkeen district, has led to remarkable disclosures. The first clue to the existence of the conspiracy was obtained by the confession of a man named Tubridger, wounded in an attack on an objectionable party by moonlighters. Tubridger has given full particulars in court of the murder of a man named Kennedy by assassins brought from a distance. Tubridger states that he belonged to a secret society in which he was obliged by threats to continue. In January, 1882, the society was reorganized with the special object of killing landlords, agents and spies. The local leader is named McCinery, introduced to members as a stranger from Dublin, who said he had traveled through other countries and formed societies. He stated the Land League would supply the society with arms, and promised that the League would pay McCinery's expenses. Men were sent out of their own districts; he also said members might have to go to various parts of Ireland and even to England to shoot landlords and agents. The name of the new society was "Invincibles" or "Vigilantes." A group of societies was formed, including the Crushkeen district one, implicated in many of the most notorious murders ever committed in Ireland.

The Court Circular contains the following, written by the Queen herself. We have to record the death of Mr. John Brown, the Queen's personal attendant, which took place at Windsor Castle, at a quarter past eleven o'clock on Tuesday evening, the 27th inst., of erysipelas. The melancholy event has caused the deepest regret to the Queen, the royal family and all the members of the royal household; to Her Majesty the loss is irreparable; and the death of this truly faithful devoted servant has been a grievous shock to the Queen. In 1849 Mr. John Brown entered the Queen's service as one of the Balmoral Gillies (servants), and by his careful attention, steadiness and intelligence, he rose in 1858 to the position of the Queen's personal servant in Scotland, which, in 1864 was extended to that of constant personal attendant on Her Majesty on all occasions. During the last 18 years and a half he has served Her Majesty constantly and never absented himself from his duty for a single day. He has accompanied the Queen in her daily walks and drives, and all her journeys and expeditions, as well as personally waiting on her at banquets, etc. An honest, faithful and devoted follower, a most worthy, discreet and straightforward man, and possessed of strong sense, he has filled a position of great and anxious responsibility, the duties of which he performed with such constant and increasing care as to secure for himself the real friendship of the Queen.

The Bad and Worthless

are never imitated or counterfeited. This is especially true of a family medicine, and it is positive proof that the remedy imitated is of the highest value. As soon as it had been tested and proved by the whole World that HOP BITTERS was the purest, best and most valuable family medicine on earth, many imitations sprang up and began to steal the notices in which the press and the people of the country had expressed the merits of H. B., and in every way trying to induce suffering invalids to use their stuff instead, expecting to make money on the credit and good name of H. B. Many others started nostrums put up in similar style to H. B., with variously derived names in which the word "Hop" or "Hops" were used in a way to induce people to believe they were the same as Hop Bitters. All such pretended remedies or cures, no matter what their style or name is, and especially those with the word "Hop" or "Hops" in their name or in any way connected with them or their name, are imitations or counterfeits. Beware of them. Touch none of them. Use nothing but genuine Hop Bitters, with a bunch or cluster of green Hops on the white label. Trust nothing else. Druggists and dealers are warned against dealing in imitations or counterfeits. (3)
