in and about the station, and before the train came to a stop a general rush was made for the rear car, upon the platform of which Cleveland stood with uncovered head. Here, also, handshaking was continued as long as the train remained, which was scarcely five minutes. Cleveland was repeatedly and enthusiastically cheered. The demonstration, as a whole, was a most imposing one.

demonstration, as a whole, was a most imposing one.

At Highland, where a brief stop was made, Mayor Haynes and Alderman O'Connor, of Newark, boarded the train. Brief stops were also made at Cornwall, West Point, Haverstraw and Cranstons.

At Haverstraw great preparations had been made to receive the Governor's train, and when it arrived at 2.45, it seemed as though the whole population of the place had turned out. The depot was tastefully decorated from one end to the other with flags, streamers and Cleveland and Hendricks mottoes. At every point of vantage, both in the depot and on the surrounding hills, ladies waved an enthusiastic welcome, cannons were fired thusiastic welcome, cannons were fired in rapid succession, and men shouted at the top of their lungs. stood up in the vehicle, and with hat in hand acknowledged the cordial greetings. Thousands of people lined Market street on both sides, and manymen, more enthusiastic than their neighbors, ran after the Governor's carriage to shake the distinguished visitor by the hand. The decorations all along Market and Ferguson streets were profuse and in many cases elaborate, including the American colors and streamers, portraits of the democratic candidates, Chinese lanterm and gas lets, supplemented with a discharge of pyrotechnics and booming of cannon. The decorations of residences on Farguson and Front streets, in the vicinity of Balbach's residence, were particularly beautiful, great care having evidently been spent upon them. The vicinity of Balbach's residence was packed with men, women and children, The vicinity of Balbach's residence was packed with men, women and children, who crowded out into the street, barely leaving a passage way sufficiently wide for the procession to pass. pplause subsided. Governor Abbott hen introduced Cleveland and said: "In presenting Governor Cleveland to this audience to-night, I believe, as firmly as I five, that I have the pleasure of presenting to you the next President of the United States. [Tremendous applause and cheers were given for Grover Cleveland.] When silence was restored Governo distinctly heard in every part of the unditorium, spoke as follows:

Fellow Citizens:—I am here to visit the county and State where I was born, in response to the invitation of many political friends and a number of those, who, as neighbors, remember my family, if they do not me. I do not wish to attempt any faise pretense by declaring that ever since the day when a very small boy I left the State, I have languished in an enforced absence and longed to tread again its soil; and yet I may say, without affectation, that though the way of life has led me far from the spet of my birth, the place of my nativity, and the names of Caldwell and Newark, and the memories connected with these places, are as fresh as ever. I have never been disloyal to my native State, but have ever kept a place warm in my heart for the love I cherish for my birthplace. I hope, then, that I shall not be regarded as a recreant son, but that I may, without challenge, lay claim to my place as a born Jerseyman.

If you will grant me this I shall not be teo modest to assume to share the producing the State of hew Jersey and the county of Essex holds in the country to-day. The history of the State dates beyond the time when our Union was formed. Its farm lands exceed in average value per acre those of any other State, and it easily leads all States in the number of important industries. When we consider the city of Newark we find the municipality ranking as fourteenth in point of population among all the cities of the land. It leads every other city in three important industries, it is second only in another, and third in still another. Of course all these industries necessitate the existence of a large laboring tion just behind the oschestra railing and held a levee which lasted nearly two hours. The arrangements were carefully planned to avoid crowding, and everybody, old and young, rich and poor, had gratified their desire to shake the Governor by the hand. Several ladies presented the Governor with handsome bouquets and baskets of flowers, and before the reception was concluded the table was heaped full of flowers. Full 5,000 people passed before the Governor, and while he must have been gratified at these funumerable evidences of regard, he no doubt felt the physical effects of the constant handshaking.

At the close of the reception Governor Cleveland was escorted to the reviewing stand in front of the City Hall, wherefrom he reviewed the grand procession.

who crowded out into the street, barely leaving a passage way sufficiently wide for the procession to pass. A canopied add carpeted passage way had been constructed leading to the main estrance of Mr. Balbach's residence, through which Gov. Cieveland and guests and the local committee passed. A reception followed of an entirely informal nature, on account of the limited time at his disposal. Among the most prominent gentlemen present were Gov. Abbott, Senator McPherson, Chancellor Hunyon, Gen. McLellan and ex-Gov. Ludlow.

Henry Keisey, Secretary of State, Congressman Hardenburg, ex-Congressman Miles Ross, ex-United States Senator J. P. Stackton, Mayor Haynes of Newark, and others of the committee drove to the Grand Opera House on Washington Street, leaving Balbach's residence shortly after To'clock. The seats had been removed from the auditorium in order to give more space, and there was not a foot of standing room as early as 6.30. Three thousand five hundred persons were present, fully one-half being ladies. The interior was handsomely decorated. Governor Cleveland entered the half at 7.25 p.m., escorted by Governor Abbot, Avenue, Brooklyn, the same evening. Elaborate preparations are making for the Blaine and Logan parades of Wednesday afternoon and Friday evening.

Boston, 29.—General Batler has addressed a letter to J. B. Abbott, explaining the charge that he (Butler) had made a trade with Chandler in the instruction of Blaine. Butler says: "The story of meeting Chandler on the Taliaposa is a very plain one. Lieutenant and Greely, who was an old friend and constituent of mine, and one whom I tried to assist, when in Congress, to carry out his ideas of a North Pole expedition, had returned home from that perilous and important voyage and was to be received by citizens in my native State New Hampshire. Chandler invited several gentlemen of prominence to go to Portsmouth to do honor to Greely and his brave associates. I went. The first man I met was Hon. Samuel J. Randall, with whom I was many years in Congress, and I went on board the Tallapososa with him and men of distinction. I spent my time especially in Randall's company, and was more with him than any other genwas more with him than any other gentleman on board. We were engaged part of the time talking politics, he assuring me he had made up his mind to support Cleveland, as he has done, and advising me very strongly to do the same. Much as I regretted to part with him, I told him I could not, for reasons I have since made very public. At my request the Tallapoosa ran from Portsmouth over to Cape Anu, where is my seashore home. On my grounds the survivors of the Thirty-first Massachusetts regiment were holding a reunion under the auspices of Colonel Johes H. French, their old commander and late president of the Democratic State Convention. Mr. Chandler and myself made speeches for the soldiers. Chandler went back to Portsmouth on board the Tallapoosa; Randall went to my house, stayed overnight, and I took him down to Gloucester, showing him the method by which the Gloucester fisheries were conducted, and then to Boaston where we nexted.

ter fisheries were conducted, and then to Boston, where we parted, he going his way and I mine. I made no bargain with Chandler on board the Talapoosa about anything. I certainly lid not make a bargain with Blaine, because he was not there, Chandler had not seen Blaine since his nomination, as I understood, and certainly not since the nomination of Cleve-Terrible Typhoon in Japan. SAN FRANCISCO, 27 .- The steamer

San Francisco, 27.—The steamer Arabic, which arrived yesterday from China and Japan, brings the following further details of the great typhoon which, on the 15th, caused such terrible destruction of life and property in Yokohama and Tokio. The storm came up so rapidly and with such tremendous fury that no precautions could be taken. In Yokohama the entire lower part of the city, called "The Settlement," is completely wrecked not a house left standing. The inhabitants made no attempt to save their property, but fied for their lives to escape drowning from the rushing waters driven on land by the tury of the wind. The newspapers make no attempt to fundsh any details of the destruction in that section of the city, but summerize by saying that as the settlement is destroyed it is useless to publish details. The higher portion of the city being more exposed, was equally unfortunate. Several of the largest and most substantial buildings were swept away as it swill of pasteboard. In that section attended the terrible disaster at West Leisining last January, when nineteen lives were lost, occurred at the mines of Youngstown, Lake County, four miles from here this evening. The explosion took place in the sixth Fight hand flat, where about 25 men were at work. Five minutes later there was a second report, and immediately after work. Five minutes later there was a second report, and immediately after, flames burst forth from the openings, blocking up the avenues of entrance. News of the disaster spread quickly, and friends and relatives of the doomed ininers soon gathered around the mouth of the mine, but the fierce flames prevented any attempt at rescue. After an hour's work, however, the flames were subdued sufficiently to allow a descent by way of the air-shaft. At this writing the volunteers have only been able to reach part of the mine, owing to after-damp, and it is feared that the centre roof of the sixth flat has fallen in. If this is the case nine of the miners cannot be saved. The men in the other parts of the mine who escaped after the explosion occurred, made an attempt to rescue their companions, but were unable to their comp
