Long-Standing

Blood Diseases are cured by the persevering use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

This medicine is an Alterative, and causes a radical change in the system The process, in some cases, may not be quite so rapid as in others; but, with persistence, the result is certain. Read these testimonials:—

"For two years I suffered from a severe pain in my right side, and had other troubles caused by a torpid liver and dyspepsia. After giving several medicines a fair trial without a cure, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I was greatly benefited by the first bottle, and after taking five bottles I was completely cured."—John W. Benson, 70 Lawrence st., Lowell, Mass.

Last May a large carbuncle broke out on my arm. The usual remedies had no effect and I was confined to my bed for eight weeks. A friend induced me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Less than three bottles healed the sore. In all my experience with medicine, I never saw more Wonderful Results.

Another marked effect of the use of this medicine was the strengthening of my sight."—Mrs. Carrie Adams, Holly Springs, Texas.

"I had a dry scaly humor for years, and suffered terribly; and, as my brother and sister were similarly afflicted, I presume the malady is hereditary. Last winter, Dr. Tyron, (of Fernandina, Fla.,) recommended me to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and continue it for a year. For five months I took it daily. I have not had a blemish upon my body for the last three months."—T. E. Wiley, 146 Chambers st., New York City.

"Last fall and winter I was troubled with a dull, heavy pain in my side. I did not notice it much at first, but it gradually grew worse until it became almost unbearable. During the latter part of this time, disorders of the stomach and liver increased my troubles. I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and after faithfully continuing the use of this medicine for some months, the pain disappeared and I was completely cured."—Mrs. Augusta A. THE PATENT

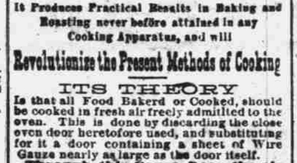
Wire Gauze Oven Door

IS THE LATEST IMPROVEMENT ON THE



It Produces Practical Results in Baking and Roasting never before attained in any Cooking Apparatus, and will

Revolutionize the Present Methods of Cooking

ITS THEORY

Is that all Food Baked or Cooked, should be cooked in fresh air freely admitted to the oven. This is done by discarding the close oven door heretofore used, and substituting for it a door containing a sheet of Wire Gauze nearly as large as the door itself.

Through this Gauze Door the air freely circulates, facilitating the process of cooking, and producing food that is equalled in flavor and nutrition, and actually cooked with less consumption of fuel than in an oven with a closed door.

It makes an enormous saving in the weight of meat.

It also produces larger Loaves of Bread, requires less attention from the cook, and promotes the health of the family by the SUPERIOR QUALITY OF THE FOOD COOKED IN IT.

OPINION OF AN EXPERT.

Mrs. MARY B. WELCH, Teacher Domestic Economy, Iowa State University, says: "My deliberate judgment is that the oven of the Range, as compared with others, is not only more equally heated in every part—front and rear—but as a result of its superior ventilation the food placed therein is better cooked, while retaining a sweeter flavor, and a larger proportion of its best juices. I find, also the consumption of fuel in this Range is much less than any other or same work.

EVENING NEWS.

Saturday, - November 10, 1888.

COWBOYS IN EARNST.

"Arkansaw Charley" was always a favorite among the boys afterward and was greatly dreaded by the Indians. The roving life of a cowboy upon the frontier plains suited his tastes far better than the restraints of a mail escort, while the opportunities to score even with the redskins were equally good.

It was during the general "round up" on the frontier border of Texas in the fall of 1886, that "Arkansaw Charley," in company in company with nine other cattlemen, was caught upon the plains bordering the headwaters of the Brazos by a band of thirty-five Comanches, all well mounted and armed and led by one of the most daring sub-chiefs. "Curly Bill" Thompson, also born in Arkansas, but much older than Charley, was in charge of the "round-up." He was a cowboy of much experience, and was famous as an Indian fighter. The two were intimate friends—the phrase goes out west, they were "partners" what was owned by one belonged to the other, and many daring exploits had already marked their career.

The cowboys were all well mounted, and armed with a long range Winchester rifle, and the cowboy's friend, a pair of six-shooters. They had plenty of ammunition, some jerked beef, and a canteen of water.

Arkansaw Charley, though not more than 23, was the recognized leader when an Indian fight was on hand; and when the Comanches were discovered sweeping down upon them from the direction of a skirt of timber several miles to the northwest, Arkansaw Charley, after a short parley with Curly Bill, but spurs to his horse to secure possession of a piece of high, open ground apparently about a mile away.

A lively race now began—the cowboys to gain good fighting ground of their own choice, and the Comanches to cut them off. Arkansaw Charley was riding a splendid black stallion, sure of foot and very fleet, and the rest of the boys had to put their horses to full speed to keep up with their dashing young leader, whose long dark hair streamed out behind him like the fan of an eagle. Not more than one-third of the distance had been made when one of their horses fell, tumbling the cowboy in a ditch and breaking one of his legs. Instantly Charley and Curly Bill halted to fight where they were, rather than to leave one of their comrades in the hands of the Comanches; but seeing the disadvantage of the position, they roped the horse, placed the crippled cowboy upon his saddle and bade him follow toward the ridge.

The delay had brought the Indians near enough for showers of bullets and arrows to fly at them, but happily over their heads. The cowboys were all expert horsemen, and were soon on a sweeping run, and luckily gained the summit of the ridge. Quickly staking the horses out of range, they took position flat on the ground at the highest point and awaited the approach of the Indians, who had stopped about one thousand yards away.

Presently, with a terrific yell, the savages charged, throwing themselves on the sides of their horses, and sending showers of bullets and arrows at the little band, but hitting wide of the mark. The Americans held their fire till the enemy were within two hundred yards, when they sent volley after volley from their Winchesters, and fifteen horses were seen tumbling and charging in the throes of death. For some time not an Indian seemed to have been hit; but before they retreated out of range two of them were shot down. The Comanches collected in squads and were gesticulating at a frantic rate, then all at once they started in a run to gain the same ridge which sloped to the north from the point occupied by the cowboys. A new danger now threatened, for as soon as the Indians reached the low ridge the horses were brought within range of the enemy. Arkansaw Charley had them immediately removed to a secure place on the opposite slope of the hill.

When the Indians discovered this, they made another desparate charge, but were again repulsed, four Indians and ten horses being killed. Over half the Indians were now afoot, and a council ensued, and resulted in the Indians dividing their force so as to cover the whites in a charge from both west and south, which would again bring their horses in range. Curly Bill and three men at once moved lower down, so as to cover the stock with their rifles, while Charley and the rest of the boys held the summit. On came the savages with defiant yells, charging on foot and on horseback, but again were they repulsed with the loss of six horses and one Indian wounded. A long parley ensued, and presently a dozen or more Comanches were seen going over the hill with their horses; and half an hour later the same number were seen approaching afoot in a very stealthy manner, which was soon followed by like manœuvres by the other two squads. This change of tactics on the part of the Comanche chief greatly perplexed Charley and Curly Bill. "They are now creeping on us through the grass to lay for every man who exposes himself to their sight," said Charley. "Crawl into the ground if you can boys."

In this way the fight was kept up till thick darkness covered the plains. Two of the cowboys had been killed, both shot in the head. The broken-legged boy, a lad of seventeen, though suffering great pain, fought all the while, but, on changing his position to ease his pain, was struck dead by a musket ball.

Curly Bill crept back to the summit, sending three men to guard the horses. A council was held as to what was best to be done. The darkness now gave the savages the advantage; they, being below, could not be sighted, but every time one of the cowboys raised his head it was outlined against the sky so plainly as to become a good target for the Comanche marksmen.

"They can now creep within twenty yards of us, can capture our horses, and kill every man who pokes up his head. They'll kill us by detail," said Charley.

Their situation was indeed a critical one. To attempt to get away from the Indians then seemed the merest folly, and to wait the coming of day was even worse.

"It's a run for life any way we take it," continued Charley. "We'd better get to our horses, mount, and scatter like quails, and run our chances."

"I'll be dene," answered the boys with one voice.

Crawling like a snake in the grass, each man reached the picket which secured his horse, then to his feet, and in an instant all were mounted and off, each man taking his own direction Charley and Curly Bill leading the horses of their dead comrades rode off together. The savages, however, were not asleep, and as soon as the whi es showed the whites began a vigorous shooting. But the cowboys were off like a flash, leaving the Comanche chief biting his lips in rage over the slip they had given him. Three-fourths of his horses were dead upon the plain, many of his warriors killed and wounded, and the whites gone and not a horse captured.

Long was the night to that scattered bunch of cowboys upon the silent plains. The Comanches were not idle. The chief grew desperate, and taking six warriors was soon upon the trail of the four horses, going in a northeasterly direction, trailing them by the sound of the shod hoofs trampling the earth. Just at the approach of day Curly Bill's sharp eye discovered Indians on the track. Being unable to determine in what number, they quickened their gait in what direction they scarcely knew. Soon losing sight of the pursuers, and thinking perhaps they were mistaken, they slackened their pace and rode leisurely along till about 10 o'clock, when they stopped at a water hole to quench the almost killing thirst of themselves and their horses.

Thinking they were safe, they staked out their horses and prepared to breakfast on jerked beef and water, after which they stretched themselves upon the grass to rest while their horses were grazing. It was not long, however, before the tramping of horses' feet was heard, and the chief and six warriors were upon them, shooting and yelling at a terrible rate. Instantly they went for their horses. Curly Bill mounting first, turned on them and began shooting his revolver as only a cowboy can. Arkansaw Charley, by a mishap in attempting to catch the picket rope while firing his pistol, stumbled and fell. For only an instant though was he down, but long enough for an Indian to put a ball into his body before he gained his saddle. The contest now became fierce between the five savages—for two of teem had already been killed—and the desperate cowboys. Never were combatants more deadly in earnest. The chief, scowling upon the gallant Charley, fixed his bow, but from the American's quick and steady hand went a sudden ball, and the chief rolled dead upon the plains. But two savages now remained, and each singling out his man rushed upon him. Again the Americans were victors, and seven Comanches lay upon the ground with their painted faces hideous—all in death. The conflict ended and, swooning, Arkansaw Charley fell from his horse. Curly Bill Thompson instantly caught him in his strong arms. "Water—water"—whispered the white lips, and he swooned again.

The two friends remained for an hour at the water bathing the wound, which proved to be only a bad flesh cut in the side. It was carefully bandaged, and Charley was ready to ride. Curly Bill collected their own and the Indian horses, and, after scalping the dead Comanches, they mounted and rode slowly away.—Overland Staging in the Fifties," in the September Overland.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

I Never Expected to Recover.

The following statement from Mrs. Emeline P. Misner of Bury Hill, Ohio, will be of great interest to those who suffer from Bright's Disease or Gravel.—I have long resolved that I would apprise you of the deep sense of obligation which I feel. There is nothing which I now enjoy that I do not owe to the happy chance of having used Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy at a time when I was suffering all that a human being could endure. My troubles began in my Kidneys over nine years ago and from which I was compelled to use a cane when I walked, and I finally got so weak that I could not stand alone. In a few months my physician said I had Bright's disease, which was indeed alarming information. To add to my affliction after I had been ill about two years, I had a bad attack of Gravel. Six years ago, last June, how well I remember the day, I saw Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy of Rondout, N. Y., advertised in our paper. After using one bottle I threw away my cane and went to New York on a visit, and three bottle cured me, this was six years ago. I have never had a return of gravel, nor of the pains or weakness in the back, and though I am over sixty years of age

I am Now Vigorous and Strong as I was in my prime. I do all my own work, and rarely know what it is to be tired. I keep the medicine in the house and give it to my grandchildren, and recommend it wherever I can. What physicians and all of the many remedies I had taken could not do, Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy did. It stayed the disease and made me a strong, vigorous woman.
