The affair was arranged by the officers of the ward Relief society and by the members at Mrs. Silver's home. Refreshments were served and the guest of honor was deluged with flowers, compliments and presents. Mrs. Silver has been identified with ward and Relief society work since 1879, and has been active and earnest worker, and those present expressed the appreciation and love in which the lady is held.

Richard Burton entertained a number of his young friends at a lawn party last night at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Burton, a delightful time being spent by all.

A correspondent of the "News" in Raymond, Canada, sends us the following account of the wedding of two young people who come from families well known in Utah: On Wednesday evening, July 21, at Raymond, Canada, Phyllis Young was married to Harding Brewerton. The bride is a daughter of Brigham S. Young and the late Lottie Charlotte Young, while the groom is a son of Charles W. Brewerton and the late Mary Higham Brewerton. A numerous attended reception was held at the bride's home, where a description of the bridal costume may be summed up in the words—simple and white. The occasion itself was simple, homely and beautiful. The young couple stood on the porch facing the lawn. Bishop John F. Anderson who performed the ceremony, stood on the walk at the foot of the porch steps, and on either side of the bride and groom were the members of their family; on the lawn in the sweet night air under the gently waving trees stood the guests, a young moon shed its pale light over the scene, and with the low strains of a wedding march lent an added beauty to the simple but impressive ceremony. The young people begin life under the most favorable auspices. Beauty and strength are theirs, and with the love of the people among whom they live,

BLACK TIES A FAD OF THE SUMMER.

So smart are black neckties this summer that it is almost impossible to buy a black Windsor tie in any of the shops. Even the boys' counters have been depleted. These black ties are run through heavy Irish lace collars and stocks in various ways. Sometimes the tops of turnover lace collars are turned over the black tie and a pert bow tied in front. In this instance a bow of black tulle ribbon is used with a Puritan collar of tucked batiste and Irish lace, the ribbon passing through openings in the collar.

makes for them what is best in life. The gifts were numerous, appropriate and elegant. They will continue to reside in Raymond and will be at home to their friends from now on.

LITTLE MAID'S BONNET OF WHITE LAWN.

This enchanting bonnet, which comes from Paris, represents very little expense in the material—which is only white hemstitched lawn—but a deal of cleverness in the fashioning, which is distinctly Paris marked. Many yards of the snowy lawn are used for both the full puffed crown and pleated brim and the frills are so arranged on cords that when the bonnet is laundered it may be taken apart and put together again very easily.
