THE EVENING NEWS.

A BARRISTER'S STORY.

"I do not presume to doubt your word, Miss Peyton, but I have never seen or heard of any gentleman paying you attention, nor has my friend Charley Soame; so I presume the matter must be of a clandestine character. I may say also that Lady Geraldine has remarked that you seemed to favor my advances."

"Really," said she, "you are going too far, Mr. Molyneux, I am not bound to tell Mr. Charles Soame everything I do, nor is Lady Geraldine necessarily right in her surmises concerning my deportment toward you or any one else."

"Certainly not," said I; "but it seems incredible that a lady could evince so much pleasure in being with a person as you have in being in my company, without either caring for that person, or else being very—very—ah—possessing great indecision of character."

"Circumstances often happen in this world which appear singular, but which one word of explanation would make perfectly clear," said Miss Peyton, her eyes filling with tears. "We all bend to necessity."

"Necessity!" said I, almost grasping her hand. "What do you mean, Miss Peyton?"

"I only mean what I say," she replied.

"But," said I, "what is your necessity?" and I looked straight into her eyes.

"She paused for some time, and then said, "Can I trust you Mr. Molyneux?"

"Trust me!" replied I; "I would die for you with the greatest pleasure."

"But can you keep a secret?"

"You might as well whisper it to that rock," said I, pointing to a mighty mass of granite.

"Well," said she, "you ask me what my necessity is; it is to marry the man I only like, and not the man I really love. I was in real earnest when I showed my pleasure at being in your company. You are good, generous and talented; but I cannot give you my hand, though I love you, and that is the necessity to which I bend. If you really love me, you will go from here and never see me again; we may perhaps meet in the future under happier circumstances."

Her tears fell thick and fast, and I had the greatest difficulty in repressing my own emotion at this astonishing declaration.

"Miss Peyton," said I, "you surprise me. I—"

"No more, Mr. Molyneux," she replied; "you have my secret. Keep it. Farewell."

Before I could seize her hand she was gone, and I was left alone, and what my feelings were you may imagine.

It was past the dinner hour when I reached home, and when I entered the dining-room, Mr. Soame and Lady Geraldine were seated at the table, but Charley was not there.

"What have you two fellows been about?" inquired Mr. Soame in his usual good tempered way—"why, we are through the soup."

"Charley hasn't been with me," said I surprised; "I haven't seen him since luncheon. I thought he was out with you, Mr. Soame."

"O, I dare say he'll turn up presently," said the latter; "but he's generally pretty punctual at meals."

The evening went on, and Lady Geraldine began to get very fidgety, and even Mr. Soame, usually calm and imperturbable, showed signs of uneasiness.

It was now 10 o'clock and no Charley. I then suggested going out to look for him.

"Downright folly to go off without saying a word about it," said Mr. Soame.

"I never liked the boating business," said poor Lady Geraldine, in quivering accents, and hinting at some dreadful calamity.

"Don't be afraid, dear Lady Geraldine," said I "I'll bring him back safe. Charley is too cautious to run risks."

With this I left the house; not without I must confess, some misgivings about my poor friend. But my thoughts were more on Gertrude Peyton than any other subject, and with her I never once connected poor Charley Soame.

I reached Draper's Drop. The night was most beautiful; the full moon, with her rays reflected in the water appeared in her cloudless firmament like an immense ball of pale light, suspended by some invisible power. Right away before me stretched the mighty ocean, with a gentle ripple on its surface, which, as it rolled in upon the shingle, seemed to just kiss it and retire. I stood for some minutes to contemplate the grandeur of the scene. With the exception of the soft murmur of the water which arose from the beach below, and the gentle sighing of a light breeze through the trees just behind me, not a sound was to be heard. I folded my arms, and thought aloud. "Here," said I, "stood, the lovely creature who loves me, and who but a few hours ago told me so; and yet she is bound to marry the man she only likes. This must not, shall not be; it would simply be an outrage upon her. A father cannot make a child violate her feelings in this way. No, it shall not be;" and in the excitement to which I had raised myself by this soliloquy, I turned sharply round to walk home, when to my utter surprise and almost fright, with whom should I find myself face to face but Charley Soame! He stood before me, bolt upright, his hat off, his hair disordered, looking deadly pale, and with a countenance demoniac in expression. I instinctively started back. "Gracious heaven, Charley what is the matter?" said I, when I recovered myself; "why, your father and mother are dreadfully nervous about you, and I came out to look for you, but what on earth is all this about? Come along home, do!"

PEOPLE'S VERDICT

Over Half a Million sold and in use!

4,000 made and sold per week

SINGER'S
New Improved Silent
FAMILY SEWING MACHINES
ARE
The Best in the World,

Because all of them are in constant use, while a very large proportion of other makes are no used, owing to their being partially or utterly impracticable.

THE SINGER
NEW FAMILY MACHINE

Has been brought to perfection, regardless of time, labor or expense, and is now incomparably the best Sewing Machine in existence.

It is simple, compact, durable, beautiful, quiet, light-running, and capable of performing a range and variety of work never before attempted upon a single machine; using either Silk, Twist, Linen or Cotton Thread, and sewing with equal facility the very finest and coarsest materials, or anything between the two extremes, in the most beautiful and substantial manner.

The New Improved Attachments for Hemming, (any width) Braiding, Embroidering Magic Ruffling, Gathering and sewing on (at the same time) Self-Sewing, Cording, Tucking Quilting, Felling, Trimming, Binding, etc., are novel and practicable, and have been invented and adjusted especially for this Machine.

Folding Tops and Cabinet Cases.

New designs of the unique, useful and popular Folding Tops and Cabinet Cases, peculiar to the Singer Machine, are in every variety of Wood, such as black Walnut, Mahogany, Rosewood, Satin wood, and from the plainest to the most elaborate pattern and finish. The Machines themselves are plain or highly ornamented with pearl and gold to correspond with their tables or cabinets.

In the Singer the work is fed or passed through the Machine in the natural direction, namely, from the operator, permitting her to sit in a natural and healthy position. In many other Machines the work passes from right to left, or the reverse, compelling the operator to sit in a bent and unhealthy position, and thus causing weakness of the back, etc.

The Singer uses a SHORT STRAIGHT NEEDLE, which is not liable to break or miss the stitch. Many other Machines use a long crooked needle, which is liable to break and to miss the stitch.

In the Singer Machine the Shuttle is carried, thus avoiding nearly all wear. It requires no oil, and does not cut the thread or goods. Other Machines drive their Shuttles, in a race, thus causing great wear, and requiring oil, soiling the thread and goods.

On the Singer, the Tension on both the upper and lower threads is absolutely under the ready control of the operator, thus rendering the Machine always available for good sewing, which is not the case with any other. Many so-called cheap Machines are really worthless, and so are many of their new pretentious and supposed advantages.

The SINGER is the Oldest Practical Sewing Machine,

Being about twenty years in the market. Having been constantly improved by the employment of the most skilled ingenuity of the age and unlimited capital, it is now divested of all unnecessary parts and possesses All the Very Latest Inventions and Improvements. It is the only Machine sold on Honest Claims, as all its parts are Practical and will do all that is claimed for them. Some other Machines are Greatly Complicated, to do Useless and Silly things, and thus are rendered Liable to Constant Derangement. The Singer Seldom or Never gives trouble, but is readily and easily managed by those who utterly fail on other Machines.

SINGER'S
New Manufacturing Machines

Claim the same advantages over others of their class as the new Family Machines. These old and well-tried sewing Machines are applicable to all kinds of heavy and light manufacturing in Cloths, Leather, etc., and run in the most perfect and reliable manner without trouble to the operator.

HAVE ARRIVED!

A Full Assortment of those
Beautiful and Unrivaled MACHINES.

(The numbers on which show a manufacture of between Five and Six Hundred Thousand.) Consisting of the Different Varieties made by the Singer Manufacturing Company and we shall sell at Eastern Prices, with addition of Freight only. To accommodate parties who cannot pay all down, we will sell on

EASY MONTHLY INSTALMENTS

So that all may possess one of these Blessings.

For the convenience of our Patrons we have engaged the services of a gentleman who has had twenty years experience and is one of the most skillful experts in the world in repairing and adjusting Sewing Machines. He will put each Machine in complete and practical running order before it leaves the Institution and will also impart to purchasers all needful instruction, so that they can at once commence work.

We resort to no trickery whatever to sell Sewing Machines, but allow their Great Merits to recommend them. We can do this, as the demand for them is so great that although the Singer Company make more than all other first-class companies combined, they cannot nearly fill their orders, and are compelled to still extend their Gigantic Works.

We having been so fortunate as to secure the General Central Agency,

For this Territory, we extend a cordial invitation to all to come and see the Machines whether they wish to buy or not. See all others, but do not buy without you examine the Singer.

We Guarantee every Machine we sell to give entire satisfaction.
