

DESERET EVENING NEWS.

TRUTH AND LIBERTY.

VOL. V.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH TERRITORY, SATURDAY EVENING, DECEMBER 30, 1871.

NO. 33.

"Paper of the Rocky Mountain Region.
THE EVENING NEWS.
(Published every morning except Sunday.)

THE DESERET NEWS:
SEMI-WEEKLY.
(Published every Tuesday and Saturday.)
Terms for the Semi-Weekly:
One Copy, one year..... $5.00
six months..... 3.00
three months..... 2.00

DESERET NEWS: WEEKLY.
(Published every Wednesday.)
Terms for the Weekly:
One Copy, one year..... $5.00
six months..... 3.00
three months..... 2.00

PRICE.—One, South and East Temple Sts.

TERENCE M. CANNON, General Business Agent.

OUR NEWS ROOM AND JOB PRINTING OFFICE
Has ample facilities for the execution of all kinds of Book and Job Printing.

BOOK BINDING AND PAPER RULING
GEORGE Q. CANNON,
EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

RUNNING OUTLINE OF THE TICH-BORNES TUNNEL.

One of the comic papers recently had a cartoon which fairly represents the hold that the Tichborne romance has taken of the English public. John Bull was shown carrying a large bundle labeled "The Queen," and another labeled "The Princess." It was difficult to get rid of him as ever did the victims whom Sinbad told to get free from their persecutor. Everything else the cartoon tells us about great place to Tichborne. We have learned it is so great a bore of time that I can hardly tell how long it has been or will continue to be the topic of par-amount attention. Judges, Jurymen, and counsel have already made preparations to meet the difficulty that will arise before its termination. It lasted forty days before the long vacation, and the plaintiff's case was only just begun. How long more will run neither Jurymen nor counsel can say. The plaintiff's case is so strong he sends you constantly fresh statements of it. I have thought it well to send you on a resume of the case so far as it has been made public, so that your old readers may refresh their memories, and your new circumstances are concerned with this celebrated cause.

After much difficulty in securing a jury the case of the claimant was staled by Sergeant Ballinger, one of the most eminent members of the English bar, on Nov. 11. As will be remembered by those who have read Mr. Samuel Warren's famous novel of "Ten Thousand a Year," the most important cases frequently have as defendants ones who are not really so, but only by a巧 deviousness of the law, in which the client of Garrison & Snap, Mr. Tichborne Timmons, was the plaintiff, and a tenant the nominal defendant, in a suit for ejectment, so in the Tichborne case the claimant is Tichborne, son of the last of the Tichborne estate in Hampshire. The real defendants are the grandchildren of the infant known as Sir Alfred Joseph Doughty Tichborne. The plaintiff's case will be based upon his birthright and the right to dispossess him of the estates and titles which are now held by him and which are of large importance. In the generation preceding the plaintiff there were three brothers, the first of whom died childless; the second, who had assumed in consideration of an inheritance the name of Doughty, left one daughter, Madeline, who died childless, but no son; and the third brother had two sons, Sir James, whom the plaintiff claims to be, and James, who died young, leaving a posthumous child, Alfred, who at present holds the estate and title.

Sir James Tichborne married a French lady, daughter of an English gentleman and a man of means. She had a very unhappy life, making the life of her unhappy husband, "a hell upon earth," as he facetiously describes it. His education was entrusted to a Frenchman named Châtillon, and was grossly neglected. When his family returned to England, he was sent to a school. There he was beaten by the schoolmaster, and his health suffered greatly. He then sold out of the school, and after visiting his father and mother in Paris he took passage in the Pauline for Algarve. About this time he was slight, with long hair and eyes, and by no means had become a man. He was, however, very high. During his sojourn in France he fell on his head, receiving a wound which left a large mark. While in the army he had a serious fainting fit, from which he recovered only when the surgeon bled him in the arm. This is of which the claimant is accused, and medical evidence is forthcoming that he could not have inflicted them within any recent period. Returning to England he took the name of Mr. Alfred Doughty, and became a member of which was known to some. The defendant Tichborne declares that he can tell his contents if it is introduced by Gosford. When the Pauline sailed from Havre, there was on board a Roger Chattonneau, a very stout man named Moore. The vessel reached Valparaiso in June 1853, and the pair then proceeded to Santiago, where Moore fell ill and Tichborne left him to go to Valparaiso, from there he went to Melipilla and remained three weeks hunting for gold. He then returned to Valparaiso, from whence he sent home some birds, feathers and skins. Having taken a coasting voyage in the Pacific, he returned to Valparaiso and to Santiago, and then again went to Melipilla, to Rio Janeiro. He took passage in the steamer New York. That ship was lost. The news having come to England the next of kin administered the will of his father and took possession of the estate. Sir Roger having been tried and found guilty of the loss of all the crew of the Bath having been lost at sea, he was master before leaving England. He afterwards went to Durban, where he was unemployed, and eventually came to himself Thomas Castro, in memory of a companion at Melipilla. When at Durban he met Arthur, whose name figures so often in this trial, a builder of the butcher type — the butcher type of Wapping. This is the man whom the defendant claims is now impersonating Sir Roger Tichborne. For a long time these men associated together. One of the most important questions the jury will have to decide is whether Tom Arthur was Arthur Orion or Tichborne. In 1861 they visited Waga Waga. In 1862 Tichborne married.

While all believed in the loss of the Bell, his mother, Lady Felicitas Tichborne, hoped against hope and never ceased searching for it in 1862. The same year Sir Roger, who had seen the advertisements, and suspected Castro and the missing baronet were one. After awhile he wrote to his son from Waga Waga on January 17, 1862, his last previous letter having been dated in April, 1854. In this Australian letter he alluded to two circumstances, known only to her and to himself. She, however, did not accept it, as she had been recognized by Bogle, a black servant of the family, whereupon the defense said that Bogle had written Orion on all matters concerning the family. After going to America Tichborne returned to England in December, 1862, and went to Paris to see his mother, who was immediately recognized by her. A suit was therupon commenced for the restoration of the estate. It was resisted by the possessors declaring that the claimant was not the man he pretended to be. Commissioners were sent out by the court to Scotland to inquire into the affairs of Sir James. The so-called Sir Roger courted the strictest scrutiny, and for the purpose of proving his identity held interviews with men of all kinds, and soldiers in the Carabiniers, his solicitor, Mr. Hopkins; in fine, even his own mother declared that he is Sir Roger Tichborne. The trial commenced on May 10th, and after the examination of a number of witnesses the claimant was first placed on the stand on May 30th. He was examined through four days, and for two-thirds of the time he was the most interesting cross-examination that the solicitor general of England, Sir J. D. Coleridge, was capable of conducting. He was then re-examined for two days, and on July 7th the court adjourned until Nov. 7th. The proceedings since then have been as follows:—

LONDON, 29.—Alarmed at Gladstone's republican tendencies, the conservative section of the liberals, led by the Duke of Somers and Viscount Halifax, are seeking to form a coalition with the Tories, for the purpose of electing Bourne, a champion of the Commonwealth, of Bryan, and to compel the retirement of Gladstone.

This afternoon the papers publish a letter from Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, in which she says she desires to express her deep sense of the touching sympathy expressed for her family, by the whole nation, at the illness of her dear son. The universal feeling, says Queen Victoria, is one of sympathy during the painful and terrible time of the Prince's illness, their sympathy with herself and her daughter, the Princess of Wales, and the general joy manifested at the improvement in the health of the Prince, has made a deep and ineffaceable impression upon her heart.

The manifestations of the people's sympathy, she added, was nothing new, she met with the same sympathy ten years ago on a similar occasion, when same became of the main stay of herself and family.

London, 29.—Alarmed at Gladstone's republican tendencies, the conservative section of the liberals, led by the Duke of Somers and Viscount Halifax, are seeking to form a coalition with the Tories, for the purpose of electing Bourne, a champion of the Commonwealth, of Bryan, and to compel the retirement of Gladstone.

This afternoon the papers publish a letter from Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, in which she says she desires to express her deep sense of the touching sympathy expressed for her family, by the whole nation, at the illness of her dear son. The universal feeling, says Queen Victoria, is one of sympathy during the painful and terrible time of the Prince's illness, their sympathy with herself and her daughter, the Princess of Wales, and the general joy manifested at the improvement in the health of the Prince, has made a deep and ineffaceable impression upon her heart.

The manifestations of the people's sympathy, she added, was nothing new, she met with the same sympathy ten years ago on a similar occasion, when same became of the main stay of herself and family.

London, 29.—Alarmed at Gladstone's republican tendencies, the conservative section of the liberals, led by the Duke of Somers and Viscount Halifax, are seeking to form a coalition with the Tories, for the purpose of electing Bourne, a champion of the Commonwealth, of Bryan, and to compel the retirement of Gladstone.

This afternoon the papers publish a letter from Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, in which she says she desires to express her deep sense of the touching sympathy expressed for her family, by the whole nation, at the illness of her dear son. The universal feeling, says Queen Victoria, is one of sympathy during the painful and terrible time of the Prince's illness, their sympathy with herself and her daughter, the Princess of Wales, and the general joy manifested at the improvement in the health of the Prince, has made a deep and ineffaceable impression upon her heart.

The manifestations of the people's sympathy, she added, was nothing new, she met with the same sympathy ten years ago on a similar occasion, when same became of the main stay of herself and family.

London, 29.—Alarmed at Gladstone's republican tendencies, the conservative section of the liberals, led by the Duke of Somers and Viscount Halifax, are seeking to form a coalition with the Tories, for the purpose of electing Bourne, a champion of the Commonwealth, of Bryan, and to compel the retirement of Gladstone.

This afternoon the papers publish a letter from Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, in which she says she desires to express her deep sense of the touching sympathy expressed for her family, by the whole nation, at the illness of her dear son. The universal feeling, says Queen Victoria, is one of sympathy during the painful and terrible time of the Prince's illness, their sympathy with herself and her daughter, the Princess of Wales, and the general joy manifested at the improvement in the health of the Prince, has made a deep and ineffaceable impression upon her heart.

The manifestations of the people's sympathy, she added, was nothing new, she met with the same sympathy ten years ago on a similar occasion, when same became of the main stay of herself and family.

London, 29.—Alarmed at Gladstone's republican tendencies, the conservative section of the liberals, led by the Duke of Somers and Viscount Halifax, are seeking to form a coalition with the Tories, for the purpose of electing Bourne, a champion of the Commonwealth, of Bryan, and to compel the retirement of Gladstone.

This afternoon the papers publish a letter from Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, in which she says she desires to express her deep sense of the touching sympathy expressed for her family, by the whole nation, at the illness of her dear son. The universal feeling, says Queen Victoria, is one of sympathy during the painful and terrible time of the Prince's illness, their sympathy with herself and her daughter, the Princess of Wales, and the general joy manifested at the improvement in the health of the Prince, has made a deep and ineffaceable impression upon her heart.

The manifestations of the people's sympathy, she added, was nothing new, she met with the same sympathy ten years ago on a similar occasion, when same became of the main stay of herself and family.

London, 29.—Alarmed at Gladstone's republican tendencies, the conservative section of the liberals, led by the Duke of Somers and Viscount Halifax, are seeking to form a coalition with the Tories, for the purpose of electing Bourne, a champion of the Commonwealth, of Bryan, and to compel the retirement of Gladstone.

This afternoon the papers publish a letter from Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, in which she says she desires to express her deep sense of the touching sympathy expressed for her family, by the whole nation, at the illness of her dear son. The universal feeling, says Queen Victoria, is one of sympathy during the painful and terrible time of the Prince's illness, their sympathy with herself and her daughter, the Princess of Wales, and the general joy manifested at the improvement in the health of the Prince, has made a deep and ineffaceable impression upon her heart.

The manifestations of the people's sympathy, she added, was nothing new, she met with the same sympathy ten years ago on a similar occasion, when same became of the main stay of herself and family.

London, 29.—Alarmed at Gladstone's republican tendencies, the conservative section of the liberals, led by the Duke of Somers and Viscount Halifax, are seeking to form a coalition with the Tories, for the purpose of electing Bourne, a champion of the Commonwealth, of Bryan, and to compel the retirement of Gladstone.

This afternoon the papers publish a letter from Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, in which she says she desires to express her deep sense of the touching sympathy expressed for her family, by the whole nation, at the illness of her dear son. The universal feeling, says Queen Victoria, is one of sympathy during the painful and terrible time of the Prince's illness, their sympathy with herself and her daughter, the Princess of Wales, and the general joy manifested at the improvement in the health of the Prince, has made a deep and ineffaceable impression upon her heart.

The manifestations of the people's sympathy, she added, was nothing new, she met with the same sympathy ten years ago on a similar occasion, when same became of the main stay of herself and family.

London, 29.—Alarmed at Gladstone's republican tendencies, the conservative section of the liberals, led by the Duke of Somers and Viscount Halifax, are seeking to form a coalition with the Tories, for the purpose of electing Bourne, a champion of the Commonwealth, of Bryan, and to compel the retirement of Gladstone.

This afternoon the papers publish a letter from Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, in which she says she desires to express her deep sense of the touching sympathy expressed for her family, by the whole nation, at the illness of her dear son. The universal feeling, says Queen Victoria, is one of sympathy during the painful and terrible time of the Prince's illness, their sympathy with herself and her daughter, the Princess of Wales, and the general joy manifested at the improvement in the health of the Prince, has made a deep and ineffaceable impression upon her heart.

The manifestations of the people's sympathy, she added, was nothing new, she met with the same sympathy ten years ago on a similar occasion, when same became of the main stay of herself and family.

London, 29.—Alarmed at Gladstone's republican tendencies, the conservative section of the liberals, led by the Duke of Somers and Viscount Halifax, are seeking to form a coalition with the Tories, for the purpose of electing Bourne, a champion of the Commonwealth, of Bryan, and to compel the retirement of Gladstone.

This afternoon the papers publish a letter from Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, in which she says she desires to express her deep sense of the touching sympathy expressed for her family, by the whole nation, at the illness of her dear son. The universal feeling, says Queen Victoria, is one of sympathy during the painful and terrible time of the Prince's illness, their sympathy with herself and her daughter, the Princess of Wales, and the general joy manifested at the improvement in the health of the Prince, has made a deep and ineffaceable impression upon her heart.

The manifestations of the people's sympathy, she added, was nothing new, she met with the same sympathy ten years ago on a similar occasion, when same became of the main stay of herself and family.

London, 29.—Alarmed at Gladstone's republican tendencies, the conservative section of the liberals, led by the Duke of Somers and Viscount Halifax, are seeking to form a coalition with the Tories, for the purpose of electing Bourne, a champion of the Commonwealth, of Bryan, and to compel the retirement of Gladstone.

This afternoon the papers publish a letter from Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, in which she says she desires to express her deep sense of the touching sympathy expressed for her family, by the whole nation, at the illness of her dear son. The universal feeling, says Queen Victoria, is one of sympathy during the painful and terrible time of the Prince's illness, their sympathy with herself and her daughter, the Princess of Wales, and the general joy manifested at the improvement in the health of the Prince, has made a deep and ineffaceable impression upon her heart.

The manifestations of the people's sympathy, she added, was nothing new, she met with the same sympathy ten years ago on a similar occasion, when same became of the main stay of herself and family.

London, 29.—Alarmed at Gladstone's republican tendencies, the conservative section of the liberals, led by the Duke of Somers and Viscount Halifax, are seeking to form a coalition with the Tories, for the purpose of electing Bourne, a champion of the Commonwealth, of Bryan, and to compel the retirement of Gladstone.

This afternoon the papers publish a letter from Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, in which she says she desires to express her deep sense of the touching sympathy expressed for her family, by the whole nation, at the illness of her dear son. The universal feeling, says Queen Victoria, is one of sympathy during the painful and terrible time of the Prince's illness, their sympathy with herself and her daughter, the Princess of Wales, and the general joy manifested at the improvement in the health of the Prince, has made a deep and ineffaceable impression upon her heart.

The manifestations of the people's sympathy, she added, was nothing new, she met with the same sympathy ten years ago on a similar occasion, when same became of the main stay of herself and family.

London, 29.—Alarmed at Gladstone's republican tendencies, the conservative section of the liberals, led by the Duke of Somers and Viscount Halifax, are seeking to form a coalition with the Tories, for the purpose of electing Bourne, a champion of the Commonwealth, of Bryan, and to compel the retirement of Gladstone.

This afternoon the papers publish a letter from Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, in which she says she desires to express her deep sense of the touching sympathy expressed for her family, by the whole nation, at the illness of her dear son. The universal feeling, says Queen Victoria, is one of sympathy during the painful and terrible time of the Prince's illness, their sympathy with herself and her daughter, the Princess of Wales, and the general joy manifested at the improvement in the health of the Prince, has made a deep and ineffaceable impression upon her heart.

The manifestations of the people's sympathy, she added, was nothing new, she met with the same sympathy ten years ago on a similar occasion, when same became of the main stay of herself and family.

London, 29.—Alarmed at Gladstone's republican tendencies, the conservative section of the liberals, led by the Duke of Somers and Viscount Halifax, are seeking to form a coalition with the Tories, for the purpose of electing Bourne, a champion of the Commonwealth, of Bryan, and to compel the retirement of Gladstone.

This afternoon the papers publish a letter from Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, in which she says she desires to express her deep sense of the touching sympathy expressed for her family, by the whole nation, at the illness of her dear son. The universal feeling, says Queen Victoria, is one of sympathy during the painful and terrible time of the Prince's illness, their sympathy with herself and her daughter, the Princess of Wales, and the general joy manifested at the improvement in the health of the Prince, has made a deep and ineffaceable impression upon her heart.

The manifestations of the people's sympathy, she added, was nothing new, she met with the same sympathy ten years ago on a similar occasion, when same became of the main stay of herself and family.

London, 29.—Alarmed at Gladstone's republican tendencies, the conservative section of the liberals, led by the Duke of Somers and Viscount Halifax, are seeking to form a coalition with the Tories, for the purpose of electing Bourne, a champion of the Commonwealth, of Bryan, and to compel the retirement of Gladstone.

This afternoon the papers publish a letter from Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, in which she says she desires to express her deep sense of the touching sympathy expressed for her family, by the whole nation, at the illness of her dear son. The universal feeling, says Queen Victoria, is one of sympathy during the painful and terrible time of the Prince's illness, their sympathy with herself and her daughter, the Princess of Wales, and the general joy manifested at the improvement in the health of the Prince, has made a deep and ineffaceable impression upon her heart.

The manifestations of the people's sympathy, she added, was nothing new, she met with the same sympathy ten years ago on a similar occasion, when same became of the main stay of herself and family.

London, 29.—Alarmed at Gladstone's republican tendencies, the conservative section of the liberals, led by the Duke of Somers and Viscount Halifax, are seeking to form a coalition with the Tories, for the purpose of electing Bourne, a champion of the Commonwealth, of Bryan, and to compel the retirement of Gladstone.

This afternoon the papers publish a letter from Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, in which she says she desires to express her deep sense of the touching sympathy expressed for her family, by the whole nation, at the illness of her dear son. The universal feeling, says Queen Victoria, is one of sympathy during the painful and terrible time of the Prince's illness, their sympathy with herself and her daughter, the Princess of Wales, and the general joy manifested at the improvement in the health of the Prince, has made a deep and ineffaceable impression upon her heart.

The manifestations of the people's sympathy, she added, was nothing new, she met with the same sympathy ten years ago on a similar occasion, when same became of the main stay of herself and family.

London, 29.—Alarmed at Gladstone's republican tendencies, the conservative section of the liberals, led by the Duke of Somers and Viscount Halifax, are seeking to form a coalition with the Tories, for the purpose of electing Bourne, a champion of the Commonwealth, of Bryan, and to compel the retirement of Gladstone.

This afternoon the papers publish a letter from Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, in which she says she desires to express her deep sense of the touching sympathy expressed for her family, by the whole nation, at the illness of her dear son. The universal feeling, says Queen Victoria, is one of sympathy during the painful and terrible time of the Prince's illness, their sympathy with herself and her daughter, the Princess of Wales, and the general joy manifested at the improvement in the health of the Prince, has made a deep and ineffaceable impression upon her heart.

The manifestations of the people's sympathy, she added, was nothing new, she met with the same sympathy ten years ago on a similar occasion, when same became of the main stay of herself and family.

London, 29.—Alarmed at Gladstone's republican tendencies, the conservative section of the liberals, led by the Duke of Somers and Viscount Halifax, are seeking to form a coalition with the Tories, for the purpose of electing Bourne, a champion of the Commonwealth, of Bryan, and to