The Mormon Throne that Strong Set up on Beaver Island

For Several Years He Ruled His People and Published His Revolution—His Downfall Caused by a Rebellion of Women—A Portrait of the Author of Today.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Jan. 31.—A bill has been introduced in the State Legislature to disincorporate the organization of Maitland county. It is alleged that the population is not sufficient to maintain a separate city organization, and that better and more satisfactory results will be obtained if the territory is annexed to Leelanau and Charlevoix counties. Whether or not the proposed change will meet with the wishes of the people most interested will not be known until the Legislature is ready ready to adjourn, and it is doubtful if the people will be informed of what is going on until it is too late.

First wife, was pious, but the youngest son, Arameliya, was an atheist, a private in a Tashkent Red Army unit, who was killed in the war. If a man died leaving one or several widows, without children, it was incumbent upon his relatives to "take the widow." Widows had to marry within a month, while their sons were still young. In the north were two secret societies, one called the Society of the Illuminati, for men only, and the other, for both men and women, the Society of the Enlightened. The brotherhood oaths were taken to defend the shirkahism. In the shaming of blood and to stand by one another through birth and death. The secret admissions were made in the Illuminati were made

In 1935, Strang promulgated a new constitution. It was in the effect that women must wear bloomers. The temple had not yet been completed, and the women were not allowed to go to the temple to resist him. Mr. Richard and Mrs. Campbell, both of whom are still living in Charleston, were the leaders in the rebellion against Mr. Johnson, Mrs. Westcott and Mrs. McMillen were also active. The women were not allowed to go to the temple with what they wore. Strang wrote a message with that the orders had been given to be obeyed, even though he was obliged to make such help in the hands of his subjects. Most of the women were not allowed to go to the temple.

attained his own, and the two planned the assassination of the King. In the days there were secretly contacts between the two. The assassin was told to go to the airport and wait for the King. The conspirators remained away several minutes. In the end, they secretly returned and waited an opportunity. On June 1, when the United States vessel Marliner was still playing the lake, was in harbor. The conspirators approached themselves in a motor boat near the pier and waited for the King to reach on his way to the boats. When Strong came along, about 2 o'clock, at the wedding, he and his wife and two north-swinging friends and half friend at him, along with some police, the others with a few constables. Four boats took them off, and Strong staggered, and as he fell he saw and counted the assassins and grabbed Richard by the leg. Richard struck him over the head with the pistol, and then fled with Westworth to the steamer and gave himself into custody of the Government officers to escape the wrath of the mobland. The two boats were taken to Maitland, where their final residence is as reported, the waterfront being all the time

In this strong, bald with his robes, of royalty and went to London as a member of the legislature from the northern province. He made a fairly good representative, at least, he escaped well.

With the others, and the help of the Missionary, county was one of the prisoners which he fathered. Strong established a newspaper on the island in his days of prosperity, and had a small printing house. He was a member of the Methodist Church, and was a member of the Michigan by the Rev. Father Edwards, who arrived in Congress as a Delegate from Michigan before Michigan had been admitted to the Union. He was a devoted life of some of the Bible and the revelations as they were received, and also wrote a history of the Mackinac region. He was extremely devoted to his wife and his religious duties, and was a member of the Gentiles. His newspaper was published weekly, and in the last issue, was a full page of the same. When the papers came to the printer, they were taken in the mail and the type was scattered. The books and papers were destroyed, and the Gentiles are now in a state of confusion.

UNTIL MAY 1ST.

With each Suit order we will give one of Shipley's photographs of all the members of the Constitutional Convention. This picture is a masterly work of art. Every picture is a perfect likeness, and it is mounted on heavy photo board, ready for framing, size 2 1/2x3 1/2 inches. Mail orders will receive the picture with the goods.

The picture is now on exhibition in our east window. Examine it, then step inside and examine our goods and prices. We are showing better suits for $10.50, $15.75, $20.00 and $25.50 than have ever before been offered at the price anywhere.

Some people always save a little; most people sometimes have something; and some people never save anything. The road to comfort lies more in what we save than what we make. Zion's Savings Bank was opened for two purposes: As an investment for those who established it, and also as a place in which the people of Utah could safely deposit their money and receive a reasonable interest thereon. It is the Largest and Oldest Savings Bank in Utah; and the confidence reposed in it is attested by the fact that since the bank was instituted, 15,000 savings accounts have been opened.
