STRIKE AT SCOFIELD.

The strike situation at the mines of the Pleasant Valley Coal company remains unchanged today. Owing to the fact that the wires are working in a very unsatisfactory manner, there is little or no news to be obtained from the scene of the lockout. Enquiry at the office of the company in this city this afternoon elicited the information that all was quiet, at Scofield and that no trouble was anticipated

The following notices were posted by the Pleasant Valley Coal company yesterday:

"Winter Quarters, Jan. 24. "Mr. H. G. Williams, General Superin-tendent Pleasant Valley Coal Com-pany, Clear Creek, Utah:

"Dear Sir :-- Please have mine superintendent hand a copy of this letter to the committee of Clear Creek men who came to him yesterday; also post a copy near the mine. We consider that the company has treated the Winter Quarters men fairly. They are making good wages, and, further, we consider that the company was not treated fairwhen the men made their peremptory demands, refusing even to give us three days' time to discuss or consider the questions raised. By their own actions and under present conditions they have deliberately cut off discussion and prevent the company from considering or taking any action. "As to the threat of Clear Creek miners to strike in sympathy, or any further demands for increased wages, they could not be granted even if not accompanied by threats to strike. It is only three weeks since concessions were made at Clear Creek. These concessions were considered promptly and made freely, to correct an injustice to the men working in the low coal, We the men working in the low cont, we should regret to see a strike at Clear Creek, but if it must come we will have to meet it as best we can. "Yours truly, "GENERAL MANAGER.

"Notice-As Winter Quarters men efused to grant the three days' time or consideration asked for by the company and recommended by their own committee, they have, by their own ac-tion, deliberately cut off discussion on their peremptory demands. Under these circumstances we consider that the company has not been fairly treat-ed, and as we were already satisfied

TRIUMPH OF MODERN SURGERY

H. A. Woodmansee of Salt Lake Sees His Own Feet Amputated.

SUFFERED NO PAIN AT ALL.

Subarachnoid Method of Anaesthesia Successfully Tried for the First Time in the West.

The operation of removing both of H. A Woodmansee's feet at St. Mark's hospital last Wednesday was one of the first successful surgical operations that have been performed by what is called the subarachnoid method of anaesthesia. Dr. A. C. Behle is the surgeon who did the work.

Woodmansee got his feet frozen two weeks ago while out locating some mining claims for his mother some five miles or so from Ohpir.

He was riding into Ophir to record the claims when he was thrown from his borse and lapsed into a state of unconsciousness. When he came to himself it was night and he was lying in four or five feet of snow. He wandered around during the night but was not successful in keeping his feet from freezing. With difficulty he made his way into Ophir when day light broke. Thence he was carried to Tooele, and afterwards removed to his home in Salt Lake City. Dr. Beehle was called in and had the patient sent to St. Mark's hospital. Here it became evident that Woodmansee's feet could not be saved "Exposure and suffering had so weakened the patient," said Dr. Behle, "and he was in such a run-down condition that the shock of removing his feet would be great. So I decided to use the subarachnoid method of local anaesthesia.

'This method consists of the insertion of a long, hollow needle into the spinal canal at a point where the nerves extending to the lower limbs leave the spinal cord. The cord is surrounded by cerebro-spinal fluid. Through this needle a sterilized solution of cocaine is injected, which, mixed with this fluid, produces the desired anaesthesia. All sensation of pain is destroyed in the tissues below this point and for a short distance above. The usual shock and distress from such anaesthetics as chloroform or ether are entirely avoided by this method. The patient, if he choses, can witness the preparations and the operation itself.
