

MORE ILL LUCK OVERTAKES HEINZE

Unable to Meet Payments on Stock. He Loses Control of Mercantile Nat'l Bank.

HOLDINGS REVERT TO GOULD.

William Nelson Cromwell Says It Is The Intention to Reconstruct
The Institution.

New York, Jan. 8.—Unable to meet payments due on his stock in the institution today, F. Augustus Heinze lost control of the Mercantile National bank, the conduct of which, as its president, had brought about his arraignment in the United States circuit court earlier in the day on charges of over-certification.

One year ago Heinze bought a controlling interest from the Goulds, with whom he pledged his holdings as security for his promise to pay for them in full within one year. This loan of $1,200,000 was due today to Edwin Gould and William Nelson Cromwell, who was a member of the Gould party in the bank before the Mercantile was added to the Heinze-Morse-Thomas chain of financial houses. Up to the last moment allowed him Heinze struggled to meet his obligations, and so to retain his banking interests. His failure was chronicled in the following statement, issued by Mr. Cromwell after an afternoon's conference of the parties concerned:

A STATEMENT.
"The Heinze stock in the Mercantile National bank has been acquired by Mr. Gould in a satisfactory arrangement. Mr. Heinze was given every possible chance to pay for the stock, but because of his inability to do so in the time agreed upon, we have been forced to take it over."

Later Mr. Cromwell added that the Gould interests would assume their proper place in the bank board at the meeting on Jan. 14. This implies, of course, that the so-called Heinze directors will then retire.

This morning Heinze, now under bail consequent upon an indictment by the federal grand jury on a charge of over-certifying checks of his brother's brokerage firm involving $460,000, was arraigned before Judge Charles.

A plea of not guilty was entered and permission was had to alter or withdraw it, or to make any other desired motions later. An adjournment of the case was ordered until Jan. 20, when the final plea will be made. The bail of $50,000 was continued.

It was reported today that other equally as prominent as Heinze in Wall street operations, were to be called before the federal authorities to plead to similar indictments. Who they are or when their arrests are to be expected, could not be learned at the United States district attorney's office. It is known that the grand jury is not yet through with its inquiry into certain banking conditions exposed by the recent financial flurry. United States Dist. Atty. Stimson, who was seen after Heinze's arraignment, said:

"It would be improper for me to reveal the evidence I have seen. I give my case away, but I can say that the investigation is not yet over."

Upon leaving the federal building Heinze had nothing to say, further than that he would not leave the city until a disposition of his case had been made.

Soon afterward, accompanied by his counsel, Edward Lauterbach, Heinze joined Edwin Gould and William Nelson Cromwell in the conference which ended in his returning to them the bank shares for which he was unable to pay. It is known that the transaction was not concluded until every means by which Heinze might have held his interest had been exhausted.

After the collapse of the United Copper pool and the subsequent clearing-house investigation of the Mercantile bank, when Heinze resigned the presidency, and the directors likewise resigned, the copper magnate declared that he would still hold his stock. The bank, however, had been adversely affected by the trouble, and it was generally believed that a way would be found again to bring it under the Gould

TRY THIS FOR COLDS.

Mix half ounce of Concentrated oil of pine with two ounces of glycerine and a half pint of good whiskey; shake well each time and use as a table-spoonful every four hours.

This is the formula prescribed by the renowned throat and lung specialist who established the camp for consumptives in the pine woods of Maine. He declares that it will heal the lungs and in any cough that is curable and will break up an acute cold in twenty-four hours. The ingredients can be secured from any druggist at a small cost and is easily infused at home.

Be sure to get the ordinary bulk oil of pine not patent medicine imitations. They will produce nausea on account of the impurities that contain and frequently do permanent injury to the kidneys.

The real "Concentrated" oil of pine is put up for medical use in half ounce vials, enclosed in tin screw top cases which protect it from heat and light.

Influences. This opportunity came today. A new directorate, practically installing the former magnate, is now expected to restore the institution to its old-time standing. For years the bank had been under the control of the Gould interests, and then Heinze, who was branching out as a banker, and with associates, was striving to secure direction of a number of local banks, acquired considerable holdings in the institution. He succeeded when he obtained about 8,000 shares of the stock from Edwin Gould and 1,000 from W. N. Cromwell. It was reported at the time that the purchase price was $325. Heinze paid part cash and gave his notes for the remainder. These notes, he is said, ran for six months, when they were renewed.

Charles W. Morse and E. R. Orlando Thomas had previously secured considerable of the bank's stock, and with Heinze's holdings they were easily able to make him president and to elect the directorate. Both Morse and the Thomases are supposed to have already disposed of their interests. Concerning a report that Heinze and Morse had a misunderstanding over the ill-fated bull campaign in United Copper, which was about to culminate in a law suit, John C. Tomlinson, personal counsel to Heinze, said tonight:

"No papers have been drawn. It is true that there has been a general discussion of Mr. Heinze's affairs, but no definite action in any direction has been decided on. The relations of Mr. Heinze and Mr. Morse have been most pleasant."

Discussing today's developments informally tonight, Mr. Cromwell said: "Now that Mr. Heinze no longer has anything to do with the institution in an official capacity, we intend to begin to reconstruct the bank. It is now our intention to proceed to regain the ground that it lost. It had always been a good, old, conservative institution, with an excellent business, and we believe that it will recover within a short time. With the interests who now have control, there can be no more talk about the possible liquidation of the bank."

As to what effect the change might have on the possibility of law suits involving the bank, Mr. Cromwell was not prepared to express an opinion. "These matters," he said, "along with the matter of Heinze's balance with the bank, will have to be taken care of in the future."

A NEW CATHOLIC DIOCESE.

Created in Illinois and to be Known
As Bishopric of Rockford.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—A new Roman Catholic diocese was created in the state of Illinois yesterday. It was carved out of the arch-diocese of Chicago, and will be known as the bishopric of Rockford. A new bishop will soon be provided for it. He will have his cathedral in Rockford and his residence will also be in that city.

The new diocese will comprise 12 counties in the northwestern section of the state and have at the start a Catholic population of 100,000. It was formed at a meeting here, presided over by Archbishop James E. McCormick and attended by the three suffragan bishops of the state, the Right Revs. J. L. Spalding, Peoria, John Ryan, Alton, and J. Janssen, Belleville.

The bishop of the new diocese will be a suffragan of the Chicago archdiocese, making four suffragan bishops in the state where now there are only three.

SEATTLE FAIR TO ASK FOR AID

Boomers from Northwest Already

ASK GOVERNMENT EXHIBIT.

It Is Claimed That the Coming Exposition Is Entitled to One—Queer Misunderstandings.

Special Correspondence.
Washington, Jan. 7.—The Jamestown exposition, held last year in Virginia, was such a failure and will first and last cost Uncle Sam so much money that most congressmen gasp if the suggestion is made to help out any more of these exhibitions. And yet they will be called upon this session to do that very thing. They are going to have a big show out at Seattle in 1909. The Seattle boomers have been in town for several weeks. They are not going to ask for an appropriation directly in aid of the exhibition. They merely want Congress to fork over about $1,500,000 so that the government may be properly represented. They claim that this was done for all past exhibitions and that Congress should not make a notable exception by leaving the Seattle show out in the cold.

NOT MUCH CONSOLATION.

The government will have to do some fine bookkeeping and also probably go into the real estate business to get back its money from the Jamestown corporation. If the officials of that exposition are put on the rack and asked by some unfeeling congressman what was accomplished in having an exhibition that they promised would be both instructive and profitable, they will have to reply, as did the captain of a whaling fleet sent out years ago by a rich New Englander who upbraided the skipper for not bringing back any bone or blubber, "Well, even if we didn't get any whales we had a mighty fine sail."

WAYS FOR THE WILY.

Last fall Senator Lodge delivered before the Central Labor union of Boston a speech in opposition to the public opinion bill as reported to the Massachusetts house of representatives. This was an act to authorize the submission of a voters on official ballots at state elections of questions of public policy. Senator Hale thought so much of the speech that he has had Congress print it as a public document for general distribution. When Mayor Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland was a member of Congress he tried to have a big book on the single tax, written by the late Henry George, printed as a public document, but objection was raised. One day the objectors were not looking, and Mr. Johnson obtained leave to extend his remarks in the Record, and all of the book was published under that title arrangement.

UNCOMMON AT LEAST.

Focht. This is a name. It's a peculiar name, isn't it? And yet you know him, but what that cognomen may yet become a household word? It belongs to a statesman. To relieve the suspense, Mr. Focht is a member of Congress from the Seventeenth district of Pennsylvania. His first name is Benjamin, and it is followed by a K, but in the Congressional Directory Mr. Focht doesn't let us know what that stands for. Mr. Focht, in addition to being an embryo statesman, is also a newspaper man for the story of his life furnished to the directory by himself says that he has been editor and proprietor of the Saturday News of Lewisburg ever since he was 18 years old. That was not long ago, for he is only 44 years of age now. Focht tells us further that he is the author of the present ballot law of Pennsylvania and other important legislation. Besides retaining a newspaper, Mr. Focht is also engaged in railroad and industrial operations, with headquarters in Philadelphia and New York.

form products in the Ozark region of his state, Senator Warner of Missouri happened to remark to a friend that it was also a great fruit country. The gentleman has a Virginia friend who has a most profitable orchard in the Shenandoah valley, from which he made many thousands of dollars this year from his apples. Meeting the latter, he told him that Senator Warner had informed him that grape fruit could be successfully and properly raised in the Ozark country.

"Can it be possible?" asked the Virginian. "I always thought grape fruit was indigenous only to the soils of warm or tropical climates. That is well looking into it."

A few days later Senator Warner's friend mentioned that he had given the valuable information to the Virginian. "I never said we could produce grape fruit in Missouri. I said it was a 'great' fruit country. You misunderstood me."

"As much so as did a negro servant in Washington who was instructed by his employer to remove from a pair of trousers some large spots of paint and have them in his room bright and early the next morning," replied the senator's friend.

"Deed, boss," exclaimed the darkey. "I done my best, but dot paint it seem like 'don't come out.'"

"Have you tried ammonia?" asked the employer.

"No, sah," said the grinning negro. "I ain't tried 'em on me, but I knows dey's fit me to a gnat's heel."

"The darkey fell heir to the trousers."

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

Ellis Island Officials Object to Law
Requiring Them.

New York, Jan. 9.—The immigration officials at the mission station stationed at Ellis island, the immigrant receiving station, object seriously to the new law in New York state requiring licenses to marry. Scores of couples arrive at Ellis island with the expectation of marrying as soon as they reach this country. Under the old arrangement these couples were at once married by the ministers who are stationed at the island as missionaries of various religious societies. It is the rule to allow unmarried women to enter the country unless there is some one to care for them and provide that they shall not become public charges. Under the new law the missionaries cannot marry the couples who arrive at the island without licenses and the immigration laws do not make any provision for prospective husbands at all. As the city hall is closed at 4 p. m., the city clerk finds it impossible to accede to Commissioner Watchorn's request that a license bureau be opened on the island and the officials are in a quandary. Whenever possible men and women detained at the island who wish to marry are paroled in the care of missionaries who lead them to the city hall and assist them in securing a license. In such a case, however, the responsibility for their return is with the missionary and it is probable that it is only in exceptional cases that they will be willing to assume the risk. Commissioner Watchorn has asked Washington for a ruling on the matter.

RANK FOOLISHNESS.

A BERTH FOR LOEB.

District of Columbia Railways to be Consolidated and He to be Manager.

Washington, Jan. 8.—Investigation in local financial circles by Representative Smith of Michigan, chairman of the house committee on the District of Columbia, warrants him in saying that there is to be a consolidation of the street car companies of the District of Columbia and that William Loeb, Jr., secretary to President Roosevelt, is to be given the active management of the consolidated properties. Mr. Smith has been making inquiry into the street car situation with the view of getting legislation authorizing the construction of lines to the new Union station. He had a conference with Mr. Loeb at the White House today.

While not denying the statements which have been made regarding his prospective change of occupation, Mr. Loeb indicated that he is not as yet ready to make a statement on the subject.

Mr. Smith said on leaving the White House that the proposed consolidation would relieve the proposed legislation of probable amendments for universal transfers and 3-cent fares. It is believed Mr. Loeb's influence would greatly aid in securing legislation for street railway improvements for the district.

WILLIAMS AND DE ARMOND HAVE BECOME RECONCILED

Washington, Jan. 8.—In the presence of the entire house, Representative Williams of Mississippi and Representative DeArmond of Missouri, whose physical encounter on the floor of the house, just before the Christmas adjournment attracted general attention today engaged in an exchange of amenities which was generally accepted as a public announcement of their respective intentions not to permit their personal differences to interfere with the courteous discharge of their public duties.

The incident occurred in connection with an effort by Mr. Dalzell of the committee on rules to get the house to agree to a rule giving right of way to the bill authorizing the codification and amendment of the penal laws of the United States and limiting general debate to four hours.

Several Democratic members expressed the opinion that the rule was a scheme to sidetrack other legislation.

Mr. Dalzell, however, retorted this. Minority Leader Williams came to the rescue and favored the rule, saying that Congress ought to get rid of the report as it embodied the result of the labor of the commission for 10 years. He said the matter was wholly non-partisan in every way.

To the surprise of everyone, Mr. Williams then yielded 10 of his 20 minutes' time to Mr. DeArmond of Missouri, who politely bowed his acknowledgments. The two men constitute the minority of the committee on rules and are necessarily thrown together in the committee's work and other members of the house expressed satisfaction over their evident intention to preserve amenities in their official relations.

Mr. DeArmond attacked the rule because, in his opinion, the bill, which is a very long one, would be used as a buffer the entire session against other and more important legislation. Mr. Williams was vigorously supported by Sherry of Kentucky, Watkins of Louisiana, Houston of Tennessee, and Mason of Arkansas, all members of the committee of revision of the laws. The rule was passed by an overwhelming majority, despite efforts by Mr. DeArmond and seven adherents to secure the year and night and the house at once proceeded to the consideration and reading of the bill.
