

the opening of the Democratic headquarters in 1880, Hadley, who had been previously introduced to him, came to him for money to start a Republican Hancock Club. Hadley was told he might be spared $500. After the publication of the Morey letter, word came from New Hampshire that Morey could be found out about at Lynn, Mass., Hadley said he would go for his expenses only. He was given $200 or $250 for expenses before going. (The committee was afterwards informed that Hadley had gotten into some trouble and the committee gave him $1,000 as a simple donation. This must have been before Hadley's letter asking for pay for his services. Barnum has no recollection of promising Hadley anything for his services, and said it had not been a subject of consideration among the members of the committee that Hadley had a claim for compensation. Barnum in reply to the questions said that the circumstances connected with the Morey letter made a fair impression on his mind, but Hadley's name was not strongly identified with them.

After recess the State ticket was completed as follows: Secretary of State, George Kempton; Treasurer and Receiver, Ger. C. B. Knight; Attorney General, Samuel M. Fairfield; Auditor, Wm. W. Sherman. In the declaration of principles the belief is expressed that in the present campaign the paramount issue is the temperance issue. No mere party questions are in order until intemperance is put down and stamped out. James G. Blaine's action in view of failing to vote the prohibition amendment in Maine, proves him to be "an eminently fit exponent of the cowardly position of his party on the question of prohibition." A telegram was sent congratulating the prohibitionists of Maine upon their victory on Tuesday. An unsuccessful attempt was made to secure the adoption of a resolution favoring woman suffrage. Adjourned.

This evening the Czar and party proceeded to Wilna, where they will attend the military manoeuvres. There has been a thousand arrests in connection with the visit of the Czar. To-night the Czar drove to the theatre incognito.
