I have not one word of inch rule measure as far as the twelve reflection to make against you, yet you inch? No; nor can the three inch or the are living at a poor dying rate. Do you six inch man measure as far as the doubt it? I want you to be faithful, and Johnson J men and just as good as the man that to be lost. can circumscribe thirteen inches. I wish r can circumscribe thirteen inches. I wish now to talk to the little boys, Therefore, if a man in this respect should be a little behind, we should not what I have been saywhip him up as we would a horse, but ing to day, my little boys, will apply to you as much as it will to your fathers. What brother Stevenson has said this morning is all good, and you would know it if you read the Bible and the Book of Mormon. There is not one juarter of you that read those books as away and do as your father has told you, know they coincide the one with the to meeting instead of running about other. This book, the Book of Mor-mon, is a pure record, and I know it, although it treats of wars and conten-tions. I have lived nearly all my life where it came forth and I understand all about it. I have been to the altar where Adam offered sacrifices and blessed his sons and then left them and went to heaven. Now I want you to read the Bible and the Book of Mormon, for we have to build a city, we who are righteous and keep the celestial law, we have to build Now I want you to read the Bible and the Book of Mormon, for we have to ride, he had ridden in buggy and on a city that will compare with the one what account would you be if no de that has gone to heaven. Consider these things and then see how you are progressing. You sit in judgment on your neighbors, when you are guilty of more tricks than they are, and when there is more evil in you than in them. Jesus said, "thou shalt not speak evil of thy neighand the commandments say, bor," "thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor," and the com-mandments are binding upon us. Jesus said also, "thou shalt not commit adul-tery." Now some persons look upon adultery as an awful thing, which it is; said also, "thou shalt not commit adul-tery." Now some persons look upon aduitery as an awful thing, which it is; but they pay no attention to the other command, which is equally binding, forbidding them to speak evil of their neighbor. It is said thou shalt not speak against the anointed; yet you do speak against them, and justify your-selves in doing evil. It is difficult for many here even to hold my name sa-cred; and when I have heard of what some men here would do, I have asked myself what manner of men they were. ANOTHER FATAL OIL EXPLOSION. A PICTURESQUE CAMP.

One of the most picturesque scenes have looked upon for some time is Mr Harvey's camp. Nestling among the willows are tents, wagons doing duty for aleeping chambers, neat boweries, and inviting-looking wick-e-ups. Here a lady busy with the needle; there another superintending some culinary operation; with children enjoying themselves among the feathery foliage, and the movements of busy life on every hand; while the creek, meandering down its devious way, now seen, now hid. sparkles and gurgles behind. The giant rocks of red sandstone rise in majestic sublimity, overhanging the scene, and suggesting to the active fancy an architecture of the grandest and most imposing character. Towering castellated keeps raise their huge tops in the thin ether above, and look like structures of an age of giants. Buttress and bastion and battlement are there; pillars sculptured by the noiseless hand of centuries; curious fret-work, and walls of eternal rock enchain the eye; and forms the most varied and beautiful are seen at every turn. While the great bulwarks in which they appear, seem to stand in terrible grandeur, grouped in imposing array, yet separate and apart, each in itself a monument of the Creator's handiwork, and bearing on its scarred and rugged front the impress of ages of storms and tempests. But to leave the realms of fancy and return to those of fact! There is quite a lengthened embankment here, though not a very heavy one. Passing on we reach the next contract where Seth Dustin of Bountiful is busy,

I am telling Griffiths J cafion, and then runs up the centre, Ham's Fork at daylight. Here fresh here hugs the north side, trenching animals were obtained, and Mr. Young but not before. I wish the people here to-day who, unless they repent, will upon the wagon road in places, the having learned that no railroad trains to-day to behave themselves, as this is never see my face again after my eyes canon being narrower. Next above had passed on the Bridger road-they Tolley's is the contract of John Harvey having taken the Muddy road, he disof Provo Valley, in which the creek is patched an express to Watson and lieve, for the devils believe. Suppose who justifies another in tantalizing his turned out of its channel towards the Houtz, who were in charge of the teams, now, for instance, I had here three fellow-creature or in speaking against south side several times and the line at the crossing of the Muddy, where they had been left, to remain there waiting instructions. They went on to Green River and there met a train: lost time getting a special order by telegraph to the wagon master for the tools; started back to Ham's Fork; and finding the message by express had not been delivered had to go to the Muddy crossing, 45 miles; traveling all night got the teams there and started east again, and met the train with tools at Lone Tree Station, 14 miles west of Green River, that train having made the 14 miles while these gentlemen rode 175. There they reloaded the tools in their own teams, and starting back in their buggy rode all that afternoon and most of the night, camping near the Muddy crossing for about three hours. They came on to Bear River, where finding the bridge gone, Mr. Empy remained to get the teams with the tools over, and Mr. Young went by stage to the city. Independent of the stage horseback in six days and nights some 450 miles, and in 168 hours had only laid down to rest seventeen.

After recording this "hunt for tools, will close this communication.

I quote from memory-for a bright fire blazed away right merrily under the overhanging side of one of them, and the smoke curled lazily upward making a line on the massive stone. As I passed, in company with J. W Young, Esq., Mr. Dustin was about to touch off three blasts, and we quietly awaited the result. The three holes were fired almost together, and though not very deep made neat deposits of broken rock. A little above this N. S.
