

WOULD SEGREGATE TARIFF SCHEDULES

Gore Suggests That Finance Committee Should Report Each One as a Separate Bill.

CUMMINS GOES FOR ALDRICH.

Would Want a Thousand Years' Absence If He Had Made Confession Rhode Island Senator Did.

Washington, June 30.—In the senate today Mr. Gore, the blind senator from Oklahoma, made the novel suggestion that the finance committee should report each schedule of the tariff bill as a separate bill, so that senators and representatives may vote against the portions of it they may not approve, while voting for the parts acceptable to them. The suggestion was in the form of a resolution urging its adoption. Mr. Gore argued that it would have the additional merit of affording the president an opportunity to veto any schedule not satisfactory to him. He declared that the president ought to veto the pending measure when it reaches him. On a suggestion from Mr. Gallinger, the consideration of the resolution was postponed. The proceedings were begun with the presentation by Senator Kean of an emphatic protest from the building and loan association league of New Jersey against the inclusion of building and loan associations in the corporation tax.

Evidently Mr. Kean was not averse to presenting it. Mr. Cummins did not get under way until 10:45. Before proceeding with his speech, he remarked upon the absence of Mr. Aldrich, saying he had seen in the morning papers the announcement that the chairman of the finance committee was going on a sea voyage.

CUMMINS AFTER ALDRICH.
"After the acknowledgment which he made to the senate yesterday with respect to his vote in bringing forward the amendment that we are now considering," said Senator Cummins, evidently referring to Mr. Aldrich's statement that he favored the corporation tax amendment, "he needs the restoration and the recuperation of salt air. I would want to take a trip lasting about a thousand years if I should be compelled to make a confession of that sort with respect to a measure brought forward by myself."

Mr. Clapp interrupted with an observation. Referring to the corporation tax amendment he said: "I notice by the newspapers that the large corporations are not uncomfortable. They are reported as being well satisfied with this provision."

Mr. Cummins replied there was nothing in the corporation tax amendment to make the corporations uncomfortable. He then proceeded to discuss the receipts and expenditures of the government to sustain his contention that the pending bill did not supply enough money for usual expenses.

Declaring that $478,000,000 must be raised from customs duties and an inheritance, corporation or income tax to meet government expenditures and to keep up the sinking fund, Mr. Cummins presented a letter from Secretary MacVeagh of the treasury department, stating that a deficit appeared in the sinking fund at the close of the fiscal year 1908, $478,366,647, although up to that period the total debt had been reduced to $32,812,000 in excess of the sinking fund requirement.

"The deficit at the close of 1908," wrote Mr. MacVeagh, "will be increased, however, in the current year, of 1909 by approximately $44,000,000, thus the deficit is more apparent than real."

Mr. Cummins claimed that secretaries of the treasuries had failed to place aside in the sinking fund the amounts contemplated by law. "There is," he said, "a mystery in the bookkeeping which is not easy to understand." Estimated at $80,000,000 the amount of money required by the government for the fiscal year 1911, Mr. Cummins said that not more than $328,000,000 would be raised from internal revenue and not more than $340,000,000 would be obtained from customs revenues under the Payne bill, leaving about $20,000,000 to be supplied from some other source.

DEFICIT FOR 1911.
"My conclusion is," he said, "the deficit will be $175,000,000 at the close of 1911."

He declared that no one could investigate the subject without being convinced that there must be large deficits every year hereafter and he asserted that every penny which would result from the enactment of his and Mr. Bailey's income tax amendment would be necessary to meet the demands of the government.

A tax on incomes, he said, ought to be the first imposed and it should be levied by every state as well as by the national government. Sententiously, he said, "we should lay the tax on fortune rather than misfortune." He said this course would place the jurisdiction of government where it would belong and would discard all unprofitable property. He contended that the accumulations of property do not pay their share of the taxes and said there would be no injustice increasing their proportion of the general burden.

Mr. Cummins having spoken during three hours, the senate, at 1:55 o'clock, took a recess for half an hour to allow the members to take luncheon.

LABOR LEADERS INDICTED.

Charged With Conspiring to Interfere With Workmen.
Chicago, June 30.—On charges of conspiracy to interfere with workmen, five members of the board of examiners of the Chicago local of the Lathers' union were indicted by the grand jury yesterday. The indictments were returned on evidence given by William H. Scowatz, a lather of Cleveland, O., and C. A. Hudga, Chicago lather contractor.

The contractor alleged that a conspiracy exists to keep outside lathers away from Chicago by forcing them to pay large sums to local unions before they are given permits to work here. He asserted that by this method the standard of pay in Chicago is kept above that of other cities.

THIS CASE LOOKS JUST LIKE TYRANNY

New York, June 30.—After being kept a prisoner in quarantine on North Brother Island for two years, although not committed by any court, Mary Mallon, a cook, was produced before Supreme Court Justice Geiger yesterday on a writ of habeas corpus in hope of gaining her liberty.

In opposing her application, the health department alleges Mary has become a menace to every person with whom she comes in contact, as, while herself immune, she had the power of communicating typhoid fever to others involuntarily, however.

Justice Geiger adjourned the case and Mary was taken back to the island.

CHILDREN'S THEATER.

Must Show Cause Why It Should Not Be Dissolved.

New York, June 30.—The educational theater which was organized by Mark Twain and others to train the East Side children in the dramatic arts, and which has been run in connection with the Educational Alliance, got an order from Supreme Court justice Geiger yesterday to show cause why the corporation should not be dissolved.

The application says that there are no creditors or unsatisfied judgments and that the directors deem it beneficial to dissolve because the theater has been supported entirely by voluntary contributions and the burden of carrying on the work has fallen on the directors.

PATHFINDER DAM.

Alarming Reports Received Concerning Its Condition.

Denver, Colo., June 30.—Alarming reports have been received here concerning the conditions at the great Pathfinder dam, located near the junction of the North Platte and Sweetwater rivers in Wyoming. Further rise in the rivers yesterday increased the pressure against the granite wall and inhabitants of the towns of Casper and Alameda are living in constant fear lest the wall give way and a flood be precipitated upon them. Danger from the threatened flood can best be understood when it is realized that the 35-foot dam backs up the North Platte river for 20 miles and the Sweetwater for 15 miles. The reservoir is four miles in width and covers an area of about 2,000 acres. Within the past week 50 men have been sent from Denver to assist in the work of strengthening the dam, the request for additional help coming direct from the resident government engineer, Ira McConnell.
