BREVITIES.

Harper's Bazar says that John Bigelow, the new editor of the New York Times, has "a great talent for repose."

Seeing a cellar nearly finished, a wagish author remarked that it was an excellent foundation for a story.

The drinking, smoking and chewing of the workmen of New York cost them $6,720,000 per annum.

La-poi-ta is the name of a Chinese doctor in California who has 600 patients and is said to possess an income of $7000 a week.

The following lately appeared in a country paper: "Wanted—a steady young man to look after a horse of the Methodist persuasion."

A Parisian author translated Shakespeare's line, "Out, brief candle," into French thus: "Go out, you short candle."

Young Chinese fops in New York have abandoned queues and silk frocks, and attire themselves in dress coats, stunning neckties, and patent leathers.

A Philadelphia paper says that if rain does not come soon the eels and catfish in the Schuylkill will be swimming round with tin cups in their mouths begging for a drink.

"What is conscience?" asked a Sabbath school teacher of his class. "An inward monitor," replied a bright little fellow. "And what's a monitor?" "One of the iron-clads."

The New York Telegram gives the following definition, which is worthy a place in Webster: "Ennui is a French word for an American malady, which generally arises from the want of a want, and constitutes the complaint of those who have nothing to complain of."

Never fret about what you can't help, because it won't do any good. Never fret about what you can help, because if you can help it, do so. When you are tempted to grumble about anything, ask yourself, "Can I help this?" and if you can't don't fret; but if you can, do so, and see how much better you'll feel."

At the theatre, one evening, behind the scenes, Suett observed a performer put something under his cloak, and asked him what he had got there? "Oh, only my dagger," said the player. Suett, however, drew out a small bottle, and having ascertained that it contained his favorite beverage, drank the contents, and returned him the bottle with these words, "There's the sheath."

Landisburg, Pa., boasts of a woman who practices as well as talks about the "right of the sex." She is the mother of thirteen children, and goes into the field, partially arrayed in male attire, and swings the scythe with all the ease, grace and efficiency of any farmer.

About the eleventh hour she repairs to her domicile, prepares the frugal meal for herself and family, and after the repast, with rake in hand, does duty for the remainder of the day.

A Paris correspondent says the Bavarian girls, whatever may be the reason, have the finest hair in Europe. There is in the town where the fair Austrian Empress passed her childhood the monument of a girl who died of having too much hair. It is stated in her epitaph that the nourishment of her body was absorbed by the capillary vessels, and that her hair in the short space of ten months grew to the extraordinary length of three yards.

A physician was once returning to his home, when he saw a little child in great peril in the street. In another instant she would have been crushed under the iron hoofs which were almost upon her. At great peril to himself he rushed forward, and seizing the little one, bore her in safety to the sidewalk. Curiosity impelled him to look into the child's face, that he might see if he knew whom he had rescued. Pushing back the little bonnet, what were his feelings to see that it was his own little daughter whose life he had saved.

It is a very terrible thing to begin to let conscience grow hard, for it soon sears as with a hot iron. It is like the freezing of a pond. The first film of ice is scarcely perceptible; keep the waters stirring, and you will prevent the ice from hardening it; but once let it firm over, and remain's, it thickens over the surface, and it thickens still, and at last it is so solid that a wagon might be drawn over the solid water. So with conscience, it films over gradually, and at last it becomes hard, unfeeling, and it can bear up a weight of iniquity.

The cane to be presented to ex-Secretary Seward by the Society of California Pioneers is made of California iron wood, with a head composed of forty-one triangular pieces of quartz, specimens obtained from twenty of the leading mines of the State, mounted in solid gold. Four of the sides contain engravings of the coat-of-arms of California, an antelope, a flock of grouse, and a grizzly bear. The top of the head of the cane opens and displays in the interior specimens of gold dust, cinnamon, gold-bearing quartz, copper ore, sulphurets, quartz crystals and black sand containing gold and platinum.

While Thad. Stevens was a young lawyer, he once had a case before a bad-tempered Judge of an obscure Pennsylvania Court. Under what he considered a very erroneous ruling, it was against him; whereupon he threw down his books and picked up his hat in a high state of indignation, and was about to leave around him. The Judge straightened himself to his full height, assumed an air of offended majesty, and asked Thad. if he meant to express contempt for this Court? "That, turned to him very deferentially, signed a respectful bow, and replied in a low tone: "No, Sir, I am not trying to conceal it, your Honor," adding, "I had to do it."
