

the man. "That don't look much like me, does it?" he inquired of the deputy coroner when they had entered the morgue and stood looking at the body on the slab. "Brother?" curiously inquired McCormack, as he drew out his notebook. "Not much," was the reply. "It's supposed to be me, but I guess it ain't. The papers all said I was down here this morning, so I thought I'd come down and see. But it ain't me, not much. I'm pretty much alive yet." And then he told the deputy coroner all about it. On Monday afternoon a couple were taken from a lodging house almost asphyxiated by gas. The man died and was taken to the morgue. The woman was treated at the receiving hospital, and so far recovered by a ternoon that she was able to relate that she was known as Mrs. Edwards, and that her husband and she, after a night's debauch, had concluded to commit suicide. Her husband's name she gave as Louis Edwards. The dead man at the morgue has since been identified as John Armstrong.

BRIGHAM H. NAEGLER.

CONCHO, Apache County, Arizona, Oct. 11, 1896.—One of the promising young men of this place was called to another state of existence on the 20th day of September, having been afflicted with typhoid fever. Brigham H. Naegel, who was the victim in this instance, was the son of John C. Naegel and Verena Breyner Naegel; was born at Toquerville, Washington county, Utah, August 8, 1873, being 23 years, 1 month and 12 days old. He moved to Arizona with his parents when about 8 years of age, and lived with his mother at Concho, Apache County, until his death. One of his brothers being upon a mission in Germany, Brigham remained to take care of his mother, and look after his brother's interests. He was an exemplary young man; a member of the Y. M. M. I. A. and Sunday school, and was much respected by all who knew him.

Everything that skill and loving hands could do was done to save him, but death seemed to have claimed him from the start, and he passed peacefully to his rest. A general gloom has settled down upon the settlement that one so young, so robust and so well liked should pass so suddenly away. A. FROST.

MARY CHANDLER.

WILLARD, Utah, Oct. 13, 1896.—Died at Willard City, October 19, 1896, of old age and general debility, Mary, wife of the late Samuel Chandler.

Deceased was born at Buckworth, Hunts, England, August 31, 1810; hence she was over 86 years of age. She was reared among the English peasantry and inured to a life of hard work, while, at times, the hand of poverty pressed heavily upon her; yet she always bore her lot uncomplainingly and performed her duty without faltering. She not only reared her own children but having married a widower, she performed a mother's part for four little ones of his that had been left motherless. Of her own family, 4 children, 28 grandchildren and 80 great grandchildren are living. Her sons are ex-Bishop George Facer and James J. Chandler of Willard, and her daughters are Mrs. J. C. Dowdle, College Ward, Logan, and Mrs. Jas. E. Toombs, Bonneville, C. P. Ry.

She joined the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in 1854, and with her husband and family emigrated to Utah in 1860. Since her husband's death in 1882, she has lived with one or the other of her children, generally being healed by and heavily retaining the use of limbs and faculties to the last. Less than two hours before passing away she walked out of doors a distance of ten or twelve rods and then lay down and quietly went to sleep.

Thus our parents dear depart this earthly sphere
To meet the loved ones that in Paradise do dwell;
Our Father calls His own up nearer to His throne
And welcomes from their kindred in celestial anthem swell.

JAMES J. CHANDLER.

WARREN STONE SNOW.

MANTI, Oct. 6, 1896.—Warren Stone Snow died at his home in Manti, Utah, Sept. 21, 1896. He was the son of Gardner Snow and Sarah Hasting and was born on the 15th day of June 1818 at Cheshertfield, New Hampshire.

Brother Snow was baptized into the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in the year 1833 and was married to Mary Ann Voorbees in December, 1811. For several years prior to his marriage he lived with the Prophet Joseph Smith and on his deathbed spoke of the motherly kindness to him of Emma Smith, the wife of the Prophet. In the year 1852 he crossed the plains in charge of a train of emigrants. In 1853 he came to Manti where he resided until the time of his death. In 1854 he was ordained a Bishop and for several years presided over the settlements of Sanpete county. In 1861 he went on a mission to England and returned in the fall of 1864, again bringing with him a train of emigrants. During the Black Hawk war he commanded the Sanpete department of the Nauvoo Legion and prior to this he served as a representative in the Utah Legislature.

At the time of his death, and for the past fifteen years, he was first counselor to the president of the High Priests in the Sanpete Stake of Zion. Space will not permit to tell of his good qualities. He was brave and true and faithful; his record is written above, and he has gone to his reward.
