

CHURCHES UNITE TO GIVE THANKS

The Spirit of the Day Prevails Generally, Shown in Quiet Observance.

MANY SPECIAL FEATURES.

Big Dinners Provided by Public Institutions—Annual Football Game Between "U" and Aggies.

The churches generally throughout the city united, in the various districts, in mass services, and every meeting was characterized by very large congregations. It seemed as if everybody had a religious as well as material gift of thanks and all poured out their feelings before the altar.

In many of the churches special musical programs were given, a very beautiful part of the services. At the union church the various pastors of the churches concerned participated in some way and the assemblies were drawn from all of the congregations. And after the services long lines of people could be seen on all the quiet streets wending their ways home to their Thanksgiving dinners.

On the east side the services were held at the Phillips Congregational church and were participated in by all of the different religious churches in that part of the city. The invocation was made by Rev. H. E. Hansen and Chaplain Joseph Clements of Fort Douglas and the scripture lesson by Rev. D. W. Crane of the Hill M. E. Church, in prayer and song. In the Bay of the Third Presbyterian church, Rev. Louis Beaman, pastor of the Emmanuel church, preached the sermon.

The observances of the day have not been confined to the churches, for at the Salvation Army the services of the city are being held in every cause to be thankful. From the funds contributed by the army by the people in the solicitation of the corps members, beautiful repasts were provided and wherever a poor family or individual failed to have cause for a joyful today, it was because the army was in ignorance of their whereabouts.

The football game at Cummings Field was heavily in the closing game of the season between the University of Utah and the Utah Agricultural college.

In the prisons the jailers and wardens took special pains to see that their wards were well provided with cheering. At all the good things the inmates provided were set before the inmates who were left before closed windows. At the county infirmary the orphans and at other similar institutions similar observances were made.

Local Thanksgiving matinees were given at the theaters, a feature being the appearance of the Salt Lakes in the final performance of "The Servant."

At 5 o'clock this afternoon the prisoners in the city jail were given a Thanksgiving dinner, like the like of which for many years had never been served before. There was roast pig, ham, pickles, beans, brown gravy, mince and apple pie, three or four kinds of vegetables, cakes, cookies and fruits in plentiful abundance. That it was appreciated is evidenced in the repeated calls "for more," and everyone had all he wanted.

how to put to good use. If we need to learn how to be in want, we also need to know how to abound.

IDOL OF WEALTH.

A second reason for attention to the second half of our text is that it is harder to make wise use of plenty than it is to make wise use of want. You think not? To the law and the testimony. The New Testament is explicit not only in its warnings against the love of riches but against the perils which go with the very possession of them. "How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of heaven." The rich man, whatever the nature of his abundance, is tempted to trust in his riches. In the parable of the sower, the thorns are not sore tribulations, but rather the world and the deceitfulness of riches." In the parable of the great supper, the excuses are not, "I am sick of a wasting fever, worn out with my day's work or imprisoned for debt," but, "I've bought a piece of ground, or five yoke of oxen, or I've married a wife and therefore I cannot come." In each instance these men are hindered by abundance rather than want, by their opportunities rather than by their limitations. They didn't know how to abundant.

MISUSE OF OPPORTUNITY.

Others less strenuous, are like the rich fool who said, "Soul, take thine ease; thou hast much goods laid up for many years; eat, drink and be merry." Such live on the possessions they should put to useful uses; they become parasites of their own abundance.

In the case of those possessed by that which they should possess, such misuse of ease, comfort, opportunity or abundance is not confined to those who are rich in gold. The quest for pain for its own sake is like the pursuit of pleasure for its own sake, at once an abuse of good raw material and a fool's errand.

As the ascetic despises the pleasures of life, the epicure despises them. He looks upon them not as a means but as the end, and becomes a mere pleasure-seeker.

For the majority of us of the Valley of Humiliation is safer ground than the Detachable Mountains. Adam was no safer in Paradise with all its happiness, than we may be in the outside world. Noah was safer during the flood than after it. David the shepherd boy worked more securely than David wrecker.

The primary duty of the man who abounds is gratitude. We need the spirit of him who said, both riches and honor come from thee; and in thine hand it is to make great and to give strength unto all. Now therefore our God we thank thee and pray thy glorious name. Such gratitude begets real happiness.

The accident occurred either through misunderstanding, or a disregard of orders.

The Great Northern passenger train from the coast was traveling over the Northern Pacific tracks on account of floods and washouts on the Great Northern line.

It was due in Lind shortly after 1 o'clock this morning.

GREAT NORTHERN TRAIN WRECKED

Three Trainmen Dead, Two Fatally Injured, and Several Cars Burned Up.

WILD ENGINE WAS THE CAUSE.

Whether There Was a Misunderstanding or Simple Disregard of Orders Not Known.

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 25.—A Spokane Review special from Lind, Wash., says:

"Three trainmen dead, two others believed to be fatally injured, six cars out of six cars on a Great Northern passenger train completely destroyed by fire, but every passenger safe, is the summing up of a wreck on the Northern Pacific railroad, about a mile from Lind, shortly after midnight.

THE DEAD.

Engineer L. Reaman, Fireman Jacob Spangler, Pilot Tyler.

PROBABLY FATAL INJURED.

Engineer and fireman on the wild engine that collided with the passenger train. Their names are not yet ascertained.

The accident occurred either through misunderstanding, or a disregard of orders.

The Great Northern passenger train from the coast was traveling over the Northern Pacific tracks on account of floods and washouts on the Great Northern line.

It was due in Lind shortly after 1 o'clock this morning.

A WILD ENGINE.

The wild engine started west, and no sooner had it left the station than the operator knew what a terrible mistake had been made, but had no means of recalling it.

About a mile west of Lind the "wild engine" and the passenger engine collided. Immediately there was terrible explosion awakening every soul on the passenger train. Fire from the engines was immediately communicated to the equipment and in a short time the mail and express cars, smoking chariot, and a sleeper were in flames. The cars did not leave the track. The mail, express and baggage cars were saved.

According to Engineer Rush, who had "pulled" the train to Prosser, but was riding the train from that point as a passenger, every passenger escaped unscathed, except one who was on the engine.

The unlucky train engross on the passenger engine, who were on special duty, are believed to have been killed outright. It was not possible to get the body of the engineer out of the wreckage.

Search about the "wild" engine, which was totally wrecked, disclosed the engineer and fireman to be so badly injured that death is believed to be a matter of only hours.

One passenger was saved from the fire, by the railroad men pushing and pulling at the heavy car to move it to a place of safety.

The passengers, many of them recently clad, are being taken care of at Lind.

The telegraph operator at Lind declines to discuss the cause of the accident until an official investigation is made.

JOY RIDE GIVES RISE TO MYSTERY

Machine Was Smashed Up and Various Parts Hidden in Different Places.

MAY HAVE BEEN A TRAGEDY.

Owner Very Reluctant—Sheriff Says There's a Deep Motive for Breaking Up Auto.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—Sheriff Thomas Grant of Lake County, Ind., and Detectives Conklin and Cudlane of the central station, last night learned, they believe, the identity of the man who hacked a $5,000 automobile to pieces and hid parts of the machine on the farm of Mrs. Christine Jostet near Lamotte, Indiana, and hauled the tires 10 miles and pitched them into the Kankakee river.

This man, it is believed, was one of the four passengers of the car on its mysterious night trip from Chicago Oct. 22. The other persons in the car included two men and a young woman.

S. R. Smalley, who says he is owner of the dismantled machine, refused to tell the police more of the trip which he asserts "friends of his" took down into Indiana where the machine was wrecked.

"It was just a 'joy ride' and the machine was smashed," he explained. "The automobile was taken by a friend of mine, and he had an accident. He paid me for it, and that is all there is to it. I know that no one was injured in the accident, and I shall tell no one who was in the automobile—not even the police."

Smalley said the man who had the machine was wealthy, and had paid him $4,750 for breaking it up.

"There's a motive deeper than mere greed for the destruction of an expensive machine," the sheriff said after he had come to Chicago last evening to confer with city detectives. "The machine was left at the farm when it was taken the morning of Oct. 24."

It was said last night that the police had learned the identity of the chauffeur who drove the automobile from Chicago and that a close watch is being kept on him to prevent him from leaving the city.

SHARP FURNISHES IDENTIFICATION.

In a short time the two men came out of the place and walked east on Third Street. They were followed by the two officers who were chary about making the arrest, not being any too sure of their man. The men turned down Seventh East and shortly afterward the pursuers came upon Sheriff Sharp, who knew McCoy and his wife, under the name of Ferguson, near Eighth East and Seventh South streets.

McCoy was not known to any of the marshal's staff, nor to Inspector Lowe, but a very good description had been furnished. On Wednesday Inspector Lowe happened to be in a movie house and answered the description accompanied by another man and woman. They went into a place on Third South and with the marshal's office.

The arrest was then made, and McCoy was taken to the county jail where he will be held pending trial.

The specific charge against McCoy is that he is leading a life of idleness and profligacy and is a bad influence upon the community. He is accused of having been connected with a number of swindlers and McCoy was taken to the county jail where he will be held pending trial.

ALSO CLAIM.

Attitude of United States Producing Effect on Chilean Business.

Santiago, Nov. 25.—The attitude of the United States government in the matter of the Alsop claim held by the United States against Chile, is producing an effect upon the business of the country. Chilean buyers are calling orders for American products pending a decision in the case.

Iquique, Chile, Nov. 25.—The popular feeling here is that the Alsop claim of the United States against Chile is unjust. A public meeting will be held probably on Sunday, at which it will be proposed to boycott American imports unless the United States desists from pressing the claim.

The Salt Lake police records show that McCoy has been mixed up in a number of shady transactions in this city. He has been under arrest three times during the past two years, once for battery, once for swindling, and once for vagrancy. He was arrested last spring by Chief of Police Bacow under suspicion having been connected in a swindling game at the race track, or of having caused the charge to be reduced to vagrancy and he was chased out of the city on a "foster" sentence. McCoy was also arrested in Pocatello some time ago on a swindling charge.

The history of the Maybray gang is unique in the country's criminal annals. The gang was a close corporation operating throughout the entire country west of the Mississippi river, its particular craft being fake wrestling matches, lotteries, prize fights, etc. But the members would take chances on almost any sort of a bunco game. There were a number of gamblers in the outfit who furnished the money for the gambling.

Meanwhile preparations are being made at the navy yard for a review of sailors and marines by Secy. of the Navy Meyer. All activities will be suspended until noon and the review will be held in the afternoon. The marine band will come from Washington to take part in the review.

PRESIDENT TAFT'S THANKSGIVING DINNER

Washington, Nov. 25.—President Taft and his family had a genuine Thanksgiving dinner today. In addition to the mammoth turkey which had been sent to the White House by Horace Voss of Webster, R. I., and the 50 pounds meat sent by the bakers of Newark, there were 200 pounds of "Bill" Posner's meat to be had for the largest and plumpest ever trapped in the Georgia woods on the table in the White House dining room.

All the president's family except Robert, who is in school at New Haven, will dine with him.

A pan-American Thanksgiving service this morning in St. Paul's cathedral, which was attended by President Taft, Vice President Sherman and several members of the cabinet. Cardinal Gibbons and Monsignor Falconi, apostolic delegate to the United States, were present. After the service there was a luncheon at which President Taft was the guest of honor.

The members of the cabinet will spend the day quietly here.

HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE IN COAL MINE EXPLOSION

Tokio, Nov. 25.—Heavy loss of life is feared as the result of an explosion yesterday in a coal mine at Onomura, Fukui province. Fifteen men are known to have perished, while 23 miners are entombed in the workings.

ELECTRICAL WORKERS.

Detroit, Nov. 25.—The electrical workers' union has right withdrawn from the Detroit federation of labor and the latter body voted to prohibit the American Federation of Labor for a removal of its charter.

"This is the one great day of the Nation," said Rev. Perkins. "It is the day of thanksgiving for the increase of the land, for the grain, the fruits and the crops generally and it implores us to think of the blessing God has bestowed upon us.

We should be thankful that we are in this nation, that the times have fallen great and I doubt if when we have a population of three or four hundred million, if the resources will then be as great as now. We should be thankful that we have a great abundance of the means of production.

Now we have more opportunity to use the discipline of joy than we have had in the past.
