

REMARKABLE PICTORIAL PROOF.

The above furnishes a most remarkable series of pictorial proofs of who Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick is. The facial resemblance of the various photographs seems to be more than a coincidence.

THE GREAT BORROWER.

Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick

This is a picture of Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick, taken at the height of her glory as a borrower of money. The clothes in which Mrs. Chadwick is attired speak volumes as to the direction in which some of the money she obtained was expended.

shade in a garden. This symbolizes the poetry of the springtime. "The third gown that I have brought is a realization of my own idea. I took to her Lord Byron's description of an Italian night written at the time when he was so madly in love in Italy. The line that I selected as the theme is this: 'Hues that have words and speak to you of heaven.'"

"Over pink chiffon she has placed mousseline de soie, upon which have been painted wreaths of anemone buds and hellebore. You know the anemone is so very common in Italy. Its delicate pink shading contrasts with the dainty blue of the hellebore. These wreaths are so arranged that they impart the effect of clambering from the bottom of the fountains upward.

"The sleeves are pink and over the shoulder is a wreath of anemone embroidered, giving an exquisite effect. The yoke is of chintilly lace and the entire effect adequately carries out the line which I suggested to the artist, for artist she is.

"This titled dressmaker has, as you know, a raised platform lighted by electricity, on which the models come if you wish to purchase a gown already made. These models are beautiful girls and the picture they make is lovely.

"You know the same woman who made my gown Mrs. Potter's. Mrs. Potter's gowns in 'The Golden Light' were wonderful. The play failed because it was not great enough for her. London idolizes Mrs. Potter and it had no patience with any play that was inadequate for her talents.

"The Golden Light lacked a soul. It was written by one who had no great knowledge of stagecraft. But the principal fault which I have to find with it, although I am no critic, is that it lacked the vital theme which is necessary alike to play and book.

"Mrs. Potter is now playing to crowded houses in a double bill and is continuing her former successes. You see that the fault in the play's failure to come up to her own greatness.

"But here I am rambling on about English gowns and English plays when I am absolutely delighted to return to America. I can not understand those Americans who even wish to forget that they were ever Americans when they expatriate themselves.

"I met many of them abroad, and I always think when I meet them that the reason is surely in themselves and not in America. There is this loss, surely.

"I had intended, besides writing the novel concerning Lord Byron, to write another concerning some subject which I should find abroad. But I have found that our own country is as productive of romantic material as is any country.

"I have come back to write another novel of this land of ours. It will deal with the extremes of California and

Of More Than 40 Years Ago.

FROM THE FILES OF 1859.

Among the things that are worthy of commendation, which every observer must have seen of late is the increased anxiety manifested by the youth of this city and others of mature years to increase their store of useful knowledge by every means at their command. Instead of spending their time in idleness, hopping, jumping, skating and skipping about, during the winter, as too many boys and young men have done in bygone days, they are now generally attending school and from the reports of their instructors most of them are making good progress in those branches of science to which they are devoting their time or giving their attention.

Men and women are never too old to learn and if those persons, who from some cause, have not learned to read or write, are more or less acquainted with the science of numbers, and have but a limited knowledge of geography, history and philosophy, could spend but one hour each day in acquiring a knowledge of those principles, if they are so situated that they cannot devote any more time to the improvement of their minds, they would soon realize the benefit derived from it.

Sleighing.—The roads and streets are in fine condition for sleighing, and many are improving the opportunity by occasionally taking excursions on runners about the city and into the country, which unquestionably affords much pleasure to those that indulge in that favorite amusement, at this time when there are but few occurrences to disturb the monotony that is everywhere seen.

MURDERED BY INDIANS. From reports that have reached this city it is quite certain that Robert Cliff, who was connected with the Salt Lake and California mail service has been murdered by Indians on or near the Humboldt, to which place he went from the Simpson route, on which the mail is now being carried beyond Ruby valley, for the purpose of looking up a military reserve. He was seen on the trail, on which he removed the stock from the new to the old trail.

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE. "To the Council and House of Representatives of the Legislature of Utah: Gentlemen:

"During the past year the inhabitants of this territory have for the most part been peacefully and profitably employed in their various occupations; but I regret to be obliged to state that this city and the village of Fairfield, near Camp Floyd, within a mile of the Humboldt, have been the scenes of many murders and other acts of violence, the perpetrators of which have fled and thus eluded justice.

"All communities are dishonored in proportion to the extent in which crimes are committed with impunity in their midst. If the organization of the police is defective it should be reformed, and if there be a deficiency in the finances of these cities for enabling them to arrest offenders I would recommend that an appropriation be made for their relief from the territorial treasury.

"The rising generation are about to become the proprietors of the soil, and the actors in the important affairs of life. The children of the poor equally entitled to the benefits of education with the rich. Therefore let a system of taxation be adopted which will enable all to receive that instruction from which some are at present comparatively free.

"By reference to the auditor's report you will perceive there is appropriated to military purposes, $2,206; adjutant general's salary, $1,000; premium on gun powder, $200, making a saving of $3,406. If this sum was expended for the advancement of education, would not the community be benefited by the exchange.

"The establishment of annual fairs for the encouragement of agriculture, the protection and aid of the Legislature.

"The penitentiary system seems unfitted for carrying out the intention of its promoters. The building itself is objectionable in consequence of original defects in the plan of its structure, and from its present dilapidated state, caused by a violent storm in the year 1858. It originally consisted of two stories—the upper built of adobe, divided into two rooms; the lower built of sandstone, divided into small cells. The eastern gable of the building and a large portion of the roof were destroyed by the storm alluded to.

"I would suggest such modification of the penal code as would lawfully subject prisoners convicted of penitentiary offenses, to service in constructing new and repairing old roads of the territory. The organized bands of thieves for the stealing of horses and other animals have become so numerous and audacious that I deem it indispensably necessary that the most stringent measures should be taken without delay to ensure their punishment.

"In the month of June, 1859, the officer in command of the department of Utah, detached under the command of an experienced officer what he deemed a suitable military force for the protection of the emigration on the northern California route. Notwithstanding that precaution, many persons passing from the eastern states to California by that route, were murdered by Indians, supposed to belong to the roving bands of Bannocks and Sho-Sho-nies. It is probable that the officer in command of the department will establish posts along this line which will secure, hereafter, the emigration on this route from similar disasters.

"Under authority of the secretary of war, Lieut. Humphreys, U. S. A., has begun an exploration of the country between the Cheyenne river a tributary of the Missouri and the headwaters of the Yellowstone. This exploration, when accomplished, I am induced to be-

CLUB CHAT.

Mrs. Cynthia Westover Alden, president of the International Sunshine society, is en route to California, where she will be the guest of her father, Oliver S. Westover, of Santa Monica. While in this vicinity Mrs. Alden will establish branches of the society in Long Beach, Santa Monica, and other suburban towns. She will address the Los Angeles branch of the organization, which is in a thriving condition. This association is unique in that the members are required to pay neither initiation fees nor annual dues. The only expense incurred by membership is the subscription price of the official organ, the Sunshine Bulletin. The only pledge required of each member is a promise to do some act of kindness every day.

San Francisco clubdom is deeply interested in the presentation of California forests. Nearly every woman's club of the city is doing its share toward strengthening the petition to be presented at the coming session of congress asking for the protection of the redwood trees. Prominent among the workers in this movement are the members of the Outdoor League, who have started a newspaper campaign for the purpose of arousing public interest in the matter. It is felt that if Californians can be brought to a full realization of the seriousness of the loss in the destruction of forests, not alone to the residents of the Golden state, but to the country at large, the passage of the Calaveras bill would be assured.

Not all the attention of the women's clubs of the northern city is being devoted to the passage of the Calaveras bill, for a meeting was called last Saturday under the auspices of the forestry department of the California club for the purpose of considering the proposed purchase of the redwood grove in Marin county. It is the aim of those interested in the preservation of the natural beauties of California to turn the strip of woodlands, but two hours

NEW SALVATION ARMY LEADER.

Miss Eva Booth

Miss Eva Booth, the new commander of the Salvation Army of the United States, lives up to the motto of the army—"Blood and Fire." She has come to this country determined to deliver a good account of herself and this division of the great collection of "sky soldiers." She is the child of Gen. Booth and has always been his favorite.

DOCTORS COULD NOT HELP HER.

"I had kidney trouble for years," writes Mrs. Raymond Corner of Shelton, Wash., and the doctors could not help me. I tried Foley's Kidney Cure, and the very first dose gave me relief and I am now cured. I cannot say too much for Foley's Kidney Cure. It makes the diseased kidneys sound so they will eliminate the poisons from the blood. Unless they do this, good health is impossible. F. J. Hill Drug Co.
