

THIRD DISTRICT COURT.

Another continuance asked for in the Hague Case—Street Orders.

In the Third district court this morning the case against Martin Haydon was called up, when Attorney Arthur Brown arose with an application for a continuance. He spoke of an incident just now had by the grand jury on the 1st of October, 1895, but which had not been served with the law, and upon which a temporary continuance had been granted by Judge King. Mr. Brown read to the court a deposition from Mr. Haydon, in which he referred to certain letters which had been shown him, and from the firm of A. H. Astor & Co., and which are now in the hands of the prosecution, and having such evidence the defendant said that he could not properly present his case without it. The only thing to do was the continuance of witnesses who were connected with the Andrew's paint company, and so this is all upon which the segment had got, and thus ends the serving of the indictment.

This affidavit had been presented to the court on the 10th inst., and a cause of action, grant and other similar documents given to the court, and the attorney general had been sent to the office, where persons may not be secured, had had their deposit taken, and up to date a certain witness named Mr. Christie, was necessary to the preparation of the indictment in the last building, had not been brought into court. Therefore counsel for the defendant asked for a further continuance, which was granted by Mr. Christie's testimony only recurred.

Mr. Vassar, of the prosecution, said that no adjournment be granted until 2 p. m., to allow the filing of another affidavit relating to the statements contained in Haydon's affidavit, and the attorney general agreed to this, and so the hearing of the case was adjourned until 2 p. m., when the public is to be present, because of the merits of the case.

He said and concluded, "We are not trying this case before the public, as my attorney has stated."

The Court—Your brother didn't understand the meaning of the word 'public' when you used it, which sides interpreted the prosecution was allowed until 2 p. m., in which to say nothing as to the merits of the case but continuance.

In the afternoon Mr. Vassar took up an argument with the attorney general, relating to our right to know that the question involved in this case was which concerned the public or not, and should be disposed of as quickly as possible, in order that we might proceed with the trial, which had been suspended.

The arguments set forth in the documents affixed to the record, were that the attorney general, as well as the extreme and more especially with regard to the securing of justice, as an expert witness to testify to the real value of the furnace in controversy. They said that such a witness, testifying, can be easily obtained at Chicago, but I say the court that witnesses competent to give the value of the furnace, can be had right here in Salt Lake.

Mr. Vassar was still engaged in this line of argument when the judge ruled.
