THEATRICAL.—"Enoch Arden" as a drama follows the poem closely, and as a dramatization is very successful. It was presented on the stage and played in excellent style. The scenery in the first act was the vision at the close of the third act, was very beautiful. The choruses and dancing were well executed and the playing extremely good. Madame Scheller's Annie was natural, womanly, touching and pathetic. Her singing of "Coming through the Rye" was alone worth attending to hear. We were surprised to see so many present, in such stormy weather, yet we think "Enoch Arden" should be repeated to give a larger number the pleasure of witnessing its performance. Mr. McKenna was very good in the title role and Mr. Graham was very good in the part of the doctor. All the parts were well played.

To-morrow evening "Lorrie" will be presented for the first time. We cannot do better than give the following notice of it, taken from the St. Joseph Union:

"Lorrie of the Black Forest" was brought out last evening for the first time, and proved a decided success. Madame Scheller, who was repeatedly cheered, and as the curtain went down upon the last act, she was called back for the most enthusiastic applause. It is evident that "Lorrie" is one of the favored characters, as her representation attracted the deepest study she had devoted to it. "Lorrie" is a very difficult character to personate, as she is like the "Poet of Savoy," a rare and continuous change. This versatility, as we stated yesterday, is one of the cardinal charms in her playing. There is another feature in her playing, and that is that cannot be too highly praised, inasmuch as it is the only argument ever successfully used against the stage; the more we see her act, the higher climbs our respect for her. That one could play as Madame Scheller plays, and have such a lot of heart, is a most unusual feat. Every position she assumes, every word, and every variation of her ever speaking features, betray the culture, elegance and purity of the woman. As an actress for high stage honors, she has many chances in her favor, and fully substantiates the high praise which the press has so generously bestowed upon her. Her position, also, would win her an enviable position, and, in some parts, seems nearer to melody, than any voice we have ever heard."

NOT YET.—No dispatches yet. The "line," it is presumed, like any ordinary clothes line, has been out drying this fine afternoon, and may be in a sufficient condition of solidity to bear up the news about impendence to-morrow. Just as well try to think so, anyway.

"DENVER PACIFIC RAILROAD."—This is the name of the branch line which is to connect Denver with the U. P. R. R. Ground was broken for it, on Monday, the 18th, with the ceremony, at the Colorado was again and Denver on the high chariot on the occasion. The place where work began was about a mile north of Denver. At a quarter of eight o'clock, the foremen, the band, and the two teams began to plow, a couple of gentlemen driving and a couple of ladies holding on to the gentlemen, but the plow. When the plowing ceased, the ladies who were plowing got three cheers, followed by the playing of a key "malt lager," more music, and the throwing of nine shovelfuls of the number of the number, which was engaged in re-entraining of dirt, by J. W. Smith, President of the Denver Board of Trade. The following address by Governor Guipin and General Placer. The work is expected to be completed this fall.

THEIR WAY.—We clip from the Cleveland Herald the following paragraph, which is not exactly "the thing" that would suit in every place. May be that part of Kansas where they do so, has no high mountains around it, to keep them from hopping away:

"The Kansas people have found a way to prevent the grasshoppers. It consists in turning sheep upon the wheat to eat it down, so that when the insects come and find nothing to eat, they leave to be eaten. The wheat recovers from the feeding of the sheep, but if the grasshoppers go over it they find no food at all."

SWEETWATER MINES.—The Sweetwater Mines has resumed publication at South Pass city. The Mines says it expects D. K. Allen, the President of the New Bank at South Pass city, the "young man" whom the Helena Herald gets into so heavily, to arrive soon and open business. It has the following:

"G. A. L. Chastain, U. S. Assessor for Utah, has been sojourning in the city for several days past and expresses himself highly pleased with the rich indications surrounding us."

"An extensive salt spring has been discovered at a point about ten miles distant from South Pass City, one capable of furnishing large quantities of the indispensable article."

Beautiful white and variegated marble has been found on the north fork of Wind River. "Jimmy" Dwyer, the puglist, who was shot by his partner in this city, is out with a challenge from South Pass city, to Con. Orem, to fight for from one to three thousand dollars. He winds up with the ironic, but not very classical expression, "Put up, or shut up."

FLOR.—Sharp? Keen? Yes, as a well set razor dipped in hot water, are some of the speculators; and the small fry are, if anything, a little worse than the full grown sharks. For a few days, until to-day, it was almost impossible to buy a pound of flour in Main street, except, perhaps, in one or two places. There is not anybody so simple as to think the flour was not there, but there was another attempt made to get up a rise. Yesterday, we learn, one of our leading firms commenced to sell flour, and a couple of loads which came in through the rain was sold, because wet, and the buyer of fifty or a hundred pounds could today get supplied. No miserably cheap, but they are earning obloquy for themselves by trying to force up the price of this great article of sustenance, think to accomplish anything beyond making a temporary dollar or two. There is flour in the country to let every one who needs have sufficient till harvest; the prospects are good for abundance here; those who have money to spare have flour stored away to do them until that time; and the only thing that can be accomplished by such a course, is to force the poor man, in his need, to pay a higher rate for the breadstuff he requires than he ought to do. There is not a single person, who for self-interest will try to force a high price, or create a panic concerning flour at this juncture, but will be remembered as having won money in previous few dollars.

HOMES.—Three officers Hyde and Living, who returned to the city last night, from Bridger, where they had been to take charge of a couple of horse thieves, bringing their prisoners with them. Two weeks ago last Monday, the thieves stole some horses from the pasture belonging to General Wells and escaped east with them. When they got to Goose River, Lewis Robinson knew the horses as they were crossing the bridge, and following the track, he caught them and they were brought back to Bridger, by E. H. Hanks, where the officers got them. These are the details as we have received.

BRIDGE.—We learned to-day that the bridge over the Weber, this side of Ogden, was gone. The following telegram has since been received by Deseret Telegraph Line:

OGDEN, 27.—About 5 p.m. yesterday Mr. Belnap, of Ogden, had occasion to cross the Weber. Upon arriving, he found the bridge had been washed away, and nothing now remains but a broken mass of timber. The river is high.

The following additional particulars have been received since:

OGDEN, 27.—About 5 p.m. yesterday Mr. Belnap, of Ogden, had occasion to cross the Weber. Upon arriving, he found the bridge had been washed away, and nothing now remains but a broken mass of timber. The river is high.
