

World's Fair Horticulture.

Recent removal of German horticultural exhibits to the new and active interest in the proposed display at the Chicago World's Fair. Meetings called in various places to discuss such interest and make practical arrangements for exhibiting have been largely attended. At the meeting of the Chicago Horticultural Society, held at the Hotel, where not only horticulturists but also those from distant towns were present, almost every person accounted his intention of exhibiting. At this meeting the proposed plan of 10,000 plants for the purpose of exhibiting was voted for by a large majority. It was decided that all species in excess of this grant should be stored in the exhibition.

Since last January, a committee has been working on the Horticulture. The committee from this place will be particularly interested, and a special train station has been arranged for the month of September. At one time German exhibitors were disappointed to hear that certain American firms had threatened by letter to withdraw their patronage from German firms should they exhibit at Chicago, but Mr. Mason, one of the exhibitors, has since made public a telegram received from the director of the horticultural section in Chicago, which declares that there is "no truth in the rumor of a boycott," and has promised to investigate the charges of the exhibitors, and to recommend that if such charges have indeed been made those who made them shall themselves be excluded from the exhibition. Such a punishment would be most just, for the exhibitors of an exhibition are not to be treated as a nation, but as individuals, and it is not to be believed that any American horticulturist has indeed been guilty of this conduct.—Garrison and Pomeroy.

Face in the Moon.

A fair resident of Norwood Park was recently presented with an opera glass, and one evening when the moon was at the full she took a peep at it through the glass "just for fun." She looked a moment, rubbed her eyes and looked again.

"Why, how curious!" she exclaimed. "There are two lovely faces in the moon tonight!"

"How?" asked her companion. But she could not tell them, and after discussing the matter for some time and after she had looked through the glass at intervals, she said that she saw two faces, one of which was a woman's face, and the other was a man's face. She said that the woman's face was looking at her, and the man's face was looking at the woman's face. She said that the woman's face was looking at her, and the man's face was looking at the woman's face. She said that the woman's face was looking at her, and the man's face was looking at the woman's face.

"The professor," who is supposed to be an expert in the use of the telescope, was called upon to look at the moon. He said that he had never seen anything like what she had seen. He said that he had never seen anything like what she had seen. He said that he had never seen anything like what she had seen.

A fine variety of flower chestnut. The chestnut flowered here earliest. The chestnut flowered here earliest. The chestnut flowered here earliest. The chestnut flowered here earliest. The chestnut flowered here earliest.

The chestnut has a most telling effect when placed in front of taller growing plants, and for this reason it has been largely employed in the margins of woods and plantations, but particularly where it is visible from the road and drives. The beautiful small flowers, produced in great numbers at the base of the tree, very conspicuous against the dark green leaves.—London Garden.

A Big Bass. A correspondent writing from Shillington, Ind., tells of the capture of a small mouthed black bass weighing 5 pounds and 14 ounces and measuring 21 inches in length. The fish was killed in Flatville, Ind. but was being a cross-breed. It was a rather "finny" old bass, and its weight has set me wondering just how heavy a small mouthed black bass can weigh, and its capture not far from being a tell about it. Furthermore, it was stated that the fish in question was in poor condition, and would have weighed off far more than six pounds.—Outing.

Blindness Alleviated at the Times. One Barton Bryant, at least is up to date. Last Sunday he preached on "Winning in the morning and on the Bullman-Cutler fight in the evening. It was his intention for him to preach a sermon on the wickedness of the papers in reporting the fight. Another clergyman, however, announced a Sunday evening talk on the subject, "Your Father's God." Another clergyman recently remarked to his congregation, "You prove the action and I spoke of the text." And still another spoke of prayer as touching the electric light which hangs in heaven.—New York Tribune.

A Case of Lightning. During a recent severe rainstorm lightning struck the lot of John Jones, near Whitehead, Ind., and although the boards on the four corners were loosened and a wide swath was cut through the hay mow, neither contents nor the building took any damage. Lord Tennyson's "Becket," which Mr. Tennyson has produced next year, is not widely known to the stage—at least, to the African stage. Six years ago the world's drama were performed at Cambridge, Wis., in the open air, by Lady Ardenham, Countess of Ardenham, and some professional actors. The late Lawrence Barrett had hoped to produce "Becket" in America, but died before he could fulfill his intention.—London Globe.

Refugees Against Cholera.

The practical question which is before us in this country is whether or not we are to have a cholera epidemic. This is a very great question, and it is one which is being discussed in the most serious manner. In the first place, the fact of the existence of the disease is known, and in such matters it is important to be fully informed. It is important to be fully informed. It is important to be fully informed. It is important to be fully informed.

Of course the general might come here in large numbers, but the chances that signs have of passing without disturbance are extraordinarily small. As water and food are the carriers of the germ, it follows that the disease will be carried by the water and food. It follows that the disease will be carried by the water and food. It follows that the disease will be carried by the water and food.

A Summer Disinfectant. A trader, who is well known on the Stock exchange for his practical sense as a practical trader, made considerable profit for some of his associates last week. He is now in the country at present, and is disposing of his property. He is now in the country at present, and is disposing of his property. He is now in the country at present, and is disposing of his property.

But he predicted in the morning and finally suggested that perhaps some of his friends would like to see it. He got two lots, one for a dinner for the evening, and another for a dinner for the evening. He got two lots, one for a dinner for the evening, and another for a dinner for the evening. He got two lots, one for a dinner for the evening, and another for a dinner for the evening.

Barred Air in the Cathedral. One reads often, and it is often said, that the night is common, of travelers being overcome in the stillness of the Alps from the too vivid air. Such experiences are not so frequent here, but in August a New York woman found, on reaching one of the greatest elevations of the Catskills, that she suffered intensely in the effort to breathe. She found that the air was too pure, and she found that the air was too pure. She found that the air was too pure, and she found that the air was too pure.

Making Household Powder. At New York, New York, England, stand the premises of the Household Powder company, the only works of the kind in the kingdom. These works have never fewer than 120 acres of ground, and a large company employed there. They produce the finest household powder in the world. They produce the finest household powder in the world. They produce the finest household powder in the world.

Treasure Trove of Old Silver. A discovery of buried treasure has just been made in a remarkable manner in the Parliament hill field between Hampstead and Highgate. A boy named James Barrington, aged three years, the son of a railroad contractor living near Parliament hill, was strolling through the field, when he discovered a small hole in the ground. He dug it out, and found a small box containing a large quantity of old silver. He dug it out, and found a small box containing a large quantity of old silver.

If the boundaries of Outer county, Mass., have been correctly traced, they will surround 20,000 square miles of territory, making that one county larger than the five states of Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Delaware and Rhode Island.
