Mobocracy.—According to a telegram to-day, the mobocratic feeling against the Elders is very strong in Tennessee, and talk of lynching is indulged in. This feeling appears to have been caused by the fact that the brethren have succeeded in making some converts. This has been supposed to be a free country, but some people appear to be doing their best to remove that impression.

Genuine Enjoyment.-A social reunion, under the auspices of the Relief Society of the 18th Ward was held in the Lion House last night. About 125 persons were present, and the occasion was most delightful. Refreshments were in abundance, and the time was passed in singing, instrumental performances, speaking, conversing, reciting and other exercises. Among those present were President John Taylor and Apostle Erastus Snow. Among the leading sisters of the Relief Society organizations were E. R. Snow Smith and M. I. Horne.

The proceedings were conducted by Sister Barton, president of the ward society. Mrs. Twiss Young ed the arrangements of the table. The gathering did not dispense until after 11 o'clock.

> "Finding that he could not force his way in, and having in the meantime alarmed the house by his noise, Ledingham thrust his pistol through the glass setting in the upper part of the door frame and fired. Just at this moment Miss De Murska had started to go back to her own room, and a young man named Al. Grove stepped out of an adjoining room to inquire what all the noise was about. As he came out, the pistol, a fortyfour calibre British bull-dog, was discharged and the ball pierced Grove's breast.

A NOCTURNAL RAMBLE AND WHAT CAME OF IT.

Some genius—we suspect him to belong to the jovial order of humanity -has said, "The day to drone and dream, the night to learn and and other genial sisters superintend- ramble." We do not propose to dispute this worthy's view of the matter, but present herewith the experience of a Philadelphia journalist, Mr. William H. Cunnington, 1712 North: I'wentierh street, one of whose noctural rambles he thus refers to, beginning his narration rather peculiarly, however: "I am not a rheumatic, and have been troubled very little with bodily pains. Last Tuesday morning I experienced a very annoying stiffness of the neck, which rew worse as the day wore on. Toward evening it became very severe' and I could scarcely turn my head in any direction. Arriving home at tea time, it was with difficulty that I could eat my meal. My wife wanted to rnb my neck with St. Jacobs Oil, but I refused, saying I thought the affliction would soon pass away. Tea over, against the remonstrances of my family, I left home to ramble toward the new Chestnut-Street Opera House, about two and a half miles A trial entails but the comparatively trifling outlay of from my presidence I started in the cheap and positive proof of its claims. midst of a heavy snow storm, and remained at the theatre until the soid by ALL DRUGGISTS AND DEALERS IN MEDICINE. close of the performance, although
