

AT HOME.

JANUARY 23, 1904.

One of the illusions is that the present hour is not the critical decisive hour. Write it on your heart that every day is the best day in the year—Emerson.

SOCIAL CHAT

The week opened with the luncheon given on Monday by Mrs. C. D. Moore to the Reviewers' club, the event being in celebration of the eighth anniversary of the founding of the club. The dining room was in pink and green, the table having a centerpiece of pink carnations, and ferns and carnations being strewn over the cloth. Pink shaded candelabra were at either end, and the place cards had quotations from different authors. After the luncheon there was an impromptu discussion of the negro question from the Southern standpoint, and Mrs. C. E. Richards read an amusing story. The guests were Mrs. Hal W. Brown, Mrs. John Delano, Mrs. Ellen Elliott, Mrs. David Evans, Mrs. E. O. Lee, Mrs. W. S. Loomis, Mrs. W. A. Nelson, Mrs. Charles G. Plummer, Mrs. J. C. Royce, Mrs. C. E. Richards, Miss Della R. Snow, Mrs. F. A. Vincent, Mrs. E. A. Wedgwood, Mrs. W. R. Wightman and Mrs. R. C. Woodruff.

One of the notable events planned for next week is the breakfast to be given by the Ladies' Literary club as an anniversary celebration, the event to include the members and one guest allowed to each of them.

The second assembly ball of the season took place on Tuesday night, and the event was a delightful one. The hall as before, was artistically and conveniently arranged, a canopy extending from the northwest corner making a pretty alcove which was furnished with rugs, divans, etc., and rugs and chairs in the opposite corner and along the north end of the hall gave an air of coziness to the whole. The platform was banked with palms, and punch was served from prettily arranged tables in the alcove. The refreshment room was decorated in white and green, festoons of smilax extending from the chandeliers to the four corners of the table where baskets of white carnations and plumose were placed, while the centerpiece consisted of a crystal candelabra surrounded with white carnations and ferns. About 200 were present.
