LOCAL NEWS.

Obsequies.—The funeral of Brother John Parkin, Sen., who died at his home in South Bountiful, on the 4th, occurred yesterday, upon which occasion nearly the whole of the ward turned out to show honor to his memory. Bishop Brown presided over the services, and consolatory and instructive remarks were made by Elders John Cook, of Mill Creek; James May, of South Cottonwood, and H. W. Naisbitt, of this city. The remains were interred in the Bountiful cemetery.

Destructive Boys.—The matron of the Deseret Hospital complains of a practice that has grown altogether too prevalent of late, of small boys throwing stones at the windows of that institution. Many of the panes of glass have been broken and other damage caused by these young vandals, and if their parents do not interfere soon to check their mischievous and destructive proclivities, it will be necessary to have recourse to the law, which alternative the managers of the hospital are anxious to avoid, and we therefore, in their behalf, appeal to the parents living in that vicinity to look more closely after their children and see that no further complaints are necessary.

$50 Reward.—On Monday last, John Riddle, lately from Grass Valley, Utah, hired a horse and buggy from Thomson & Jurgenson, to go to the Warm Springs. Since that time nothing has been seen of man or outfit. The horse is a large chestnut colored one. Riddle is light complexioned, has a light mustache, is about six feet high, weighs about 175 pounds, and is 25 or 26 years of age. He is from Nebraska, where his father now resides. During the past summer he has been employed by his uncle at Grass Valley. A reward of $50 will be paid by Thompson & Jurgenson for the delivery of the whole outfit to them or the officers in this city.

Janauschek's "Mary Stuart."—In comparison with many of the entertainments we have lately had in this city, those of Janauschek are like turning from an impure and turbulent stream to the clear and sparkling water which bursts from the bosom of the mountains. The more the intelligent auditor sees of her, the more strongly is he impressed with this idea, and those who saw her impersonation of "Mary Stuart" last evening needed nothing else to convince them that in the sombre lines of tragedy, the madame, has no superior, perhaps no equals, on the modern stage. The terrific outburst of rage with which she assails "Elizabeth" when passion so long restrained bursts its boads, contrasted with the penitence and quiet resignation with which she forgives "Lester" and proceeds to the block, both so striking in their intensity that the spectator almost ceased to breathe for the time, were marvelous achievements of the actor's art, and when the curtain fell the approbation of the audience was expressed in terms loud and long. The support was excellent, and the piece never went off more smoothly.

To-night—the last of the present engagement, Janauschek appears in a different role from any she has yet assumed—"Lady Macbeth." A crowded house will doubtless greet her.

GRAND JURY PRODUCTS.

H. GROW, J. W. KEDDINGTON AND A. J. FOULGER ARRAIGNED—THREE INDICTMENTS AGAINST FOULGER.

This morning warrants of arrest were served on Henry Grow, John W. Keddington and Herbert J. Foulger, and when they reached Marshal Ireland's office they were notified that the grand jury had presented indictments against them for cohabiting with their wives—one each against Mr. Grow and Mr. Keddington, and three against Mr. Foulger.

The three defendants repaired to the Third District Court room, and Henry Grow was first called. The indictment was read, charging that from December 1st, 1882, to October 15th, 1885, he lived and cohabited with Julia M. Grow and Emma Sarah Rawlins Grow as his wives, contrary to law. The document was dated Nov. 6th, and signed by Morris R. Evans, foreman of the grand jury.

To the clerk's inquiry, "What is your plea to this indictment, guilty or not guilty?" Mr. Grow responded, "Not guilty." The defendant was then released on the bond of $1,500 furnished before Commissioner McKay.

John W. Keddington, of the Tenth Ward, was next called. The indictment in this case, which was found on the testimony of the defendant himself, states that between December 1, 1883, and May 1, 1885, John W. Keddington unlawfully cohabited with Aquilla E. Keddington and Mary Jane Tall Keddington as his wives.

Before the defendant entered his plea, Judge Harkness arose and stated that, to relieve the mind of the District Attorney from doubt, the defendant would enter a plea of guilty to the charge, if the date of sentence could be delayed for about ten days. To this Mr. Varian assented.

Court—What is the plea?

Mr. Keddington—I plead guilty.

Sentence will be pronounced on Saturday, November 21st. The defendant was allowed to go at liberty on the bail given before Commissioner McKay, $1,500.

Herbert J. Foulger then came forward to plead to the indictment against him, one for the offense under the Edmunds law named therein, and two as the result of McKay's "segregating" manipulation of the grand jury to punish Mr. Foulger for having acted in the ecclesiastical position of Counselor to a "Mormon" Bishop. The first indictment read charged the defendant with cohabitation with Eliza Hagell Foulger and Charlotte Maria Foulger as his wives, from Jan. 1, 1884, to Dec. 31, 1884. To this the defendant entered a plea of not guilty.

The next indictment alleges the same offense to have been committed with the same ladies between Jan. 1, 1885, and Oct. 1, 1885. Mr. Foulger also replied to this, "Not guilty."

The third charge limits the offense between Dec. 1st, 1882, and Dec. 31st, 1883, in the same relationship as the others. The defendant's plea to this was not guilty.

The former bond given before the Commissioner was made to serve on one of the indictments, and the defendant was instructed to furnish $1,000 bail on each of the others—$3,500 in all.

As Mr. Foulger was passing assistant district attorney Varian, he remarked, with a touch of sarcasm, "Have you lost any, or haven't you got a few more?" referring to the multiplicity of indictments.

"Any more?" viciously replied Mr. Varian; "you'll have plenty of these before you are through."

Mr. Foulger then went before Commissioner McKay to give the required bail, and asked that functionary whether Mr. W. H. Rowe would be acceptable as a bondsman.

McKay gruffly replied, "Mr Rowe is now on for about $20,000. I'll take him if you can't get anybody else." The splenitive Commissioner had evidently lost sight of the fact that Mr. Rowe is liberated from the bonds of some who have gone to prison, and that his liabilities do not even approach the sum named.

Mr. Foulger, however, furnished the necessary sureties.

The Sluggers.—What was advertised as an "athletic exhibition" took place in the Pavilion last evening, and attracted two or three hundred men who have a taste for that kind of pastime. There was some rather tame boxing by local amateurs, a tamer dog, and still tamer cock fight, some very clever club swinging, and the "event of the evening," as the manager called it, wound up the affair. This was a slugging contest between Smith, of California, and Fitzgerald, of Fort Douglas. The latter won in two rounds, in which some hard and fast hitting were done on both sides, Smith finally going down on the hard concrete floor under a blow from his opponent, the fall making a wound on his arm from which the blood flowed freely.

The vitiated taste which impels a person to read the slangy reports of prize fights takes him to such exhibitions as that referred to. Against boxing in a friendly way, when skill and exercise are the only objects, nothing can be said, so long as proper places and times are selected; but the spectacle of two men pummeling each other in the most brutal manner till one of them is exhausted, and for money, is an offense against morals, decency and the law, and should be suppressed.

Hygiene.—Brother J. M. Thompson, a hygenic physician whose card appears in to-day's NEWS, has recently arrived in this city and purposes remaining and practicing the profession named, in which he has had considerable experience. The treatment of diseases by natural agencies only, without the use of drugs, is quite popular in some places although almost new here. Brother Thompson has commenced giving lectures in the various Wards, in explanation of the principles of hygiene, and the simplicity of the system he advocates strongly recommends it to all who need their health restored or those who wish to preserve health.

After a Sheep Thief.—Samuel Forcett, of Centreville, has lost 150 head of sheep, and ascertains, so we learn, that the man who took them is John Gallagher; he is aged 25, height 5 feet 11 inches, is dark complexioned, has a full, rough beard, somewhat dark; on his right arm, pricked in ink, is a figure of a lady holding an American flag in each hand, and on the left arm a sailing vessel flying the same emblem. He is supposed to be in this city, and the officers are on the lookout for him. Citizens generally should also be on the alert.

Riverton Organization.—The annual election of officers for the Young Men's Improvement Association of Riverton has taken place with the following result: Charles M. Noakes, president; N. H. Silcock and Andrew Nielson, counselors; Wm. H. Bowlden, secretary; S. L. Howard, assistant; Wm. H. Silcock, treasurer; A. D. Silcock, librarian.

From Virginia.—We had a call today from Elder Andrew W. Spence, of Wellsville, who arrived here last evening from the "Old Dominion," where he has been filling a mission for the past two years and eight months, having left home on the 27th of February, 1883. For the first five months of his absence he labored in East Virginia, and after that up to the time of his release to return home, with the exception of once when he returned there on a brief visit, in West Virginia. Like that of most Elders who go to the South, his experience was varied; at some times he had encouraging success, finding people who were willing to listen to his testimony and investigate the principles of the Gospel, and at other times having the consciousness of the approval of the Almighty alone to support and encourage him, the people among whom he traveled manifesting no interest whatever in the message he was sent to bear to them. He, however, met with kind treatment as a rule, and formd the acquaintance of many persons whose friendship he prizes.

As an instance of how openings are occasionally effected for the Elders, Brother Spence relates that while he and Elder Vickers were laboring in Logan County, W. Va., in June, 1884, they were waited upon by a couple of officers who had a warrant for their arrest on suspicion of their being connected with a band of robbers who infested that part of the country. The Elders readily opened their satchels and displayed their books, etc., and explained the object of their presence so satisfactorily that the officers not only allowed them to pursue their journey but accepted some of their tracts, with a promise to read them, and invited the Elders to preach in the Logan Court House and enjoy their hospitality. Such an invitation was not to be despised, and they accepted it with thanks, and improved their opportunity, the result being that an opening was effected, and a branch of twenty-six Saints now exists there, where before there were none.

Upon one occasion, when Elders Spence and Clapp were laboring in Lincoln Co., they were ordered by a mobocrat named James Murphy, who was instigated by a Methodist preacher and others of equal pretensions to piety, to leave the county within three days on pain of being driven out by 100 armed men. The Elders declined to go, and a friend came to their relief, and on his own volition had Murphy arrested for making the threat. Although no trial resulted, the arrest had the effect of quieting Murphy and his colleagues, and the Elders were not molested.

Elder Spence considers the prospect for missionary work very good now in Lincoln and Wayne counties. He enjoyed the privilege during his absence of initiating sixteen persons into the fold by baptism, and was present at the baptism of quite a number more. He greatly enjoyed his labors while abroad, gained a good experience, and, with the exception of having contracted sore eyes during an epidemic of that nature in the South, from the effects of which his optics are still weak, he has enjoyed pretty good health. He is glad to get home again, and by no means sorry that he went upon his mission.

—On Monday last, a Wyoming sneak thief named Fred Smith, climbed into the cab of a Union Pacific locomotive and extracted $20 from the coat pocket of the fireman, Mr. Costen. The sheriff followed the thief and succeeded in capturing him at Rawlins.

—About midnight on Wednesday night it was discovered that Charles Rackham, of Ogden, had taken half an ounce of laudanum, with the intention of ending his mortal career. Dr. Condon was summoned and began working vigorously with Rackham, whose condition seemed hopeless, but he finally succeeded in rousing him from sleep. Whipping and knocking around was then resorted to to keep the man awake, and now that there are fair hopes of convalescence, the chances are that Rackham will have time to repent while he recovers from the smarting and pain caused by the battering he received.
