CENTENARY OF PREST. JOHN TAYLOR

Celebrated by His a Many Descendants, Friends and Admirers This Afternoon

AT GRANITE STAKE HOUSE

Exercises Characterized by Informality, No Set Program Having Been Arranged—General Authorities.

At the Granite stake tabernacle this afternoon the centenary of the late President John Taylor is being celebrated by his descendants and the number present is augmented by the attendance of many friends. This is not the date, however, of the anniversary of the birth of the distinguished man whose memory is thus honored, that day falling on Sunday last. The family decided to celebrate the event today, and accordingly invitations were sent out requesting friends to join in the function.

The exercises are characterized by informality, no set program having been arranged. Among the guests are a majority of the general authorities of the Church, and among the speakers of the afternoon are men who were closely associated with President Taylor during the last several decades of his life. Interspersing the speeches, old-time songs were rendered, with recitations and the recital of reminiscences.

Elder John Taylor was the third president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, succeeding President Brigham Young in that capacity.
From the death of the latter, Aug. 29, 1877, until October, 1880, Mr. Taylor was the senior member of the quorum of the apostles, which body was the presiding council of the Church. In the last named year the first presidency was reorganized, with John Taylor as president, George Q. Cannon and Joseph F. Smith as first and second counselors, respectively.

Seven years he held the exalted position, his death occurring July 25, 1887. During almost the entire period of his presidency, stirring times were witnessed in Utah, the Church passing at that time through one of the most critical epochs of its history. The man at the helm was fully equal to every emergency, and it was conceded as much without the Church as within that he was the one man for the place at that particular time. His name is indelibly written in the memories of all who knew him and is as indestructibly recorded in the annals of the Church for which he suffered all but martyrdom.

For more than 40 years Mr. Taylor carried in his body a bullet that he received at the time that the Prophet Joseph Smith and his brother Hyrum Smith the Patriarch were murdered in cold blood. The eventful day was June 27, 1844.

John Taylor was born Nov. 1, 1808, in Milnthorpe, near Windermere, Westmoreland, Eng., the son of James and Agnes Taylor. He was about 24 years of age when he emigrated to America.
In 1832, and having been converted to Mormonism by Elder Parley P. Pratt, he was baptized May 9, 1836.

The part taken by Elder John Taylor in the upbuilding of the Church with which he became identified in its infancy and in the colonization and settlement of the intermountain country is too well known to be repeated here.
He was one of the truly great men of

PRESIDENT JOHN TAYLOR.

Whose Centenary is Being Celebrated by His Descendants Today.

the nineteenth century, and in a fitting manner the one hundredth anniversary of his birth is being observed today.
