

FIFTY-FIRST YEAR
MRS. NATION TELLS
THE WHITE FEATHEROne of Her Followers Calls Her a Coward
—Plan to Smash All the Topeka
Saloons Falls Through.

Topeka, Kan., Feb. 8.—Mrs. Nation looked the white feather last night at a meeting of her followers, who, armed with hatchets, had gathered in to arrange a night raid on Topeka saloons. Several male students at the college were to come to town and meet after midnight and personally take part in the raid and also see that the crusaders were not molested. The women planning the raid for the night were sharpening up their nails and they are nearly in trim. I honestly feel compassion for those poor joint-ists.

Asked as to how long she would be away from Topeka, Mrs. Nation said: "I can't tell just at this time. I will lecture in Kansas City tonight and I would like to visit there but have not the time. From Kansas City I go to St. Louis, then to Alton and possibly to Chicago. I will lecture at each place, then go home for a sufficient number of days to close up my affairs."

DELIGHTS IN THEIR ANGER.
Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 8.—A special to the Star from Topeka, Kansas, says: Mrs. Nation, speaking today of the storm of reproaches that had been directed against her because of her refusal to lead last night's raid, said: "It was beautiful to see how angry they were. Why, do you know, they wanted to scratch my eyes and pull my hair for not going out with them. It was a delicious half hour. I never was so happy in my life. I would rather die at the hands of those indignant women than from the saloon keepers."

Mrs. Nation burst into a hearty laugh and she held her sides and fairly shook with merriment. Then she grew sober once more and said: "I don't lose anything by the indignation of those women but Kansas gains a great deal. When I first came here I had to do all the talking but you know last night I had to stand and listen to them scolding me. Why, it was the greatest surprise I ever had. They were mad, clean mad, all the way through, because I would not help them smash. That's turning back on them. Don't blame them for calling me a coward. I confess I was almost a coward when I saw the indignation of those women. Verily, it was demonstrated that 'hell hath no fury like a woman scorned.'"

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 8.—Mrs. Nation has been invited to come to St. Louis and deliver a lecture. The prohibition club has adopted resolutions declaring "that we as individuals and as members of this club, and believers in the thorough enforcement of the law, do hereby tender our heartfelt sympathy to Mrs. Nation in her motives and actions in the entire suppression of the liquor traffic in Kansas."

AN AUBURN, IND., SALOON SMASHER.
Auburn, Ind., Feb. 8.—Mrs. Tom Creal, whose husband is foreman in the Baltimore and Ohio shops at Garrett, demolished the saloon of Peter Behler's with a hatchet. She had repeatedly warned Mr. Behler not to sell to her husband, who was in jail at the time.

HEART FULL OF JOY.
Mrs. Nation was met at the Santa Fe depot this morning shortly before departing for Kansas City where she lectures tonight. Regarding the discord in the ranks of the Home Defenders, she said: "The meeting we had last night was not so inspiring. I actually never had my heart so full of joy as I did last night. My experience in Topeka was the first time I started out on a crusade against these 'hell holes' and I never had so much fun. I told the women that if they were to go to the right and carry out their work for the Lord, they would be successful."

At the meeting last night the women were sharpening up their nails and they are nearly in trim. I honestly feel compassion for those poor joint-ists.

GEN. MACARTHUR'S
REPORT
REPORT WANTEDSenate Adopts a Resolution Calling For It.

VOTE ON SHIP SUBSIDY BILL

Mr. Frye Wants a Day Fixed for Putting
It On Its Passage—Responsibility for Extra Session.

Washington, Feb. 8.—Soon after the Senate convened today a resolution previously offered by Mr. Pettigrew, calling on the secretary of war for a copy of Gen. MacArthur's report as to the conditions in the Philippines and for other papers relating to the Philippines, was adopted.

At the instance of Mr. Frye, (Maine) consideration of the shipping bill was resumed. Mr. Frye then appealed to the Senate that a time be fixed for the vote upon the pending measure. He was exceedingly desirous for a vote. Personally he had no more desire for night sessions than any other senator. He hoped that the Senate might agree upon some time for a vote—a time far enough off to permit the necessary latitude for proper debate.

Mr. Jones, (Ark.) said he did not think at this time any agreement could be made for a vote.

Mr. Hale, (Maine) said he could understand perfectly the views of those opposed to the measure, but believed the Senate would be indulgent as it always had been, with senators who desire to prepare speeches upon the measure. He suggested that the senator bear in mind that the pending measure was in effect a political measure and that the majority would have to assume the responsibility for it. He did not believe there was any desire to filibuster against the bill.

Mr. Tillman, (S. C.), expressed his admiration for the "wisdom and diplomacy" always exhibited by the senator from Maine. (Mr. Hale), and the placidity with which he had attempted to smooth troubled waters here. He inquired, however, how the senators could prepare speeches when they were now under full head of steam from 7 o'clock in the morning until 11 o'clock at night.

Mr. Hale believed those who desired to prepare speeches would find time to do so.

Mr. Pritchard, (N. C.), spoke briefly in favor of the shipping bill and the naval appropriation was then taken up.

The night sessions of the Senate have been abandoned by the Republican minority for tonight and tomorrow. It is stated that they intend to again hold next week. The Republicans say that if the Republican majority is willing and determined to go ahead with the shipping bill, the minority must take the responsibility of forcing an extra session for the appropriation bills.

THE BAKU CONFLAGRATION.
It Is Believed a Discharged Employee
Started It for Revenge.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 8.—Dispatches from Baku say all the available hospitals are filled with people injured by the naphtha fire, while the sheds on the fair grounds are filled by those made homeless by the conflagration.

The fire broke early in the evening at meal time and spread so rapidly that many people were unable to escape from their homes. The fire also cut off the retreat of the spectators, thirty of whom perished.

It is believed the conflagration was started by a discharged employee, for the purpose of revenge, and it is further reported that the naphtha reservoirs had been previously filled with water. The fire in overflowing carried the flaming fluid over the town, involving all the houses as far as Police street. The stream of fire was several yards high. Numbers of people were seen trying to escape by jumping from the burning houses. The total number of victims is not ascertainable at present.

Jeffries-Ruhlin Hearing.
Cincinnati, Ohio, Feb. 8.—The hearing on the application for an injunction against the Jeffries-Ruhlin contest on February 15 was resumed today. Madden, Delaney and others from the training quarters were present, but neither of the principals.

G. B. Dieterle, president of the Saengerfest Athletic club, resumed the stand trying to prove to the court that the Jeffries-Ruhlin contest, including resolutions that it would be better for the government to send the emergency fund of $50,000 here, to be applied to the sending militia to prevent the fight.

Dieterle testified to a resolution to make the Turners and members of other German societies associate members of the Saengerfest Athletic club, and it was admitted in evidence.

Dr. C. F. Muscroft, formerly police surgeon and coroner, testified to being the surgeon of the Athletic club and being present about forty fights in Cincinnati. He had never seen any brutality or any one seriously hurt.

Dr. Muscroft was examined at length as an expert and made a strong witness for the promoters.

QUESTIONS IN TOWNDuke and Duchess of Manchester,
Lord Lambert and E. Zimmerman.

CALL ON PRESIDENT SNOW.

They Are Then Entertained With an Organ Recital at the Tabernacle —Talk to "News."

At 8:30 this morning the Duke and Duchess of Manchester, Lord Lambert, Eugene Zimmerman, the millionaire father-in-law of the young scion of British aristocracy, with a retinue of valets, servants and a bulldog with an expansive smile arrived in C. H. & D. private car No. 7 over the Rio Grande Western from the west.

After breakfasting in the car the party, under the guidance of Colonel Benton of the Rio Grande Western, undertook to take in the sights of Salt Lake, including a visit to President Snow, General Passenger Agent George W. Heintz, the city and county building, to terminate the morning by attending a recital at the Tabernacle.

After the organ recital the party returned to their car for lunch, to later repair to the Tabernacle for the Sousa matinee. They will leave for Denver this evening, where they will spend a couple of days, and then proceed to Cincinnati via Kansas City and St. Louis by easy stages.

During their brief stay in Salt Lake, they one and all expressed themselves to the "News" as having enjoyed themselves immensely, despite the fact that the majority of the party was suffering from colds. The distinguished guests appeared to be very much struck with all they saw, especially with the case with which Lord Lambert who kept up a running fire of questions at all with which he came in contact. The duke, duchess and Lord Lambert, it goes without saying, are young people, and as young people they enjoy themselves. They acted just like ordinary everyday folks too, so much so that the married pair seemed for a moment as if they saw the duchess sitting in her husband's knee, which she did with a merry smile in her blue eyes, as the carriage drove through the principal streets of the city, the duke did not seem to mind it either, but, to the contrary appeared to rather like the duty thus imposed upon him owing to the limitations of the carriage.

LORD LAMBERT SURPRISED.
Upon alighting at the Tabernacle, Lord Lambert, in his bond street habitude, minus the monocle and in the inevitable top hat, suddenly slipped the duke on the shoulder and said: "My love, Manchester, just look at that; fancy a man wearing that thing in London." He then proceeded to pull a camera upon the object of his astonishment, which resolved itself into a smiling citizen unconsciously winking his eye in a big beaming overcoat.

Manchester smiled a superior smile and remarked that he would see plenty more such sights before he returned to Albion's Isle, while the duchess laughed merrily.

Columns and columns have been written and published in the press of the United States in regard to the Duke of Manchester and his romantic marriage with Miss Zimmerman, which occurred in a little church in London a couple of months ago. To the casual observer the young English nobleman is a good looking young fellow who carries his hair in the modern style, is endowed with a pair of merry blue eyes and a winning smile. As he appeared this morning clad in a long ulster his elastic step denoted that he was somewhat of an athlete, in fact, he bears the reputation of being one of the best boxers at college and is said to have figured in a number of sparring "contests," in which he has held up his corner in approved style. Lord Lambert is of a different build, slender in stature and withal endowed with the characteristic British stony sure and placidly drawn.

DUCHESS OF MANCHESTER.
The interest naturally centers around the Duchess of Manchester, the latest American girl to capture a title that comes next to that of a prince. To all intents and purposes the duchess might be said to be the original Gibson girl. She is of a decided blonde type, a winsome American girl despite the title she holds. At the Tabernacle she went into ecstasies in regard to the organ and a "News" representative stated that she thought that "the touch and expression put into the instrument by Prof. McClellan is simply marvelous."

At this juncture Mr. Zimmerman said: "It is wonderful when one thinks of a moment under what difficulties this instrument was built and I can hardly believe that this instrument was built here without importing any skilled mechanics." Then looking over in the direction of his son-in-law he said, "You know Manchester is quite a musician himself, and when he was down at Cincinnati he played on the big organ."

This statement naturally elicited the request that "his grace" sit down on the organ stool and indulge to the extent of a solo. His grace was as adamant, however, and in a neat compliment to the organist declined to play after listening to such music; he contented himself by taking a trip into the interior of the instrument and thoroughly examining it throughout. When this had been accomplished the duke went on to say that "the touch and expression put into the instrument by Prof. McClellan is simply marvelous."

MR. ZIMMERMAN TALKS.
When approached by a reporter Mr. Zimmerman undertook to be spokesman for the party, save for an occasional interjection on the part of the young people.

"I suppose it takes you all your time dodging the reporters," said the "News" representative.

At this remark Mr. Zimmerman smiled a smile of deep purport, to check himself and say jovially, "Oh, no; the newspapersmen are all right, and I am always glad to help them out if possible. We are now on our way home, and felt that we could not go East without paying Salt Lake a visit." Mr. Zimmerman then proceeded to throw verbal bouquets at Utah generally.

"I suppose that the Cincinnati, Hamilton Dayton has not yet sold out

LEGISLATURE OFF
ON IDAHO JUNKET.Special Short Line Train Left at 1:30 This Afternoon, Carrying 183 Passengers —Home Monday Morning.

Slowly and majestically the train bearing the Utah legislative party pulled out of the Short Line depot at 1:35 o'clock this afternoon. The train was scheduled to start at one o'clock sharp, but the chief executive of the State was to go with the party, and when the minute hands of the various legislative watches pointed to 1 o'clock the chief executive had not yet put in an appearance. Senators fretted and representatives grumbled. Said Senator Thomas to Senator Sherman, "He kept us waiting for five days to sign the McMillan bill and then threw us down again." I wonder if he is going to throw us down again."

Engine No. 63, which has the honor and responsibility of drawing the legislative train, turned all its spare steam into its whistle and screamed loud and clear to be heard clear up to Fort Douglas, but still the Governor nor came net. But it is only fair to say that the chief executive was not to blame after all for his lateness, and had he not been able to be reached by telephone after all on board had pretty nearly lost all their patience he would probably not have arrived till close on two o'clock. The governor had read the "News," and the "News" had announced that the Legislative train would leave the depot at 2 o'clock as announced by Mr. Hewlett in the House. But Mr. Hewlett made another announcement too late yesterday afternoon for publication in this paper that to the Herriman syndicate?" was the next query.

The railroad man laughed and then said: "No; we have not sold out yet. But really this consolidation movement is a great thing for the railroads, especially in the West, and it is bound to come. It will be better for all concerned when these consolidations are perfected and a stop put to cutting rates."

After talking in this strain for some time the matter of the Jeffries-Ruhlin fight dropped up. Upon being asked whether the contest would be allowed to be pulled off in Ohio Mr. Zimmerman was emphatic in the assertion that the governor of that State would never for a moment permit such a thing to take place.

After the recital the party drove down to the Rio Grande Western depot where lunch was awaiting them in the private car. All were welcomed at the door of the car by the bold and mentioned above, which, despite its unlovely appearance, seems to be very dear to the duchess, possibly from the fact that it is stated that the animal was a gift to her from her husband prior to the announcement of their engagement.

THE MARCH KING.
Sousa Arrives This Morning and Gives a Matinee This Afternoon.

"I have come to the conclusion that America likes things better if Europe has supplied them," said John Philip Sousa at the Knutsford this morning, "and I must say that the band has never before been accorded such receptions as we have received on this American trip. I think perhaps the success we met with in European countries has added interest to the band and its concerts." When asked about the decorations he received in Europe, Sousa said, "I was given a medal by the Royal Academy of Fine Arts of Belgium, and also a diploma, and afterwards received decorations at Munich and Cologne. Flags were given us at Frankfurt, Amsterdam and Berlin, and at Paris we were given a most beautiful American flag. We did not give concerts in London this time, but on our next trip to Europe, we intend to visit that city. Yes, we leave for Europe in time to hold a concert in Glasgow about September 25th, and that will open our engagements in England and the continent. I greatly enjoy being in Salt Lake again and playing in your great Tabernacle."

Between 1,500 and 2,000 people assembled at the Tabernacle this afternoon to hear the opening concert by Sousa's band. The gallery was unoccupied except by the Duke and Duchess of Manchester and their party, six or six in all, who occupied the east end. It is regrettable that the matinee could not have been given on a Saturday or at a later hour in the day; had it been the building could hardly have held the time of the start had been changed to one o'clock and the morning papers announced the change, but the governor had not noticed it. And this explains why the governor was late.

With the Governor in General Manager Bancroft's private car, which had been kindly tendered him for the occasion, were Miss Katz, General C. S. Jennings, and Captain and Mrs. P. W. Jennings. Altogether on the train were 183 persons. The train consisted of six Pullman sleepers, a chair car, a baggage car and the general manager's private car in the rear. The baggage car was half filled up with oranges and bananas. A fifty gallon barrel of Hewlett's Bro's orange marmalade and a bucketful of candy from McDonald Bros. and another from the Salt Lake Candy Company. Some of the legislators were much concerned about a certain case. It was labeled "Aunt Jennie's Pancake Flour," but what anyone could want with pancake flour on such a trip and why anyone should be so anxious over it are matters of mystery. It is comforting to be able to state that the case was finally run to earth before the train started. The box is said to really contain pancake flour.

The party will eat dinner at Pocatello between 6 and 7 this evening and will arrive in Boise in time for breakfast tomorrow morning. On the return journey another route will be taken and breakfast will be eaten at Huntington. Mr. McClellan, the organist, will have a late dinner at Pocatello. It is expected that the train will arrive in Salt Lake shortly after midnight on Sunday.

children who would have attended. The 100 children in the chorus made a beautiful spectacle and for their opening number, "Truth," rendered in beautiful style, they were immensely applauded. The Duke and Duchess clapping their hands, and the organist, the piano, though she has but a light voice, captivated the audience and won a big recall. The "News" report was forced to close before the concert was half over, but it then looked as though encore would be the order of the day. Tonight's program will be a rare one, and will include a number by Arthur Pryor, the trombonist, once a resident of Salt Lake.

WILL PROSECUTE.
County Health Board After a List of Quarantine Offenders.

Chairman Anderson of the county board of health says that several violations of quarantine regulations have occurred in the county, and the board has ordered County Attorney Christensen to prosecute the offending parties at once.

It is the intention of the county health officials to rigidly enforce all quarantine regulations for the stamping out of infectious diseases, any one violating the same will be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law.

Judge Hall's Court.
In addition to the regular case on trial for today, Judge Hall this morning transacted the following business:

Eva D. Shuler vs. George George Shuler et al., continued by consent until February 15th.

Eliza Scott vs. J. W. Scott, set for trial on February 11th.

William D. Clays vs. Isadore Morris et al., both sides waived findings of fact and conclusions of law, plaintiff was examined and adjudged to be the owner of the Julia Dean mining claim, and of the conflict area between that and the Brick mining claim.

Distributed Estate.
The trial of the case of A. B. Sawyer, administrator of the estate of Alexander Bertagnoni, deceased, vs. Martin Bertagnoni et al., has consumed the greater part of the past two days before Judge Hall. There is not much of value involved in the case, but it is a very complicated one. There are several brothers who have been in partnership for some time past, and in dividing up the partnership property together with the property of the deceased plaintiff, there arose a dispute of some sort, and to settle the matter they are now trying the case in court. A strip of land 30 by 150 feet out in the county, is one of the bones of contention.A POLITICAL CONTEST.
Exciting Municipal Election by University Students Today.

A battle royal has been waged all day between the Democratic and the Republican parties in Salt Lake; a battle rivaling in interest a contest staged by Richard Croker and Tom Platt for control of the city offices of New York, so far as the young participants are concerned. Such is the case, however. The two parties took their supporters from the first year history class at the University, and though there were other "bosses" the one who directed this particular election with an impartial eye to the success of either was Instructor Lee Young. The object of the contest was to initiate the pupils into the mysteries of a city election. Ward primaries were held during the week in each of the four imaginary wards by each party, and thirty-six delegates were elected to represent the people in either convention. Each party nominated its candidates for city offices, and since then two rallies have taken place amid much excitement, stumps pitched beneath a bushel, sprang up and harranged audiences from the University stairways. Votes were solicited at every opportunity, and all the intrigues of a spirited campaign culminated in the election held today.

The count was not finished at 4 o'clock, but up to this time the Democrats had only secured one office—justice of the peace—to which Douglas Sealy was elected.
