The "Mormons" wish to celebrate the "Fourth;" not with a procession of beer wagons and prostitutes, but with guns, cannon, music and the Stars and Stripes. Their way, how-ever, does not suit the "patriotic" ring, and rather than do the other, the "rebellious Mormons" refuse to celebrate at all:

LOCAL AND OTHER MATTERS.

Postage Matters.—There seems to be an impression that a written letter, sent through the mail in an open envelope, requires as postage but one cent per half ounce, as is the case with printed matter. We have received several of this kind of late, upon which the two cents has been due every time. It should be re membered that only printed matter, in an open envelope, is entitled to or unsealed, requires full letter postage-three cents per half ounce.

Bishop Orson F. Whitney was the first to address the meeting. He felt his weakness in standing up to address, for the first time in that unable to edify such an assemblage unless he were aided by a superior power. He did not say he had realized the efficacy of the spirit of the living God upon such occasions, not only in his own exhis brethren. He knew there was a power accompanied the earnest prayers offered by a congregation in behalf of one who stood up to ad-dress them. We were the instruments of providence and were most apable of doing good when we forgot to depend upon ourselves and placed full reliance upon the Alnighty. He did not mean by this, that we should not exert ourselves to do what little we could, in our own humble way, for it was a great truth that God helped those who helped themselves. As Latter-day Saints we relied upon a superior power in all the ways of life, no mat-

If we were saved, if we were ever so fortunate as to be saved in the presence of God and the Lamb, it would be because we had obeyed the laws of God and had selected that life of purity which He demands of us. In this and had violated the laws of God and man, could, upon repentance at the last moment, be transformed from wickedness into purity, and went on to show that every man would be rewarded according to the deeds done in the body. The speaker also showed the mercy of God in providing a plan whereby those who had passed behind the vail and had never heard the name of Christ never heard the name of Christ would have a chance of receiving would have a chance of receiving the gospel, and instanced the Savior, prior to His ascension, going to preach to the spirits in prison. In conclusion he testified to the restoration of the gospel. Light had come into the world; but men loved darkness rather than light.
