

GRADUATION AT L. D. S. UNIVERSITY

Splendid Affair Last Night in Barratt Hall.

PROGRAM QUITE ORIGINAL.

Beautiful Singing by Mrs. Edwards,
Prof. Kent, the School and the Choir.
—Address by Pres. Jos. F. Smith.

The commencement exercises of the Latter-day Saints' University, held last evening in Barratt hall, consisted of a most interesting program, given before a large and well pleased audience. The fine auditorium was filled with students and their friends. It was brilliantly lighted and beautifully decorated. Palms in profusion, vases of flowers, and bouquets of white roses (the class flowers) were on the stage and in the windows which were shaded with blinds in the class and school colors. National flags and the school banners were skillfully blended and hung from the balcony. The program of music was exquisite. Mrs. Edwards' rendition of the school song, "In the Good Old L. D. S.," and of "Could You number and in character as will continuously demonstrate to our people that they are making no mistake in supporting the institution. Our attendance continues to increase and was this year larger than ever. As yet, however, this attendance is of an uncertain nature, for this reason. Many of our students do not enter with the purpose of completing any recognized course, but simply of going to school for a few months or for the school year. The list of accredited graduates, while four times as great this year as in any year, is still too small to bear a true relation of proportion to the total enrollment. For the present year the accredited graduates class comprised with the total attendance in the ratio of about one graduate to 84 students; and it appears that of 200 high school and normal students who entered four years ago, only 15 have remained to complete course of high school grade.

The true remedy for this condition is for all our people young and old to be made acquainted with what I believe to be a fact; namely, that a high school education is, on the average, the least amount of school training with which our sons, especially will be able to compete with the generation that is now growing into manhood and womanhood in this country. A high school education is likely before long to be regarded as the birthright of every American boy and girl. The high school period of life is the most important period. It is then, and in the majority of cases, ever awake, to the understanding and appreciation of the good, the beautiful, the true and the right, in nature and in human conduct. It is then, that the reasoning faculties develop quickly, and the sentiments take definite form. It is then that high resolves are made and righteous ambitions are engendered. It is then, and in the majority of cases, then only, that the susceptible mind of youth can be turned once for all in the direction of the higher realities of human existence. It was at the beginning of this age that God spoke to the boy Joseph Smith. It is at this age chiefly that truth appeals most strongly been thrilled with a divine joy upon comprehending the beautiful thoughts of our great authors. We are glad that our hearts can be thus touched. Besides all this our Alma Mater has given us something of even greater importance. I refer to a knowledge of God's dealings with men and a testimony that He lives and helps those who go to Him for aid. We have learned what Christ meant when He said: "Ask and it shall be given you, seek and ye shall find, knock and it shall be opened unto you." This theological training has been of priceless value to us in our struggle for an education. For in all our studying we have borne in mind that our Prophet has said to seek learning by study and also by faith, and ever to rely on the spirit of inspiration. Now, what surer guide to the royal road of success in education, could be given? Who can better open up the hidden treasures of knowledge than He who holds all things in His hands and whose very glory is intelligence? Men may become renowned for their learning in the arts and sciences; but unless their knowledge of God increases and their love for Him grows stronger, they cannot attain the highest and best in life; for it is only the Spirit of God that completely enlightens the minds of men."

PRESIDENT SMITH'S ADDRESS.

President Joseph F. Smith said that he was delighted for the graduates that they had completed their course of study, to which they must have given much hard work during the past four years. He therefore felt to congratulate them, and to express the hope that they would continue as faithfully to perform the tasks which might lie before them in their future lives. He hoped that Providence would lead them into the occupations that would contribute the most happiness to themselves and good to their fellow men. "One object, in gaining an education," President Smith went on to say, "is to store the mind with knowledge, to become familiar with the sciences and the arts. This is good and necessary. To greater joy than to see the children of the Saints grow up good men and women, established in the truth." There was still another thing, President Smith said, that should be impressed upon the youthful mind in these schools. Every young man should be made to feel that it is degrading to profane the name of Deity, to use tobacco, and to drink intoxicating drinks. He spoke very impressively of these matters, relating incidents that showed how ridiculous and degrading it really is to indulge in these things. President Smith concluded by wishing

Be True" was particularly pleasing. Prof. Kent's splendid solo, "The Puritane," was novel and entertaining; and the school choruses all went with a good swing. The singing of the "Tenth ward choir under the leadership of Joseph Poll, was a revelation to most of the audience. They rendered with fine effect "Grant Us Peace, O Lord," and "God of Israel," two schemes written by Prof. Stephens. The valedictory address was quietly eloquent, thoughtful and scholarly without ostentation. The president's annual report was an interesting summary of the work and aims of the school; and the address to the graduates by President Joseph F. Smith was an impressive and powerful exhortation.

ANNUAL REPORT.

The report of President Paul reviewed the history of the change of the name and powers of the school from college to university. The attendance of last year was 1,281 students besides 50 children in the kindergarten; 970 of the students were registered in regular work, requiring daily attendance, and 291 in special courses. One hundred and twenty of the regular attendance consisted of missionary, and 70 of preparatory students. The other 780 regular students were almost equally divided into high school and normal students in one group and commercial students in another.

"In general I may say that the institution is gradually, but I trust surely, winning the confidence and good will of the people. Our own students now feel that it is no reproach or disadvantage in an educational sense, to cast their lot with the Latter-day Saints' university. It is our constant aim to provide the best of instruction in the lines which we profess to give. Our courses are somewhat stronger, on the average, than high school courses in similar institutions throughout the country. Our requirements upon teachers are somewhat more exacting than in most other institutions. The standard of scholarship and ability of our teaching force is considered higher than that which is strictly required in courses of high school grade, and these constitute the great bulk of our work. I believe that the students quite generally recognize these facts and feel satisfied with the training they receive here. As these conditions become known, we may reasonably expect such a patronage in to all persons. And if at this age the Latter-day Saints shall succeed as a people, in having their sons and daughters educated in useful lines and under proper influence, the problem of what to become of the future generation is almost solved. The training of childhood is best accomplished in the home; of manhood and womanhood, in the church and in the institutions of society; but the training of youth is mainly accomplished in the high school.

The report stated further that courses in civil engineering, mechanical drawing and manual training will be given for the first time next year."

ADDRESS OF JOS. SCHOENHALS.

"The important question to ask is, not how many facts we have learned, but how much better men and women we are, how much more able to enter upon life's struggle. Ability to apply principles learned, a quick comprehensive intellect, sound common sense and character are the things we shall need in life.

"In saying this, we would not be understood to mean that we have not been taught to appreciate the importance of learning as such. That person who has no appreciation of the beautiful and whose heart has no responsive chord for what is noble and sublime, has missed an important part of education. Our souls have often

EXPERT TESTIMONY

Coffee Tried and Found Guilty.

No one who has studied its effects on the human body can deny that coffee is a strong drug and liable to cause all kinds of ills, while Postum is a food drink and a powerful re-builder that will correct the ills caused by coffee when used steadily in place of coffee.

An expert who has studied the subject says: "I have studied the value of foods and the manufacture of food products from personal investigation and wish to bear testimony to the wonderful qualities of Postum Cereal Coffee. I was an excessive coffee drinker, although I knew it to be a slow poison. First it affected my nerves and then my heart, but when I once tried Postum I found it easy to give up the coffee, confirmed coffee fiend though I was. "Postum satisfied my craving for coffee and since drinking Postum steadily in place of the coffee all my troubles have disappeared and I am again healthy and strong. "I know that even where coffee is not taken to excess it has had effects on the constitution in some form or other and I am convinced by my investigation that the only thing to do if health and happiness are of any value to one is to quit coffee and drink Postum."
